Hobbs, spins the propeller of a model German Fokker D-VII he built for his son for Christmas. Hobbs, a San Rafael garage owner, built the plane — which sports a 10-foot wingspan and a motor-driven prop — in his spare time over the last two months because young Jeffrey "wanted an airplane for Christmas." The airplane, which Hobbs claims will fly "if pushed off a hill," is constructed of wooden ribs, steel tubing and canvas covering. McCown's Surprise Replacement Bared

Bielser Named Manager In Wake Of Resignation

By NELS JOHNSON

In a surprise move, the San Rafael City Council last night announced the resignation of City Mgr. James H. McCown and declared he will be replaced Monday by Asst. City Mgr. William J. Bielser.

The action came after a three-hour closed session in city hall called to consider a proposal by McCown that he step down as city manager to return to his previous position as city finance director.

The council rejected the proposal as financially impossible.

Both McCown, who was appointed city manager in July, 1969, and Bielser, appointed as McCown's assistant last December, declined to elaborate on the matter.

The 60-year-old McCown said only that he was leaving the city with "no regrets" and had "no plans for the future" as he removed a plaque from his office wall and straightened his desk following the session last night.

The 30-year-old Bielser, named acting city manager "for an indefinite period," was told by the council to begin advertising for an assistant.

The council — in the absence of colleague Lawrence E. Mulryan — hiked Bielser's present salary of $18,800 annually to $22,000 McCown received $25,200 as city manager.

McCown's two-page proposal, which he had declined to make public, was released last night by the council. In the document, McCown urged city fathers to name him finance director, a post he held from April, 1968 until being appointed city manager. McCown requested his pay be set at $1,525 per month and his duties include fiscal work in connection with revenue sharing funds, the city's Redevelopment Agency and the emergency services program.

WILLIAM J. BIELSER
Named acting city manager

"If my reassignment is approved, the present combined office of treasurer-director of finance should be dissolved and separate offices of treasurer and finance be restored," he said. Treasurer duties should be expanded to include business license inspections, now carried out by the police department at a cost of $6,200, McCown said.

McCown proposed that John B. Averett, the city's finance director and city treasurer, be given only treasurer responsibilities and that he retain his present salary of $1,628 per month. Under the proposal, the increased cost to the city would be McCown's proposed salary, or $1,525 per month, Averett said today.

McCown said he was offering to return to finance duties because of an increased workload in the city manager's department, but Mayor C. Paul Bettini hinted health reasons also figured in the proposal.

"During the three years and eight months I have occupied the manager's position, the workload has been continuous and building," McCown wrote. "The taking of normal leave has been almost an impossibility and sick leave hazardous at best."

McCown said he had accummulated about 45 days each of ordinary leave and sick leave, and requested he be given two months leave before being returned to the finance post. The council said that an employee "loses everything" upon resignation, but declared McCown

Thousands Pay Honor To Truman

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (UPI) — The body of Harry S Truman was carried today in a slow, solemn procession past his home on Delaware Street to the Truman Library where the 33rd U. S. President will lie in state. Thousands of Americans, ordinary and important, lined the streets to honor and mourn him.

Common folk from the Missouri farmlands where he was reared gathered on a crisp, clear day to grieve the passing of the tough little "Man of Independence." Truman's body will lie in state, in a permanently sealed casket draped with an American flag, for 21 ½ hours until Thursday's plain, private funeral.

Americans mourned him in the simple, quiet way he wanted. The motorcade left the Carson Funeral Home and moved slowly over the one and a half miles to the library.

Three thousand military troops stood at attention along the 15-block route in the bright sunshine.

President Nixon and his wife Pat flew to Independence to lay a wreath at the Truman Library in the afternoon and pay their respects to the family. The Nixons planned to return to Washington four hours later and will not attend the funeral on Thursday.

The Washington memorial service for Truman will be held at the Washington Cathedral Jan. 5.

Truman, whose momentous decisions during and after World War II shaped the destiny of his country, died Tuesday at the age of 88 after a three-week fight against age and disease.

Truman will be buried with the momentos he loved best — his Grand Master of the Mason Lodge pin in his lapel, his blue, purple and white Masonic apron around his waist and his 33rd degree Scottish Rite ring.

He was dressed in his favorite dark blue pin-striped suit, a white shirt and black tie.

The ceremonies were cut to three days to ease the strain on Mrs. Truman.

"Mrs. Truman is 87 years old, and the only reason to shorten it was to try to lessen the impact of his death on her as much as possible," said Randall Jessee, a family spokesman.

The military announced today the only tentative pageantry for Thursday's funeral —a 21-gun salute and a fly-over by 21 Air Force planes.

But only about 30 of the 57 aging men who served under "Captain Harry" in Battery D in World War I will attend the last rites.

"The rest don't get around quite like they used to," said Eddie Meisburger, a retired newsman who is secretary-treasurer of the Battery D Association.

And General of the Army Omar N. Bradley, another tough Missourian and himself frail at 79, was among those close to Truman who could not attend. Doctors advised Bradley not to fly to Independence from his home in California because he suffered a recent heart ailment.

"The world is a better place for his having lived in it," said the man who served under President Truman as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Nixon hailed Truman as a man of "vision and guts." He declared a 30-day period of mourning with flags on all government buildings flying at half staff. And he proclaimed Thursday as a national day of mourning. There will be no mail delivery that day and both the New York and American stock exchanges will be closed.

Former President Lyndon B. Johnson, his wife Lady Bird, and their daughters and their husbands, also announced plans to fly to Independence this afternoon. Johnson remembered Truman as a man "who was never flinching in the face of crucial national choices."

U.S. Gives Report On First Week Of Raids

SAIGON (UPI) — The U.S. Command, in the first detailed report of the air war over North Vietnam, said today "more than 1,000" tactical fighter-bomber strikes and 147 B52 missions were flown during the week of Dec. 18-25, and listed 72 military targets hit in this biggest bombing campaign of the war.

The nine-page report fell far short of describing the magnitude of the raids, some of which the Command said struck as close as one mile from the center of Hanoi. The report did not include the massive bombing that resumed after a 36-hour Christmas halt.

Communist reports from Hanoi said the raids continued today. The Communist reports said the bombs cut a swath of destruction through Hanoi itself and that tens of thousands of refugees were fleeing the city. A Polish report said bombs fell one kilometer (.6 of a mile) from the center of Hanoi today, and a Swedish report said the city shook as if an earthquake had hit.

"During the period 18 December to 25 December 1972, U.S. Air Force, U.S. Navy and U.S. Marine Corps aircrews flew more than 1,000 tactical strikes and the U.S. Air Force flew 147 B52 missions against military targets in North Vietnam," the Command said.

Asked to define a tactical strike, the Command spokesman said it was a "scheduled flight of one aircraft against a targeted installation." Asked to define a B52 mission he described it as a mission "by one or more aircraft."

Before today's report the command described the current series of raids as the heaviest of the war. During the period starting Dec. 18, 18 American planes were reported shot down, including 11 B52s. At least 58 Americans were killed or listed as missing.

The Command today reported another B52 and seven fighter-bombers downed. The Communists claimed eight more B52s shot down and said this brought to 61 the number of U.S. planes downed with about 100 Americans captured.

Joint Ridge Plan Upsets Larkspur

The Larkspur Planning Commission expressed concern last night that the so-called "three cities plan" for preserving Northridge open space differed in some respects from the city's own plan. (See another Larkspur Planning Commission story, page 3.)

The upshot was a unanimous vote of the three commissioners present — Otto Hoefler, Benton A. Sifford Jr. and Charles H. Curley — to approve only those parts of the new plan that conform to the city's which was adopted last June.

The new plan — paid for by the cities of Mill Valley, Corte Madera and Larkspur, the county and the Marin Conservation League — was described at last night's public hearing before the commission by Brian G. Wittenkeller, the county planning consultant.

Apart from differences over some areas earmarked for open space, the meeting was highlighted by recommendation of ways to acquire land by giving developers higher density allowance elsewhere in exchange, and even by permitting some controlled cluster development in the Northridge open space area.

The latter suggestion startled commissioners, who were told by Wittenkeller that such a solution is needed because it is inconceivable that all 1,347 acres on the ridges above the three cities can be bought outright by them. The cost would be prohibitive he said.

"Carefully conceived and planned cluster developments" could be built, he said.

Commissioners Hoefler and Sifford expressed disbelief that the concept of preserving open space and permitting development were compatible.

Sifford said this violated both his own understanding and the intent of the Larkspur plan which envisioned the city's share of the ridgelands as a conservation area devoid of development.

He said that if the city were to adopt the new plan most people would assume that the land was frozen in its present state, but that Wittenkeller appeared to be proposing something quite different.

Larkspur's planning director, Arthur N. Stout, countered that unless the city could buy the land outright, it would have to "use other techniques."

Wittenkeller said that such planned unit development was not being proposed for any specific locales in the Northridge, that development would be "by special considerations in certain areas."

Another method of acquiring open space the professional planners advised, would be by granting developers higher density on property elsewhere in the communities in exchange for dedication of land owned by the developer in the Northridge.

A principal difference, pointed out by Sifford, was the

State, County Offices To Close For Truman

Federal and state offices will be closed tomorrow in memory of former President Harry S. Truman, but local government agencies had mixed decisions on whether to close.

County offices will close, but the board of supervisors will meet at 9 a.m. as scheduled.

County Administrator John F. Barrows noted that under the state's Government Code and the county's collective bargaining agreement with its employees, when the governor declares a state holiday it applies to the county as well.

Courts also will be closed in Marin.

In Sonoma, however, county offices and courts will be open as usual.

City halls will remain open in San Rafael and Belvedere.

They will be closed in Fairfax, Tiburon, Rohnert Park, Larkspur. Corte Madera Regional Library will be closed, while the Larkspur Library will be open.

Other city halls still were undecided late this morning.

Fairfax, San Rafael, San Anselmo and county schools offices will be closed.

Banks will remain open, unless instructed otherwise by the federal reserve system.

Also there will be no mail service.

Marin Leads State In Average Income For '70

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Marin again led all California counties in average income reported and state income taxes paid last year for calendar year 1970, the state Franchise Tax Board reported yesterday.

The average adjusted gross income reported on Marin County residents' tax returns was $14,054 and the tax per return was $431, the franchise board said.

Contra Costa was second in income per return at $13,027 but only eighth in taxes paid, at $296.

Statewide, the adjusted gross income — computed before certain deductions but after certain others are figured — increased from $61 billion to $63 billion, while the state income taxes revenue increased from $1.09 billion to $1.21 billion.

The state board said the average income report showed an increase of $414 or 4 per cent in 1970, but the amount of taxes paid increased from $225 to $280, or 9.8 per cent over the figure for 1969. A board spokesman noted that taxpayers were granted a one-time, 10 per cent credit on their taxes in 1969.

CAREER EDUCATION

Marin Goal Is Marketable Job Skill For All Graduates

By PAT PERRY
(Second of two articles)

The ultimate goal of career education in Marin County is for every high school graduate to possess a marketable job skill. Despite a very long way to go to reach that goal, much is being done.

Traditional vocational training classes continue in high schools and the College of Marin, with heavy emphasis on office and automotive skills. Programs such as the vocational nursing and dental assisting courses at the college continue popular.

The county schools' office is expanding its Regional Occupation Program. Currently it offers, to any student or adult in Marin, free training ranging from cosmetology to restaurant food preparation.

Each high school district, as well as the Marin Community College District, runs a Work Education Experience Program (WEEP), under which students get credit while doing a paid job - although it's not necessarily in a job they intend to follow upon graduation. More than 600 College of Marin students are enrolled in WEEP.

The newest addition is the career exploratory work experience program (presumably CEWEP). This program enables students to sample jobs they fancy, without actually performing paid work. They get school credit.

A prime example is the Law Enforcement Exploratory Work Experience program run by the Corte Madera Police Department. It's known as LEEP (For some reason career education is big on acronyms).

Police Officer Andre Horn runs this Junior Cadet program, which is so popular with high school students that candidates compete for selection. The eight young men and one girl go to the Corte Madera police station on Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons, wearing an informal uniform of blue shirts, dark trousers or skirt.

"Officers come in and give

Traditional vocational training classes continue in high schools and the College of Marin, with heavy emphasis on office and automotive skills. Programs such as the vocational nursing and dental assisting courses at the college continue popular.

The county schools' office is expanding its Regional Occupation Program. Currently it offers, to any student or adult in Marin, free training ranging from cosmetology to restaurant food preparation.

Each high school district, as well as the Marin Community College District, runs a Work Education Experience Program (WEEP), under which students get credit while doing a paid job - although it's not necessarily in a job they intend to follow upon graduation. More than 600 College of Marin students are enrolled in WEEP.

The newest addition is the career exploratory work experience program (presumably CEWEP). This program enables students to sample jobs they fancy, without actually performing paid work. They get school credit.

A prime example is the Law Enforcement Exploratory Work Experience program run by the Corte Madera Police Department. It's known as LEEP (For some reason career education is big on acronyms).

Police Officer Andre Horn runs this Junior Cadet program, which is so popular with high school students that candidates compete for selection. The eight young men and one girl go to the Corte Madera police station on Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons, wearing an informal uniform of blue shirts, dark trousers or skirt.

"Officers come in and give

A CRASH VICTIM — A body lies in the snow outside the wreckage of a chartered Uruguayan plane that crashed in the Andes on Oct. 13, 120 miles from Santiago, Chile. Sixteen members of the Christian Brothers Rugby Team of Montevideo survived. Charges of cannibalism in order to survive have been denied by relatives and officials.

Cannibalism Charges Denied In Surviving Airline Crash

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — Relatives and officials denied allegations today that 16 persons who survived for 10 weeks after an airplane crash in the Andes did so by eating the flesh of their dead friends.

The survivors themselves said nothing.

But a diplomat said the 16 Uruguayans who survived 70 days after the crash of a Uruguayan air force F27 turboprop Oct. 13 would issue a statement after they return Saturday or Sunday to Montevideo.

Until then, said Uruguayan charge d'affaires Cesar Charlone, the survivors, all members of the Christian Brothers Rugby team of Montevideo, will remain in isolation in their hotel rooms.

Allegations of cannibalism began circulating shortly after the dramatic news last weekend that the 16 survived the crash high on an icy Andes slope.

Then the chief of the rescue squad which first reached the site of the crash said Tuesday he found evidence of cannibalism in and around the wreckage of the plane, located on a 13,500-foot slope of Tinguiririca volcano about 120 miles from Santiago.

The newspaper La Segunda reported details of the case Tuesday under a headline reading: "May God forgive them. Justifiable cannibalism."

But a government spokesman, Arsenio Poupin, said the reports lacked "serious foundation" and some relatives of survivors branded the reports lies.

"The foulest lie I have ever heard in my life," said Mrs. Domitila Paez, whose son Carlos was among the survivors. "Someone is trying to make filth out of the greatest miracle in history."

Other parents wept when they heard the reports.

Survivors refused earlier to discuss how they lived since the plane carried only enough food for the survivors for four days at most. "It was a dreadful experience," one said. "That is all I will say."

But Guillermo Silva, chief of the Andean rescue squad, said a three-man patrol from his organization found "chopped-up pieces of human remains" at the crash site.

Silva said the patrol found the remains during the 48 hours it stayed with the survivors to supervise the rescue and said a complete report was handed over to Chilean and Argentine authorities.

Rescuers went to the site after two survivors reached civilization last Friday and led rescuers back to help their colleagues.

La Segunda said the rescue squad report included the following:

"In order to survive...the injured men aboard the Uruguayan airplane had to eat the flesh of their companions."

It said only six bodies were found intact by rescuers. It also said rescuers found human remains hanging from the outside of the fuselage and piles of bones inside the wreckage.

It said a medical student, using razor blades he guarded in a box, cut up and rationed out parts of the bodies.

Navy Purchases $1.7 Million Block Of Stock

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Navy has bought $1.7 million in stock of an ailing defense plant on Long Island, The New York Times said today.

The Times said the Navy purchased all 17,414 shares of preferred stock in the Gap Instrument Corp. as a means of helping the company through a period of heavy cost overruns.

The purchase, The Times said, makes the Defense Department the largest single stockholder in the company.

The Defense Department purchase, The Times said, is for nonvoting, nonconvertible shares that pay no dividend, and is to be redeemed beginning in 1976, but only out of the company's after-tax profits. But, The Times said, the company has not shown a profit in the last four years, and in 1968 showed a profit of only $10,700.

The arrangement is believed to mark the first time that the Department of Defense has purchased stock in a private corporation, The Times said.

12th B52 Downed

BANGKOK (UPI) —American officials said today a B52 bomber crashed near the huge U Tapao air base early today after sustaining damage during a mission over Vietnam. He said four crewmen were killed and two injured.

The spokesman did not say whether the mission was over North or South Vietnam.

It was the 12th B52 reported downed by hostile fire since the resumption of full-scale bombing 10 days ago.

First reports said the crash occurred apparently while the plane was trying to land.

Raids Over Syria

TEL AVIV (UPI) —Israel announced its warplanes hit two frontier Syrian army positions and an Arab guerrilla base 25 miles inside Syria today in retaliation for two recent guerrilla attacks from there.

It was the first air force raid into Syria since Nov. 21 when a similar strike touched off the heaviest fighting between the two countries since the beginning of the mid-1970 Middle East cease-fire.

This time, an announcement said, all of the raiding aircraft returned safely, their pilots reporting "good hits" on their targets.

Manager Kidnaped

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Vicente Russo, Argentine production manager of Standard Electric, an ITT affiliate, was kidnaped today by an armed group, police said.

Police said witnesses told them the kidnapers blocked Russo's chauffeur-driven car with a pick-up truck, then forced the executive into another car.

The chauffeur also was abducted, police said. Witnesses said about 12 men participated in the abduction.

The kidnap took place near Russo's home in Beccar, a suburb about 10 miles north of downtown.

Boots Drug Case

BOSTON (UPI) —A federal judge Tuesday released two men convicted of distributing a hallucinogenic drug because, he said, they would not have been prosecuted if they were executives, tax evaders or violators of political campaign contribution laws.

"If you were that kind of person, this office of the U.S. Attorney would not have you on its list for prosecution," U.S. District Judge Charles E. Wyzanski said. "But this office had chosen to put you on its list and I remove you from it."

Mark Boasberg, 22, Cambridge, and Richard Hamm, 21, Stoneham, pleaded guilty to distributing a drug called MDA. Wyzanski first gave them one day's probation, then eliminated the probation period and ordered the conviction set aside.

"Isn't it perfectly plain that the criminal law is not the way to deal with this problem?" Wyzanski said. The judge said 50 per cent of the criminal cases in federal courts in Massachusetts had to do with drug law violations "as if we were back in the days of prohibition."

Park Sworn In

SEOUL (UPI) —President Park Chung-hee assumed office for another six years today under a constitution changed to allow his re-election with stronger powers than any of his predecessors.

The 54-year-old former army general took the oath of office before about 3,000 persons, thus returning the country to full constitutional rule. It was ruled by Park by decree after his declaration of nationwide martial law in October.

Under a ew constitution, Park was allowed to seek a new term, extend it from four to six years and take emergency action whenever he wants to impose almost complete control over South Korea.

Cease-Fire Ends

BELFAST (UPI) —A three-day Christmas cease-fire by extremists in Northern Ireland ended yesterday with bullets and bombs that left eight persons wounded. British army spokesmen said violence "on all sides" resumed.

The holiday lull in the bloodshed ended when gunmen in a passing car sprayed bullets at a group of men standing outside a bookie's shop in a Roman Catholic area of Belfast. Two men were wounded.

A series of bombing and shooting attacks in Belfast and elsewhere followed and British troops clashed with gunmen several times in the city. Troops said they wounded one gunman.

Trial Set In Robbery Try

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner ordered Michael Lyn Tankersly, 25, of Santa Rosa, to stand trial Feb. 20.

He was arrested Nov. 30 after occupants of the home he invaded wrested Tankersly's gun from him and clouted him on the head, inflicting wounds for which he was treated at a local hospital.

POW Writes Bombs Halt Activities

NEW YORK (UPI) —The resumed bombing attacks on North Vietnam hae disrupted the cycle of volleyball, card games and Bible-reading for prisoners of war in Hanoi, according to the text of a letter that was read over Radio Havana yesterday.

A spokesman for the Committee of Liaison with Families of Prisoners of War and Missing in Action said the letter, read on a Vietnamese program that was broadast by Cuban radio, came from Air Force Capt. Jerome Donald Heeren, 27, Brooking, S.D., whose plane was shot down in September.

"Our daily routine here has stopped abruptly since the bombing of Hanoi was resumed on Monday night," said the letter that was read by Nina Kimche, a member of the Committee of Liaison.

"I can tell you by being on the receiving end of the attack that it's eye-watering.

"Don't know how much real danger we're in as we have about as much protection in this camp as the people of Hanoi have. It appears to me that we are being treated as well as possible under the circumstances."

In Eden Prairie, Minn., where Heeren's family lives, his sister, Gwen Rosenow, said it was the third message that has arrived from her brother.

She said she found the bombing of Hanoi to be disturbing but worthwhile "if it will bring them to the tables."

The American government has denied bombing the POW camps but warned the North Vietnamese last week to keep the camps away from military targets.

"...Believe it or not I finally finished reading the New Testament," said the letter read by Mrs. Kimche. "I am now working on the Old.

"We have a lot of spare time and reading has been one of my usual activities. We also play cards, hearts and gin mostly. I am learning to play chess. We play volleyball once a week and I have been lifting weights sporadically. . ."

Service Board's Meet Delayed

The meeting of the Bel Marin Keys Community Service Board, scheduled for tomorrow, has been postponed until 8 p.m. next Wednesday at the Pavilion, according to secretary Betty Zoeller.

The main item on the agenda was signing the contract for construction of the locks, but it will not be ready by Thursday, she said. Duncan-Harrelson of Oakland was the low bidder with a bid of $689,400.

France Enters Talks Picture

PARIS (UPI) — France took diplomatic action today to unsnarl the Vietnam peace talks but the North Vietnamese refused even to meet the Americans to discuss technical points of the stalled draft cease -fire accord. A Communist spokesman cited "the most barbarous air attacks" against the North.

A U. S. delegation spokesman said the Communist rejection was of an American proposal that a new experts meeting be held today. He said the offer came at the last technical session Saturday which the Communist representatives cut short after delivering a protest against the U. S. bombing.

"The (North Vietnamese) side cannot participate in the meeting of representatives and experts that the U. S. has proposed on December 27, 1972, and is obliged to postpone the meeting until another date," the Communist rejection note said.

"Up to the present time, the United States has continued to carry out most barbarous air attacks against the capital city of Hanoi, the port city of Haiphong and several other populated areas all over North Vietnam."

"As has been pointed out by the (North Vietnamese) side, when the situation existing before December 18, 1972, has been restored, the meetings of representatives and experts will be resumed."

The United States resumed heavy air attacks over North Vietnam on Dec.18 after peace negotiations between White House aide Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho collapsed.

French Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann, in an apparent effort to get the Vietnam peace negotiations going again, had a long talk today with U. S. charge d'Affaires Jack Kubisch.

Kubisch — heading the embassy until the arrival of new Ambassador John N. Irwin — met with Schumann for 75 minutes in the Minister's Quaid'Orsay office.

Comedian's Wife Asks Dissolution

INDIO, Calif. (UPI) — Barbara Marx has filed for dissolution of her marriage to Zeppo Marx, the one-time straight man of the Marx Brothers comedy team.

The divorce proceedings were filed in this desert city Tuesday, five weeks after the couple separated. Zeppo, 71, and his wife were married in Las Vegas, Nev., in 1959.

Foster Care Aid Increased

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Legislation boosting the state's contribution to county-financed foster care programs from $80 to $120 per month per child has been signed into law by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Reagan said yesterday the legislation by Assemblywoman Yvonne Brathwaite, D-Los Angeles, would help ease local property taxes by transferring an estimated $7.5 million a year from local taxes to the state.

Reagan said the Brathwaite bill would be technically erased when the school finance-tax shift bill he sponsored with Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti backed takes effect June 1, 1973. But Reagan said his administration would push for fresh legislation to continue the benefits.

Larkspur Planners Adopt Strict Color Regulations

Single-family homeowners in Larkspur will still be able to paint their houses bright purple if they want to, but owners of apartments, stores, townhouses, offices, and public buildings may have to stick to "soft and muted colors in the earthtone shades."

The color regulations were contained in a new architectural supervision ordinance before the Larkspur Planning Commission last night.

The ordinance requires environmental and design review for practically all development and alterations, except single family houses, within the city.

Even existing buildings coming up for repainting, will have to get their colors approved by city planning staff if they're not earth-toned. And on the list of colors "ordinarily not considered appropriate" are metaliic finishes and bright tones of blue, yellow orange, violet, magenta, and green.

Materials and colors must be in earthtone colors, stated the ordinance, defining them as reddish-brown, brown, tan, ochre, amber, gold, sand, green, white and gray.

The strict new ordinance is part of the commission's decision to abolish its Architectural Design Review Committee, and delegate most of its previous work to the city planning staff.

For major new developments, it requires five aerial photographs showing "views of the property from the four major quadrants of the compass and one plan view of the property."

The only building and alterations exempt from review will be single-family houses and duplexes on public streets, or "trivial work."

The commission made minor alterations in the wording of the long ordinance, and instructed planning director Arthur N. Stout to get it cleared by the city attorney, and obtain proper definition of "townhouse" before recommending its adoption to the city council at the commission's Jan. 9 meeting.

The commission also instructed Stout, chairman Otto Hoefler and a city councilman to be appointed, to meet with an unnamed planning consultant for an interview for the contract to prepare $12,000 worth of general plans for the city.

Hershey Granted Price Increase

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Hershey Food Corp. has won permission to increase the prices of its chocolate candy bars.

The Price Commission ruled Tuesday Hershey could up the price of its milk chocolate bar 9.72 per cent and its chocolate bar with almonds 9.17 per cent. The firm has the option of either raising the price of the candy bars or reducing their size.

Hershey also was given permission to raise the prices of 12 other products.

Meeting Postponed In Honor Of Truman

I-J Special Report

OAKLAND — The Regional Water Quality Control Board's monthly meeting tomorrow in Hayward has been postponed until sometime early next month because of the closing of state offices in memory of former President Harry S Truman.

The board was scheduled to review sewage projects seeking state and federal grants. The date of the January meeting will be announced.

Larkspur Planners Adopt Strict Color Regulations

Single-family homeowners in Larkspur will still be able to paint their houses bright purple if they want to, but owners of apartments, stores, townhouses, offices, and public buildings may have to stick to "soft and muted colors in the earthtone shades."

The color regulations were contained in a new architectural supervision ordinance before the Larkspur Planning Commission last night.

The ordinance requires environmental and design review for practically all development and alterations, except single family houses, within the city.

Even existing buildings coming up for repainting, will have to get their colors approved by city planning staff if they're not earth-toned. And on the list of colors "ordinarily not considered appropriate" are metaliic finishes and bright tones of blue, yellow orange, violet, magenta, and green.

Materials and colors must be in earthtone colors, stated the ordinance, defining them as reddish-brown, brown, tan, ochre, amber, gold, sand, green, white and gray.

The strict new ordinance is part of the commission's decision to abolish its Architectural Design Review Committee, and delegate most of its previous work to the city planning staff.

For major new developments, it requires five aerial photographs showing "views of the property from the four major quadrants of the compass and one plan view of the property."

The only building and alterations exempt from review will be single-family houses and duplexes on public streets, or "trivial work."

The commission made minor alterations in the wording of the long ordinance, and instructed planning director Arthur N. Stout to get it cleared by the city attorney, and obtain proper definition of "townhouse" before recommending its adoption to the city council at the commission's Jan. 9 meeting.

The commission also instructed Stout, chairman Otto Hoefler and a city councilman to be appointed, to meet with an unnamed planning consultant for an interview for the contract to prepare $12,000 worth of general plans for the city.

Hershey Granted Price Increase

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Hershey Food Corp. has won permission to increase the prices of its chocolate candy bars.

The Price Commission ruled Tuesday Hershey could up the price of its milk chocolate bar 9.72 per cent and its chocolate bar with almonds 9.17 per cent. The firm has the option of either raising the price of the candy bars or reducing their size.

Hershey also was given permission to raise the prices of 12 other products.

Former Marinite Stabbed To Death

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Eugino T. (Gino) Fagnani, longtime former San Rafael resident, was one of two persons stabbed to death last night in a San Francisco apartment house, according to San Francisco police.

Fagnani, 58, was manager of the building where the killings took place and two other persons were wounded, investigators reported.

Patrolman Jerry Golz said an apartment tenant called Fagnani to help evict a neighbor, James E. Walters, 31, from a party the tenant was giving. A few minutes later, Golz said, Walter reappeared at the party and fatally stabbed a guest, John More, who answered Walters's knock at the door.

Two other guests suffered hand and arm cuts in wresting a butcher knife away from Walters, Golz said.

Fagnani was found fatally wounded on a landing of a nearby staircase, police said. Walters was booked on suspicion of murder.

Fagnani was born in San Rafael, and was a veteran of Army service in World War II. He was a member of the Knights of Columbus and the Disabled American Veterans.

A graduate of St. Raphael School and San Rafael High School, Fagnani was associated with Marin County banks for many years before moving to San Francisco two years ago.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Caesar Fagnani of San Rafael; three daughters, Mrs. Ray Sadduth of Germany, Jean Fagnani of Stockton, and Joan Fagnani of South Dakota; a brother, Carlo Fagnani of Sonora, and three sisters, Mrs. Walter Gooch of Fairfield, Mrs. Rita Burger of San Rafael and Mrs. Arthur Broadway of Montague, Siskyou County.

A Mass of the Resurrection will be offered at 9 a.m. Friday in Mission San Rafael, followed by burial in Mount Olivet Cemetery. The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow in Keaton's Chapel, San Rafael.

LARKSPUR

inclusion of all of Big King and Little King mountains, right down to the edge of Magnolia Avenue. Little King and saddle between the mountains were not part of the Larkspur plan.

Wittenkeller said it had been included to provide complete separation of Larkspur and Kentfield.

The inclusion of Little King was protested by attorney Wallace Myers, acting for the Tiscornia Estate's executrix, Alice B. Vincilione. He said she wants and is entitled to lower the mountain by 30 feet and use the fill for development of Magnolia Avenue flatlands. Some 600 acres are involved, he said.

He reminded commissioners that within Marin County there are 53,000 acres of open sapce at Point Reyes National Seashore, 40,000 acres in the new Golden Gate Recreational Area and 16,000 acres on Marin Municipal Water District land.

"Just how much land do you need to look at?" he asked.

Myers said buying all the land in the Northridge plan would cost at least $3 million, "and it seems to me it most certainly would not be good for the people of Marin to own all the land or you won't have a substantial tax base at all."

Russ Lauterwasser told the commission he owns 15 acres of land named in the plan, and couldn't understand its inclusion in a ridge plan since its elevation was about 25 feet. He also asked when property owners could expect compensation, since their land was frozen.

Stout said by adopting the Northridge open space plan the city wasn't freezing the land, but merely endorsing the concept. Until zoning is adopted, development is permissible, he said.

Not so, cried attorney Myers, waving a copy of the Government Code in the air, and citing a section which said no building permits or subdivision maps may be approved unless they conform with a city's adopted open space plan. "If you adopt this open space plan you're freezing it," he claimed.

In the end the three commissioners voted to adopt only those areas of the proposed plan that are common to the city's open space plan.

They decided to set up a joint meeting later in the month with the city council the park and recreation commission, Wittenkeller and the consultants Abergast and Newton, "to resolve the discrepancies in the two plans."

They also decided to get the city attorney's opinion on whether they would effectively be freezing all land contained in Northridge by adopting the plan.

TRUMAN

was sending U.S. troops to Korea in a "police action" that kept Communist soldiers from taking over territory south of the 38th parallel. He said that decision overshadowed all others, including his order to drop the atomic bomb on Japan.

The atomic bomb order, Truman said, "was purely a military matter that saved thousands of American lives. No other course was conceivable."

Other momentous decisions Truman made during his two terms, 1945-1953, included:

—The "Truman Doctrine" to keep Russia out of southern Europe.

A Thief Takes Christmas Gifts

mate of the tonnage of bombs dropped since the Command did not specify how many "more than 1,000" tactical missions were flown or exactly how many B52 strikes there were. The fighter-bombers can carry about six tons of bombs each and the B52s, which usually strike in groups of three, 30 tons each. The North Vietnamese delegation to the Paris talks said 40,000 tons of bombs were dropped last week, but there was no way to check this either.

The U.S. Command spokesman said the 72 targets listed were not the only ones hit and he refused to say if any civilian facilities had been struck. The command in the past has said no civilian facilities were targeted. The list of targets included every major airport in the Hanoi-Haiphong area except Gia Lam, Hanoi's civilian facility, and Communist reports said it too was hit. The country's four largest thermal power plants were also on the list.

The missions listed in the command report did not include fighters flying cover for the bombers and missile-firing planes which try to knock out Communist antiaircraft fire.

Reports from Communist and neutral news agencies based in the North Vietnamese capital spoke of widespread devastation in bomb strikes in and around Hanoi Tuesday night and today. One report said U.S. warplanes blasted Hanoi's international airport Tuesday night, demolishing civilian homes near it and leaving the area "looking like en earthquake had struck it."

The Command said U.S. warplanes pounded the North for the second consecutive day today following a 36-hour Christmas bombing pause and reports from Guam and Thailand indicated there would be more strikes tonight.

The U.S. Command spokesmen said today warplanes aimed only at military targets or facilities supporting North Vietnam's military effort. The report listed no damage to civilian facilities.

12 Graduate From Academy

Officers and their departments include Glenn A. Accornero and Mark B. Ihde, Belvedere; Keith B. Gundersen, Larkspur; Ugo F. Innocenti, Novato; Lawrence E. Woodall, San Anselmo; Michael G. Bunker, Gary F. Frugoli and Gerald D. Hasser, San Rafael; Ronald L. Reier, Tiburon; Donald M. Price, Wayne G. Parker and William A. Lane, Petaluma.

Gallinas Valley Moratorium Plea Scheduled

The Marin County Board of Supervisors, meeting tomorrow at 9 a.m. at Civic Center, will consider a request from a citizens' planning committee that a six-month building moratorium be placed over the Las Gallinas Valley.

The request, submitted by the Las Gallinas Valley Master Plan Committee, claims the group needs time to "research the needs and goals of the population living within this watershed area."

Construction of single-family homes would be exempted under the moratorium, which requires four favorable votes. Requests for moratoriums have been turned down in the past.

Tomorrow's session is slated to go only until 11:30 a.m. when the board will adjourn for a luncheon party of county officials honoring outgoing Supervisor Louis H. Baar.

Heliport Office Is Burglarized

The office of San Francisco Oakland Helicopter Airlines in the Richardson Bay heliport was burglarized of $150 in8cash and airline tickets during the night.

Marin sheriff's deputies said entrance to the building, at 240 Redwood Highway north of Sausalito, was gained by kicking in a front door leading to the office. Metal cabinets were pried open, deputies reported.

The burglary occurred between 10:30 p.m. yesterday and 6 a.m. today.

OBITUARIES

Builder John E. Kenney Dies In Oakland At 67

John Edward Kenney, whose contracting company built some 5,000 homes throughout the Bay Area, died yesterday in an Oakland hospital after a long illness. He was 67.

A native of Montana, he was graduated in 1927 from Stanford University with a degree in business administration. For the next three years he was head swimming coach at Oregon State University.

Kenney then joined the Federal Housing Administration, and helped set up its first offices on the West Coast.

He lived in San Anselmo during World War II, then moved to Oakland after the war to open his contracting business.

Kenney built San Rafael Meadows in the early 1950s, then launched 15 years of building homes in Terra Linda.

His most recent Marin proposal is for 2,300 units of townhouses and two and three-story condominiums on 700 acres at Black Point.

Kenney also was a limited partner in the Oakland Raiders, and a former president of the Associated Home Builders of the Greater East Bay. He was a member of the Sequoia Country Club in the East Bay and a contributor to various projects at Stanford Medical School.

He is survived by his wife, Lillian; two sons, Jack Kenney of Las Vegas and Gerald Kenney of Piedmont; two grandchildren, two brothers, Frank Kenney of Detroit, Mich., and James Kenney of Silverton, Ore.; a sister, Lucille Griffith of Los Angeles, and two grandchildren.

Funeral will be at 1 p.m. on Friday in the Albert Brown Mortuary, Oakland. Entombment will be in Mountain View Mausoleum, Oakland. His family asked that memorial contributions go to the Memorial Fund at Stanford University, 301 Encina Hall, Stanford, Calif. 94305.

MANAGER

will be given 30 days paid leave when he leaves office Monday.

"His proposal is financially impossible," said Mayor Bettini after the closed session, during which the council consulted with McCown, Bielser and Averett. "It just can't be done," he said, adding that the posts of city treasurer and finance director had been combined last February "because of economic feasibility."

"Our city would have to be a good deal larger to justify both a city treasurer and a finance director," said Councilman John A. Miskimen. "We did it previously and it didn't work out."

McCown, of 17 Truman Drive, Novato, is a retired Air Force colonel who had served as finance officer with the Army and Air Force from 1935 to 1963. He has served as director of finance for Air Materiel Command, Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio; comptroller of Air Material Depot, Chateauroux, France; comptroller of the Fourth Air Force, Hamilton Air Force Base and as director of accounting and finance, Air Force Systems Command, Andrews Air Force Base, Washington, D.C.

Prior to his appointment as San Rafael finance director in 1968, McCown was finance director of San Pablo, Contra Costa County.

Bielser, of 590 Whitewood Drive, San Rafael, served as assistant to the city manager in Covina, Los Angeles County, before being appointed as San Rafael assistant city manager. He also served for four years as administrative assistant to the city manager of Palo Alto.

He received his bachelor's degree in public administration from California State University at San Francisco in 1965. He has also attended the College of San Mateo and the University of Southern California.

A former board member of the Marin County Economic Opportunity Council, Bielser was instrumental in sparking the federal investigation which last year revealed EOC misuse of $100,000.

Bielser is executive director of the San Rafael Redevelopment Agency.

FRANCES HOWARD

Private funeral for Frances B. Howard of Stinson Beach was held today in Mill Valley.

Mrs. Howard, 90, died Saturday in a local hospital after a long illness.

A native of Sonora, Tuolumne County, she had moved from San Francisco to Marin nine years ago and resided on Las Baulinas Avenue.

Mrs. Howard is survived by two daughters, Florence Chessman of Stinson Beach and Belle Stanley of Dallas, Tex.; two sisters, Eugenia Kerker of Martinez and Sister Rita Dolores of the College of Notre Dame in Indiana and one grandchild.

BLANCHE EVANS

Funeral for Blanche I. Evans, mother of San Rafael advertising firm executive Robert T. Evans, will be held at 11:30 a.m. tomorrow in St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Oakland.

Mrs. Evans died Monday in a Contra Costa County hospital after a brief illness. She was 88.

She was born in San Francisco, and in recent years made her home in Lafayette.

She also is survived by another son, Jack W. Evans of Lafayette, and six grandchildren.

Friends may call at Hull's Walnut Creek Chapel, Walnut Creek, until 10:45 a.m. tomorrow. Burial will be in Cypress Lawn Cemetery, Colma.

MRS. PETHERICK

A memorial service for Georgina Petherick, long-time Sausalito resident, will be held at 10 a.m. Friday at Christ Episcopal Church in Sausalito.

Mrs. Petherick, 95, died Sunday in a local hospital after a short illness.

A native of San Francisco, she had lived in Sausalito 70 years, residing at 40 Cooper Lane.

She was a member of the Sausalito Woman's Club and the Episcopal Church.

Mrs. Petherick leaves no survivors.

Contributions are preferred to Christ Episcopal Church.

HAROLD ZINNS

Funeral for Harold J. Zinns of 200 Bolinas Road, Fairfax, will be tomorrow at 10 a.m. at St. Boniface Church, Golden Gate Avenue in San Francisco, when a Requiem Mass will be offered.

Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery, Colma. Rosary services will be recited tonight at the memorial chapel of Carew and English, Masonic and Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco.

Zinns, died at Marin General Hospital on Monday, shortly after collapsing at his home. He was 74.

A native of San Francisco, he had lived in Marin County for six years.

For the last seven years he had been office manager for the W. E. Joost Company in San Rafael.

He is survived by his wife, Virginia, of the family home in Fairfax, by two daughters, Virginia Marie Zinns of San Francisco and Nancy Ann Zinns of Oakland, by two brothers, Lucius A. Zinns of San Francisco, and Franklin J. Zinns of Oakland, and by two sisters, Enid Zinns of Oakland and Beatrice Kast of San Francisco.

JOHN SAMMON

John F. Sammon, father of Margaret Boucher of Novato, died yesterday in a San Francisco hospital after a brief illness. He was 86.

A retired clothing salesman, Sammon had lived in San Francisco since 1942. He was a native of Ireland.

He also is survived by two brothers, Thomas Sammon of San Francisco and Morris Sammon of Boyes Hot Springs, and one granddaughter.

Mass of the Resurrection will be offered at 10 a.m. tomorrow in St. Brigid's Church, San Francisco, followed by burial in Holy Cross Cemetery, Colma. The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. today at Keaton's Chapel of Marin, Novato.

CECIL CANNON

Cecil F. (Red) Cannon, longtime San Rafael tavern owner, died yesterday in a local hospital after a lengthy illness. He was 72.

A native of Pomeroy, Wash., he moved to California in 1918, and to Marin County 40 years ago. He lived at 45 Grove Lane, San Anselmo. For the past 20 years, he operated Dave's Tavern on B Street in San Rafael. He was a member of Bartenders Union Local 126 in San Rafael.

He is survived by two daughters, Patricia Bamberg of San Jose and Nadine Beem of Crescent City, six grandchildren, and five great-grandchildren.

Mass of the Resurrection will be celebrated at 10 a.m. Friday in St. Anselm's Church, San Anselmo, followed by burial in Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael.

The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the Harry M. Williams Mortuary, San Rafael.

MRS. CARBONE

Aurelia Carbone, a resident of San Rafael for more than 30 years, died yesterday in a local hospital after a brief illness. She was 86.

Mrs. Carbone was a native of Portofino, Italy. For the past three years she had made her home with a son, Roy Carbone, at 137 Holmes Street.

She also is survived by another son, Charles Carbone of Denver, Colo., two daughters, Cleo Paddock of San Diego and Elaine Regalia of Orland, Glenn County; a sister, Giustina Costa of San Francisco, 18 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

A Mass of the Resurrection will be offered at 10 a.m. Friday in Blessed Sacrament Church, Santa Venetia, followed by burial in Mount Olivet Cemetery. The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the Chapel of the Hills, San Anselmo.

The family prefers memorial gifts to the Marin Catholic High School or Blessed Sacrament School.

FRANCIS LOUGEE

Memorial service for Francis (Frank) E. Lougee of Tiburon, an advertising and banking executive, will be at 11:30 a.m. tomorrow in the Chapel of Grace, Grace Cathedral, San Francisco.

Lougee, 49, died Monday in San Francisco after a brief illness. He resided at 21 North Terrace.

A graduate of Lafayette College in Easton, Pa., he was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon and a cofounder of a campus literary magazine. He attended the University of Pennsylvania Graduate School of Arts and Sciences for two years.

During World War II, Lougee served in the Army Medical Corps and as a lieutenant in the infantry.

He was a member of St. Stephen's Parish in Belvedere.

He started his career in Philadelphia with an advertising agency, then moved to Marin to join a San Francisco agency. In 1962, he became vice president of marketing and public relation for Wells Fargo Bank, where he helped develop the stage coach checks. He was named Advertising Man of the Year in 1967 by the San Francisco Advertising Club.

Since leaving the bank, he was a partner in the marketing consulting firm of Lougee, Thornton and Associates and president of Communications in Finance, Inc.

Lougee is survived by his wife, the former Loraine Granicher of San Francisco; three sons, Wayne, Donald and Robert, all of San Francisco, and his mother, Mrs. Louis L. Lougee of Livermore.

His family asked donations to a favorite charity.

Former Marinite Stabbed To Death

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Eugino T. (Gino) Fagnani, longtime former San Rafael resident, was one of two persons stabbed to death last night in a San Francisco apartment house, according to San Francisco police.

Fagnani, 58, was manager of the building where the killings took place and two other persons were wounded, investigators reported.

Patrolman Jerry Golz said an apartment tenant called Fagnani to help evict a neighbor, James E. Walters, 31, from a party the tenant was giving. A few minutes later, Golz said, Walter reappeared at the party and fatally stabbed a guest, John More, who answered Walters's knock at the door.

Two other guests suffered hand and arm cuts in wresting a butcher knife away from Walters, Golz said.

Fagnani was found fatally wounded on a landing of a nearby staircase, police said. Walters was booked on suspicion of murder.

Fagnani was born in San Rafael, and was a veteran of Army service in World War II. He was a member of the Knights of Columbus and the Disabled American Veterans.

A graduate of St. Raphael School and San Rafael High School, Fagnani was associated with Marin County banks for many years before moving to San Francisco two years ago.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Caesar Fagnani of San Rafael; three daughters, Mrs. Ray Sadduth of Germany, Jean Fagnani of Stockton, and Joan Fagnani of South Dakota; a brother, Carlo Fagnani of Sonora, and three sisters, Mrs. Walter Gooch of Fairfield, Mrs. Rita Burger of San Rafael and Mrs. Arthur Broadway of Montague, Siskyou County.

A Mass of the Resurrection will be offered at 9 a.m. Friday in Mission San Rafael, followed by burial in Mount Olivet Cemetery. The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow in Keaton's Chapel, San Rafael.

inclusion of all of Big King and Little King mountains, right down to the edge of Magnolia Avenue. Little King and saddle between the mountains were not part of the Larkspur plan.

Wittenkeller said it had been included to provide complete separation of Larkspur and Kentfield.

The inclusion of Little King was protested by attorney Wallace Myers, acting for the Tiscornia Estate's executrix, Alice B. Vincilione. He said she wants and is entitled to lower the mountain by 30 feet and use the fill for development of Magnolia Avenue flatlands. Some 600 acres are involved, he said.

He reminded commissioners that within Marin County there are 53,000 acres of open sapce at Point Reyes National Seashore, 40,000 acres in the new Golden Gate Recreational Area and 16,000 acres on Marin Municipal Water District land.

"Just how much land do you need to look at?" he asked.

Myers said buying all the land in the Northridge plan would cost at least $3 million, "and it seems to me it most certainly would not be good for the people of Marin to own all the land or you won't have a substantial tax base at all."

Russ Lauterwasser told the commission he owns 15 acres of land named in the plan, and couldn't understand its inclusion in a ridge plan since its elevation was about 25 feet. He also asked when property owners could expect compensation, since their land was frozen.

Stout said by adopting the Northridge open space plan the city wasn't freezing the land, but merely endorsing the concept. Until zoning is adopted, development is permissible, he said.

Not so, cried attorney Myers, waving a copy of the Government Code in the air, and citing a section which said no building permits or subdivision maps may be approved unless they conform with a city's adopted open space plan. "If you adopt this open space plan you're freezing it," he claimed.

In the end the three commissioners voted to adopt only those areas of the proposed plan that are common to the city's open space plan.

They decided to set up a joint meeting later in the month with the city council, the park and recreation commission, Wittenkeller and the consultants Abergast and Newton, "to resolve the discrepancies in the two plans."

They also decided to get the city attorney's opinion on whether they would effectively be freezing all land contained in Northridge by adopting the plan.

TRUMAN

was sending U.S. troops to Korea in a "police action" that kept Communist soldiers from taking over territory south of the 38th parallel. He said that decision overshadowed all others, including his order to drop the atomic bomb on Japan.

The atomic bomb order, Truman said, "was purely a military matter that saved thousands of American lives. No other course was conceivable."

Other momentous decisions Truman made during his two terms, 1945-1953, included:

—The go-ahead for development of the hydrogen bomb.

—The "Truman Doctrine" to keep Russia out of southern Europe.

—The creation of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

A Thief Takes Christmas Gifts

mate of the tonnage of bombs dropped since the Command did not specify how many "more than 1,000" tactical missions were flown or exactly how many B52 strikes there were. The fighter-bombers can carry about six tons of bombs each and the B52s, which usually strike in groups of three, 30 tons each. The North Vietnamese delegation to the Paris talks said 40,000 tons of bombs were dropped last week, but there was no way to check this either.

The U.S. Command spokesman said the 72 targets listed were not the only ones hit and he refused to say if any civilian facilities had been struck. The command in the past has said no civilian facilities were targeted. The list of targets included every major airport in the Hanoi-Haiphong area except Gia Lam, Hanoi's civilian facility, and Communist reports said it too was hit. The country's four largest thermal power plants were also on the list.

The missions listed in the command report did not include fighters flying cover for the bombers and missile-firing planes which try to knock out Communist antiaircraft fire.

Reports from Communist and neutral news agencies based in the North Vietnamese capital spoke of widespread devastation in bomb strikes in and around Hanoi Tuesday night and today. One report said U.S. warplanes blasted Hanoi's international airport Tuesday night, demolishing civilian homes near it and leaving the area "looking like en earthquake had struck it."

The Command said U.S. warplanes pounded the North for the second consecutive day today following a 36-hour Christmas bombing pause and reports from Guam and Thailand indicated there would be more strikes tonight.

The U.S. Command spokesmen said today warplanes aimed only at military targets or facilities supporting North Vietnam's military effort. The report listed no damage to civilian facilities.

12 Graduate From Academy

Officers and their departments include Glenn A. Accornero and Mark B. Ihde, Belvedere; Keith B. Gundersen, Larkspur; Ugo F. Innocenti, Novato; Lawrence E. Woodall, San Anselmo; Michael G. Bunker, Gary F. Frugoli and Gerald D. Hasser, San Rafael; Ronald L. Reier, Tiburon; Donald M. Price, Wayne G. Parker and William A. Lane, Petaluma.

Gallinas Valley Moratorium Plea Scheduled

The Marin County Board of Supervisors, meeting tomorrow at 9 a.m. at Civic Center, will consider a request from a citizens' planning committee that a six-month building moratorium be placed over the Las Gallinas Valley.

The request, submitted by the Las Gallinas Valley Master Plan Committee, claims the group needs time to "research the needs and goals of the population living within this watershed area."

Construction of single-family homes would be exempted under the moratorium, which requires four favorable votes. Requests for moratoriums have been turned down in the past.

Tomorrow's session is slated to go only until 11:30 a.m. when the board will adjourn for a luncheon party of county officials honoring outgoing Supervisor Louis H. Baar.

Heliport Office Is Burglarized

The office of San Francisco Oakland Helicopter Airlines in the Richardson Bay heliport was burglarized of $150 in8cash and airline tickets during the night.

Marin sheriff's deputies said entrance to the building, at 240 Redwood Highway north of Sausalito, was gained by kicking in a front door leading to the office. Metal cabinets were pried open, deputies reported.

The burglary occurred between 10:30 p.m. yesterday and 6 a.m. today.

OBITUARIES

Builder John E. Kenney Dies In Oakland At 67

John Edward Kenney, whose contracting company built some 5,000 homes throughout the Bay Area, died yesterday in an Oakland hospital after a long illness. He was 67.

A native of Montana, he was graduated in 1927 from Stanford University with a degree in business administration. For the next three years he was head swimming coach at Oregon State University.

Kenney then joined the Federal Housing Administration, and helped set up its first offices on the West Coast.

He lived in San Anselmo during World War II, then moved to Oakland after the war to open his contracting business.

His most recent Marin proposal is for 2,300 units of townhouses and two and three-story condominiums on 700 acres at Black Point.

Kenney also was a limited partner in the Oakland Raiders, and a former president of the Associated Home Builders of the Greater East Bay. He was a member of the Sequoia Country Club in the East Bay and a contributor to various projects at Stanford Medical School.

He is survived by his wife, Lillian; two sons, Jack Kenney of Las Vegas and Gerald Kenney of Piedmont; two grandchildren, two brothers, Frank Kenney of Detroit, Mich., and James Kenney of Silverton, Ore.; a sister, Lucille Griffith of Los Angeles, and two grandchildren.

Funeral will be at 1 p.m. on Friday in the Albert Brown Mortuary, Oakland. Entombment will be in Mountain View Mausoleum, Oakland. His family asked that memorial contributions go to the Memorial Fund at Stanford University, 301 Encina Hall, Stanford, Calif. 94305.

MANAGER

will be given 30 days paid leave when he leaves office Monday.

"His proposal is financially impossible," said Mayor Bettini after the closed session, during which the council consulted with McCown, Bielser and Averett. "It just can't be done," he said, adding that the posts of city treasurer and finance director had been combined last February "because of economic feasibility."

"Our city would have to be a good deal larger to justify both a city treasurer and a finance director," said Councilman John A. Miskimen. "We did it previously and it didn't work out."

McCown, of 17 Truman Drive, Novato, is a retired Air Force colonel who had served as finance officer with the Army and Air Force from 1935 to 1963. He has served as director of finance for Air Materiel Command, Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio; comptroller of Air Material Depot, Chateauroux, France; comptroller of the Fourth Air Force, Hamilton Air Force Base and as director of accounting and finance, Air Force Systems Command, Andrews Air Force Base, Washington, D.C.

Prior to his appointment as San Rafael finance director in 1968, McCown was finance director of San Pablo, Contra Costa County.

Bielser, of 590 Whitewood Drive, San Rafael, served as assistant to the city manager in Covina, Los Angeles County, before being appointed as San Rafael assistant city manager. He also served for four years as administrative assistant to the city manager of Palo Alto.

He received his bachelor's degree in public administration from California State University at San Francisco in 1965. He has also attended the College of San Mateo and the University of Southern California.

A former board member of the Marin County Economic Opportunity Council, Bielser was instrumental in sparking the federal investigation which last year revealed EOC misuse of $100,000.

Bielser is executive director of the San Rafael Redevelopment Agency.

FRANCES HOWARD

Private funeral for Frances B. Howard of Stinson Beach was held today in Mill Valley.

Mrs. Howard, 90, died Saturday in a local hospital after a long illness.

A native of Sonora, Tuolumne County, she had moved from San Francisco to Marin nine years ago and resided on Las Baulinas Avenue.

Mrs. Howard is survived by two daughters, Florence Chessman of Stinson Beach and Belle Stanley of Dallas, Tex.; two sisters, Eugenia Kerker of Martinez and Sister Rita Dolores of the College of Notre Dame in Indiana and one grandchild.

BLANCHE EVANS

Funeral for Blanche I. Evans, mother of San Rafael advertising firm executive Robert T. Evans, will be held at 11:30 a.m. tomorrow in St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Oakland.

Mrs. Evans died Monday in a Contra Costa County hospital after a brief illness. She was 88.

She was born in San Francisco, and in recent years made her home in Lafayette.

She also is survived by another son, Jack W. Evans of Lafayette, and six grandchildren.

Friends may call at Hull's Walnut Creek Chapel, Walnut Creek, until 10:45 a.m. tomorrow. Burial will be in Cypress Lawn Cemetery, Colma.

MRS. PETHERICK

A memorial service for Georgina Petherick, long-time Sausalito resident, will be held at 10 a.m. Friday at Christ Episcopal Church in Sausalito.

Mrs. Petherick, 95, died Sunday in a local hospital after a short illness.

A native of San Francisco, she had lived in Sausalito 70 years, residing at 40 Cooper Lane.

She was a member of the Sausalito Woman's Club and the Episcopal Church.

Mrs. Petherick leaves no survivors.

Contributions are preferred to Christ Episcopal Church.

HAROLD ZINNS

Funeral for Harold J. Zinns of 200 Bolinas Road, Fairfax, will be tomorrow at 10 a.m. at St. Boniface Church, Golden Gate Avenue in San Francisco, when a Requiem Mass will be offered.

Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery, Colma. Rosary services will be recited tonight at the memorial chapel of Carew and English, Masonic and Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco.

Zinns, died at Marin General Hospital on Monday, shortly after collapsing at his home. He was 74.

A native of San Francisco, he had lived in Marin County for six years.

For the last seven years he had been office manager for the W. E. Joost Company in San Rafael.

He is survived by his wife, Virginia, of the family home in Fairfax, by two daughters, Virginia Marie Zinns of San Francisco and Nancy Ann Zinns of Oakland, by two brothers, Lucius A. Zinns of San Francisco, and Franklin J. Zinns of Oakland, and by two sisters, Enid Zinns of Oakland and Beatrice Kast of San Francisco.

JOHN SAMMON

John F. Sammon, father of Margaret Boucher of Novato, died yesterday in a San Francisco hospital after a brief illness. He was 86.

A retired clothing salesman, Sammon had lived in San Francisco since 1942. He was a native of Ireland.

He also is survived by two brothers, Thomas Sammon of San Francisco and Morris Sammon of Boyes Hot Springs, and one granddaughter.

Mass of the Resurrection will be offered at 10 a.m. tomorrow in St. Brigid's Church, San Francisco, followed by burial in Holy Cross Cemetery, Colma. The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. today at Keaton's Chapel of Marin, Novato.

CECIL CANNON

Cecil F. (Red) Cannon, longtime San Rafael tavern owner, died yesterday in a local hospital after a lengthy illness. He was 72.

A native of Pomeroy, Wash., he moved to California in 1918, and to Marin County 40 years ago. He lived at 45 Grove Lane, San Anselmo. For the past 20 years, he operated Dave's Tavern on B Street in San Rafael. He was a member of Bartenders Union Local 126 in San Rafael.

He is survived by two daughters, Patricia Bamberg of San Jose and Nadine Beem of Crescent City, six grandchildren, and five great-grandchildren.

Mass of the Resurrection will be celebrated at 10 a.m. Friday in St. Anselm's Church, San Anselmo, followed by burial in Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael.

The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the Harry M. Williams Mortuary, San Rafael.

MRS. CARBONE

Aurelia Carbone, a resident of San Rafael for more than 30 years, died yesterday in a local hospital after a brief illness. She was 86.

Mrs. Carbone was a native of Portofino, Italy. For the past three years she had made her home with a son, Roy Carbone, at 137 Holmes Street.

She also is survived by another son, Charles Carbone of Denver, Colo., two daughters, Cleo Paddock of San Diego and Elaine Regalia of Orland, Glenn County; a sister, Giustina Costa of San Francisco, 18 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

A Mass of the Resurrection will be offered at 10 a.m. Friday in Blessed Sacrament Church, Santa Venetia, followed by burial in Mount Olivet Cemetery. The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the Chapel of the Hills, San Anselmo.

The family prefers memorial gifts to the Marin Catholic High School or Blessed Sacrament School.

FRANCIS LOUGEE

Memorial service for Francis (Frank) E. Lougee of Tiburon, an advertising and banking executive, will be at 11:30 a.m. tomorrow in the Chapel of Grace, Grace Cathedral, San Francisco.

Lougee, 49, died Monday in San Francisco after a brief illness. He resided at 21 North Terrace.

A graduate of Lafayette College in Easton, Pa., he was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon and a cofounder of a campus literary magazine. He attended the University of Pennsylvania Graduate School of Arts and Sciences for two years.

During World War II, Lougee served in the Army Medical Corps and as a lieutenant in the infantry.

He was a member of St. Stephen's Parish in Belvedere.

He started his career in Philadelphia with an advertising agency, then moved to Marin to join a San Francisco agency. In 1962, he became vice president of marketing and public relation for Wells Fargo Bank, where he helped develop the stage coach checks. He was named Advertising Man of the Year in 1967 by the San Francisco Advertising Club.

Since leaving the bank, he was a partner in the marketing consulting firm of Lougee, Thornton and Associates and president of Communications in Finance, Inc.

Lougee is survived by his wife, the former Loraine Granicher of San Francisco; three sons, Wayne, Donald and Robert, all of San Francisco, and his mother, Mrs. Louis L. Lougee of Livermore.

His family asked donations to a favorite charity.

Board Sets Hearing On Financing

The San Rafael Board of Education, concerned about the effects of current state legislation on school financing, last night set 10 a.m. Jan. 10 in the San Rafael High School auditorium for a public hearing with state officials on the matter.

At issue is state Senate Bill 90, which increases sales tax while eliminating most special education taxes, according to Supt. John F. Plank.

Plank said the bill also places a lid on income a school district may spend per pupil. Under the measure, the city's elementary school district will be limited to per-pupil expenses of $1,158 and the high school district to per-pupil expenses of $1,258 next year, or about a 6 per cent increase over expenses allowed this year, Plank said.

Board President Lawrence I. Kramer said today he viewed the measure with concern, adding that the board "would be even more concerned if we could understand it."

Kramer said that though the high school district might receive up to $300,000 more in revenue next year from the state, and the elementary district about $80,000 less than this year, the elimination of special education taxes will probably offset the net gain.

The San Rafael Board of Education also:

MEETING — Said some district officials will meet with officials from other school districts in Sacramento on Jan. 10 to discuss makeup of school boards when one board controls two districts of varying populace.

CHILDHOOD — Said it will study state guidelines on early childhood education.

NEW COURSES — Approved new courses in the high school district: archaeology, North American Indian cultures, and legal, medical and office typewriting.

FRINGE BENEFITS — Tabled a proposal for a new board policy on fringe benefits for part-time employees.

TRUCKS — Declared three trucks as excess equipment and offered them for sale.

CLOSED SESSION — Took no action in a closed session on a new principal for Coleman School. Principal Edwina Codoni has announced she will retire in June.

PERSONNEL — Took the following personnel actions: Appointed Alice Freitas and Matthew Berger as instructional aides at $2.72 per hour; Julian Clark as a bus driver at $3.40 per hour; Jack Hokanson, custodian promotion, $681 per month; John O'Shaughnessy, custodian promotion, $648 per month; Edward Tait, maintenance man, $715 per month and Ahti Tuohino, maintenance supervisor, $14,652 annually.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 7:30 p.m. Jan. 9.

Boy Is Arrested After Overdose

A 16-year-old San Rafael boy was arrested last night after he overdosed on narcotics he allegedly stole during the Christmas weekend from a Larkspur pharmacy.

The burglary of the narcotics and $326 from the Marin Center Pharmacy, 1321 South Eliseo Drive, was discovered when the pharmacy opened yesterday morning.

Both the narcotics and cash were recovered by sheriff's deputies when they arrested the boy at his home, Larkspur police reported. They said the boy apparently was alone when he broke into the pharmacy.

The boy's name was withheld on a standing order by Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson.

Parking Lot Switch For Ferry Approved

The Golden Gate Bridge District, which sank more than $40,000 into its first Sausalito parking lot for ferry commuters, will move its lot one block south on Monday.

The Sausalito City Council objected earlier this month that the district was shifting the lot without first seeking city approval, but the staffs of the city and district apparently worked out their differences.

The city's primary objection was to the traffic problem posed if commuters used the Easterby Street access to the new lot. District officials, however, agreed to direct traffic via Harbor Drive — the same route used for the existing lot.

The new lot, leased from the Army Corps of Engineers, will have room for 155 cars, up 30 from the capacity of the existing lot. The district will pay the Army $250 a month for the lot, pending negotiations on a final rental figure, with a maximum of $833 a month.

The district has budgeted $12,000 to upgrade the new lot.

The present lot has been leased for the past 29 months from Donlon J. Arques, who was paid $15,433 in rent and $4,727 for property taxes. In addition, he will keep $20,000 in improvements, which included clearing the site and paving and fencing it.

The district decided to move its lot when Arques hiked the rent in September from $4,400 a year plus taxes (about $2,000 a year) to $14,400 a year, including taxes.

The Army lease can be canceled on 30 days notice.

Board Sets Hearing On Financing

The San Rafael Board of Education, concerned about the effects of current state legislation on school financing, last night set 10 a.m. Jan. 10 in the San Rafael High School auditorium for a public hearing with state officials on the matter.

At issue is state Senate Bill 90, which increases sales tax while eliminating most special education taxes, according to Supt. John F. Plank.

Plank said the bill also places a lid on income a school district may spend per pupil. Under the measure, the city's elementary school district will be limited to per-pupil expenses of $1,158 and the high school district to per-pupil expenses of $1,258 next year, or about a 6 per cent increase over expenses allowed this year, Plank said.

Board President Lawrence I. Kramer said today he viewed the measure with concern, adding that the board "would be even more concerned if we could understand it."

Kramer said that though the high school district might receive up to $300,000 more in revenue next year from the state, and the elementary district about $80,000 less than this year, the elimination of special education taxes will probably offset the net gain.

The San Rafael Board of Education also:

MEETING — Said some district officials will meet with officials from other school districts in Sacramento on Jan. 10 to discuss makeup of school boards when one board controls two districts of varying populace.

CHILDHOOD — Said it will study state guidelines on early childhood education.

NEW COURSES — Approved new courses in the high school district: archaeology, North American Indian cultures, and legal, medical and office typewriting.

FRINGE BENEFITS — Tabled a proposal for a new board policy on fringe benefits for part-time employees.

TRUCKS — Declared three trucks as excess equipment and offered them for sale.

CLOSED SESSION — Took no action in a closed session on a new principal for Coleman School. Principal Edwina Codoni has announced she will retire in June.

PERSONNEL — Took the following personnel actions: Appointed Alice Freitas and Matthew Berger as instructional aides at $2.72 per hour; Julian Clark as a bus driver at $3.40 per hour; Jack Hokanson, custodian promotion, $681 per month; John O'Shaughnessy, custodian promotion, $648 per month; Edward Tait, maintenance man, $715 per month and Ahti Tuohino, maintenance supervisor, $14,652 annually.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 7:30 p.m. Jan. 9.

Boy Is Arrested After Overdose

A 16-year-old San Rafael boy was arrested last night after he overdosed on narcotics he allegedly stole during the Christmas weekend from a Larkspur pharmacy.

The burglary of the narcotics and $326 from the Marin Center Pharmacy, 1321 South Eliseo Drive, was discovered when the pharmacy opened yesterday morning.

Both the narcotics and cash were recovered by sheriff's deputies when they arrested the boy at his home, Larkspur police reported. They said the boy apparently was alone when he broke into the pharmacy.

The boy's name was withheld on a standing order by Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson.

New Policy On Sampling Of Blood

Marin Hospital District directors last night agreed to admit county laboratory technicians to Marin General Hospital to take blood alcohol samples from patients injured in traffic accidents if law enforcement agencies request the tests.

Ray K. Bollinger, hospital administrator, said the approval was subject to its attorney's opinion, to its insurance carrier's approval, and to an indemnification and hold-harmless agreement with the county.

According to Dr. Donovan O. Cooke, head of the county health care services, the blood alcohol samples were previously drawn by Marin Medical Laboratory staff at the hospital. Under the new agreement technicians under contract to the county will be on call to police, highway patrol and sheriff's officers.

Actual testing of the blood alcohol samples will be done by the county's new crime lab, said Dr. Cooke.

The Marin Hospital District board also:

GIFTS — Heard that a donation of $23,393.16 by the Schultz Foundation had primarily been used to purchase sophisticated equipment for the coronary care unit, helping complete the concept of combining acute and intermediate care.

LEASE — Signed a contract with the county for lease of the ground floor and Unit B of the Community Mental Health Center; the cost of $80,064 a year covers maintenance, housekeeping, light, gas, heat and janitorial services.

REMODELLING — Approved remodelling the waiting and storage addition to the radiology department to cost about $12,000, and enlarging the third floor nursing station for around $4,000.

STAFF — Reappointed Dr. William L. Clark of Mill Valley as hospital chief of staff, and Dr. Martin Albion of Greenbrae as assistant chief of staff, both for a two year period.

ELECTION — Reelected George H. Folsom of Sausalito as president; Thomas K. Proctor of Belvedere, vice president, and Marion C. Ibach, secretary for the coming year.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to its next meeting on Jan. 30 at 7 p.m. at the hospital.

Thieves Smash Window, Take Camera, Lenses

Fast-working burglars smashed a Novato store window early yesterday, and escaped with $4,415 worth of cameras and lenses, Novato police reported today.

Officers said they responded at 2 a.m. in less than two minutes to a burglar alarm at the New Novato Camera Store, 1301 Grant Avenue, but the thieves had already fled after cleaning out showcases. A plate glass window was smashed with a two-by-four plank to gain entry.

'Sounding Board' Topic Is Set

Whether the theory of divine creation should be kept out of California science textbooks will be discusssd tomorrow at 9 a.m. on the KTIM "Marin Sounding Board" program.

Speaking will be Dr. Gordon R. Chan, biologist at College of Marin; Very Rev. C. Julian Bartlett, dean of Grace Cathedral; Alice M. Vipiano, San Rafael resident and mother of two school-age children, and Rev. James Boswell Pastor of Christian Disciple Church of Carmichael.

Questions may be phoned in during tomorrow's broadcast. The program, moderated by Kitty Oppenheimer, will be rebroadcast by taperecording, Sunday at 10 a.m.

Resignation Of Health Director Brings Protests By Scientists

WASHINGTON (UPI) — About 1,000 government scientists have sent a letter to President Nixon in protest of "the unprecedented, forced resignation" of Dr. Robert Q. Marston as director of the National Institutes of Health (NIH), a spokesman said Wednesday.

"As physicians and scientists at NIH we deeply regret the unprecedented forced resignation on Dec. 8, 1972, of the director of NIH," said the letter from the NIH Inter-assembly Council of the Assemblies of Scientists. "This is the first time in the history of the NIH that its director has been made to resign shortly after a presidential election."

Associates said Marston wanted to remain on the job as chief of the largest biomedical research center in the world.

Marston, like several thousand other top government officials, submitted a requested pro forma resignation to the White House after the Nov. 7 election to give Nixon an opportunity to reorganize the bureaucracy during his second term. Marston was told earlier this month that his resignation would be accepted.

NIH has a $2.1 billion annual budget for research grants and fellowships and health manpower education.

"We know the President is going to call the shots and it is not to our benefit to antagonize him and it wouldn't be to the benefit of health either," Dr. Robert Adelstein, a spokesman, said in a telephone interview. "This is a respectful thing to bring our concern to his attention more than anything else."

Adelstein, a research section chief with the National Heart and Lung Institute, said about 1,000 scientists from most of the 10 NIH institutes are represented by the Inter-Assembly Council.

"It is not fair to say all the scientists here are up in arms but I think a lot of them are upset by what was done," Adelstein said.

The NIH medical researchers, like some private medical groups, are worried that Marston's successor will be primarily a manager without either the interests of basic research or the support of national health organizations.

"We express our strong hope that his successor will be chosen not only for his skills as an administrator but for his stature in the fields of basic and clinical research," the letter said.

Marston, whose successor has not been named, has agreed to remain at NIH "in one capacity or another" at least until next summer.

Other top health officials in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) who have resigned since Nixon's victory include Dr. Merlin K. DuVal, assistant secretary for health; Dr. Vernon E. Wilson, administrator of the Health Services and Mental Health Administration, and Surgeon General Jesse L. Steinfeld.

School Bus Keys Reported Stolen

A prowler took a set of school bus ignition and door keys from a parked Novato School District bus sometime between Friday and yesterday, Novato police reported today.

The keys had been left in the bus's glove compartment, at the district parking lot on Olive Avenue.

Sacramento Fire Could Be Arson

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —Investigators include arson as one of the possible causes of a fire which destroyed the headquarters of the California National Guard.

The blaze also caused "extensive" damage to the $10 million headquarters building of the Department of Motor Vehicles, which housed the guard and the state Military Department.

Maj. Gen. Glenn C. Ames, guard commander, said Tuesday that the National Guard for several years "has lived continuously in an atmosphere of threat to its armories and other installations."

MEDAL WINNER

Bravery Of Marin Soldier Described

A Terra Linda High School graduate — presently visiting his and his wife's families in Marin — has returned to Marin with a hatful of medals won in Vietnam, including the Silver Star, the nation's second highest award for valor.

The medals, recently received by Army Sp/5 Geoffrey C. Jones, were in recognition of his combat role as a helicopter crew chief during his tour of duty in Vietnam from April 1970 to February 1971.

The citation accompanying the Silver Star describes his "gallantry . . . in conflict with an armed hostile force" Jan. 16 and 17 in 1971.

"Jones distinguished himself by exceptionally valorous actions in sustained air and ground combat during a two-day tactical operation in an area of much enemy activity.

"As his aircraft came to high hover over the pickup site, he was struck in the arms and on his protective chest plate by enemy machine gun bullets. Despite his painful wounds, he nevertheless continued to fire on the enemy positions with his machine gun right up to the moment his ship crashed.

"Wounded and injured in the crash, he courageously fought his way through enemy groundfire toward the Allied position. Although again wounded by enemy machine gun fire, he continued to fight his way forward and finally reached the friendly position.

"Although wounded twice, he helped defend the Allied position throughout the afternoon and night and into the early morning hours of the next day. Under constant threat of being overrun by the numerically superior enemy forces he fought valiantly and endured the pain from his wounds until relief arrived."

Jones also received the Air Medal "for meritorious achievement . . . in aerial support of combat ground forces" during "more than 25 aerial missions over hostile territory."

He was awarded the Army Commendation Medal for meritorious service during his tour of duty in Vietnam and the Purple Heart for the wounds he suffered there.

He and his wife, the former Christine Stallone, have been visiting their parents in San Rafael and Terra Linda, Mr. and Mrs. James E. Jones of 380 Channing Way and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Stallone of 432 Montecillo Road. They return to Colorado tomorrow, with their 8-month-old son, Chad.

Jones who has served in the Army since graduating from Terra Linda High five years ago, expects his present tour of duty to end in October of 1974, at which time he and his wife plan to return to settle once more in Marin.

House Of Cans Idea Patented

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Maybe you've seen that television commercial where a group of young men are trying to build a house but are too busy drinking beer to care about the walls collapsing.

Alvin Miller, a University of Arizona professor of architecture, has a better idea—using the beer cans themselves to build walls and even low-cost homes.

Miller said he has designed a housing shelter for four persons using beer cans which could cost as little as $3,500. He said his design, soon to be patented, calls for stacking the cans into a mold which is then covered with a mixture of cement and fiberglass.

Environmentalist Group Takes Behr's Staff Head

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — The top staff man for Marin's state senator has resigned to take a newly created position as executive director of the Planning and Conservation League, a statewide federation of organizations promoting environmental legislation.

William H. Press will take his new post next week. His replacement as area coordinator for Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, has not been announced.

Press, 32, managed Behr's 1970 election campaign and has since headed his staff.

He is a graduate of the University of Niagara, N.Y., and has a master's degree in theology from the University of Fibourg, Switzerland.

Press and his wife, Carol, and son, Mark, 2, live in Sacramento.

Drill Instructor Burns Recruit

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — A drill instructor at the Marine Corps "boot camp" here was relieved of his duties after he allegedly poured scalding water on the back of a recruit, sending him to the hospital.

A spokesman at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot said Pvt. Sebastian Herrera Jr., 20, San Diego, was in satisfactory condition at the depot dispensary.

The instructor was not identified and details of the incident were not released.

CAREER EDUCATION

Job Skill For All Is The Goal

them class lectures on anything relating to law enforcement," explained Officer Horn, pointing to a blackboard on which Police Chief David L. McIntosh had explained the workings of the U.S. Supreme Court, complete with notations on the most liberal and most conservative judges.

"They learn desk procedures, answer phones, take complaints, dispatch officers, run the teletype," said Horn, "and ride along with officers in patrol cars."

"Basically they are required to know the codes and what to do in an emergency situation . . . and in this area we really emphasize the fact that everything they do is confidential."

The students love the program, and many go on to the College of Marin's police science courses - and continue in its police cadet program. Police like the program, too, because it changes students' attitudes about police, and they find the sentiments rub off on other students.

In fact, it is in this very area of cooperation and real assistance between the world of work and the world of school that the best hope for the future is thought to lie. Every educator involved is delighted and overwhelmed at the support emerging from industry.

Labor leaders, corporations, banks, doctors and dentists and just about anyone who is involved in employment, enters the picture. Many come together through the Marin County Industry Education Council. Others work through the individual high school districts and their career guidance programs.

"If the community doesn't get involved we won't have any career education," said Marcia Greil, county schools career counselor.

The community is getting involved and bringing know-how and common sense to the education field which is often accused of being out of touch.

For instance, before the Regional Occupation Program sets up a new course, a job market survey is conducted. All the related businesses in the Bay Area are canvassed. Questions include how many people they employ, their rate of turnover, and whether they would employ specially trained personnel - that's how some of the new classes for 1973 came about . . . the surveys indicated loads of jobs available in the area for trained boat and motorcycle repairmen, and for auto air conditioning mechanics.

This cooperation isn't limited to private concerns. The state runs a program with Tamalpais High School District students working on Angel Island as trainee rangers. WEEP students at College of Marin work at San Quentin prison. The county helps out with diverse skills - some students do their exploratory work program observing in the public defender's office, for example.

There are career guidance centers at all three of the Tamalpais High School District's schools, complete offices with up-to-date information and counselling on jobs that students can visit whenever they want. In fact, the district's career education program will get national attention in February in a presentation at the American Personnel and Guidance Association convention.

CONSTRUCTION — Inspecting townhouses under construction in Corte Madera are Bob Foulton, Mike Herman, Ted Authauger and Chet Gibson, Redwood High School seniors enrolled in the construction industry exploratory work experience program — they aren't allowed to perform any actual work, since educators and employers alike agree that "it isn't right for a kid to do productive work for no pay" but they've observed all facets of the industry, guided in their learning by union officials.

In his proposal to the national group, Robert Maher, work experience teacher at Drake High School, wrote: "Many of our college graduates are educated but are no better prepared to face the realities of life than they were when they left high school . . ."

Listing the ways in which Marin is facing the problem, Maher explained: "It was clear to those of us in Marin County that educators, businessmen and government had a responsibility to provide the type of career education which would permit our citizens to live more effectively within our society.

"It was our job, working together, to find the best way to creating an effective and meaningful system - not by superimposing new and costly structures on top of existing ones - but rather by integerating this particular part of the educational process into our present system."

Educators are trying to make sure that duplication and overlap don't occur. In fact, the Regional Occupation Program can't offer courses that the high schools or College of Marin already provides.

However, some observers have the impression that integrating career education into the present system may tend to multiply the costly duplication of services and facilities which exists ad infinitum in Marin County. Thus, each high school and the College of Marin possesses expensively equipped vocational training facilities, from metal shop to typewriters to sewing machines. It is to be hoped they are all used to capacity.

To the uninvolved, it might make better sense for one high school to concentrate on data processing, for instance, while another specialized in automotive engineering and yet another in the health care field.

Yet, given the rivalry between high school districts that undoubtedly exists, there is no way this relinquishment of programs is likely to happen in the foreseeable future. This is understandable since the school districts are tied to attendance boundaries and local taxes.

Bette Wallace, a Tamalpais High School District trustee and member of the Industry Education Council, paid a visit this summer to the Skyline Center in Dallas, Texas, a $21 million showplace that serves as a career education center for the entire city.

She concluded that Marin County doesn't need, and can't afford, that kind of facility yet. "But what I would really like to see is a very specialized career development center to help develop programs and bring resource people from the community in," she said. "This planning center would work right from the ninth grade to adult education."

The center she envisages would cater to 300-400 students, and expand the on-site training that presently is represented in embryo form by would-be neuro-surgeons working in the delivery room at Marin General Hospital.

Thousands Of Workers Evacuated From Hanoi

SAIGON (UPI) —Diplomats who know Hanoi said today that U.S. bombing brought new austerity to the North Vietnam capital and the evacuation of all citizens considered nonessential to the war effort.

They said many diplomatic missions in Hanoi plan to reduce their personnel if American bombing continues beyond Jan. 1.

School children and the elderly were evacuated from Hanoi when President Nixon renewed the bombing campaign last April 6, the diplomats said.

Thousands more non-essential workers left last week when Nixon ordered B52 bombers to strike targets in and around the city, leaving only the most needed workers and servicemen in a city which once boasted a population exceeding one million.

But the diplomats denied reports by some American sources in Saigon that Hanoi authorities had ordered the complete evacuation of the city.

"I don't think they would ever do that," one diplomat said.

"In the first place, they need many people to support the war effort in factories and so on," he said. "In the second place, it would cause tremendous morale problems among the population to learn that the capital had been totally evacuated."

The diplomats who discussed the situation in Hanoi are members of governments with missions in Hanoi. In at least one case, they were in direct contact with the North Vietnamese capital as recently as Christmas Day.

The diplomats said that Christmas in Hanoi had little of the gaiety of past years. Although Nixon at the last moment stopped the bombing for 36 hours, he did not make news of the halt public.

What do doctors recommend for patients in pain?

Doctors all over the country dispense over 50,000,000 of these tablets to their patients each year.

There are many medications a physician or dentist can prescribe for pain. Some are narcotic, many are available only on prescription. But there is one pain reliever, available without prescription, doctors dispense again and again . . . Anacin.

Each year, doctors give up to 50,000,000 Anacin tablets to their patients in pain. If doctors think enough about Anacin to dispense all these tablets, what better recommendation can you ask when you are in pain?

You see, Anacin contains more of the pain reliever doctors recommend most than any other leading tablet.

Headache and dental pain is relieved incredibly fast; minor pains of arthritis are dependably eased for hours; even the aches and pains of colds and flu respond to Anacin. So the tension and depression that can be caused by such pain will be relieved too. And millions take Anacin without stomach upset.

When you're in pain, why don't you follow the practice of so many doctors and take the tablet a doctor might give you in his own office. Take Anacin.

CAREER EDUCATION

Job Skill For All Is The Goal

them class lectures on anything relating to law enforcement," explained Officer Horn, pointing to a blackboard on which Police Chief David L. McIntosh had explained the workings of the U.S. Supreme Court, complete with notations on the most liberal and most conservative judges.

"They learn desk procedures, answer phones, take complaints, dispatch officers, run the teletype," said Horn, "and ride along with officers in patrol cars."

"Basically they are required to know the codes and what to do in an emergency situation . . . and in this area we really emphasize the fact that everything they do is confidential."

The students love the program, and many go on to the College of Marin's police science courses - and continue in its police cadet program. Police like the program, too, because it changes students' attitudes about police, and they find the sentiments rub off on other students.

In fact, it is in this very area of cooperation and real assistance between the world of work and the world of school that the best hope for the future is thought to lie. Every educator involved is delighted and overwhelmed at the support emerging from industry.

Labor leaders, corporations, banks, doctors and dentists and just about anyone who is involved in employment, enters the picture. Many come together through the Marin County Industry Education Council. Others work through the individual high school districts and their career guidance programs.

"If the community doesn't get involved we won't have any career education," said Marcia Greil, county schools career counselor.

The community is getting involved and bringing know-how and common sense to the education field which is often accused of being out of touch.

For instance, before the Regional Occupation Program sets up a new course, a job market survey is conducted. All the related businesses in the Bay Area are canvassed. Questions include how many people they employ, their rate of turnover, and whether they would employ specially trained personnel - that's how some of the new classes for 1973 came about . . . the surveys indicated loads of jobs available in the area for trained boat and motorcycle repairmen, and for auto air conditioning mechanics.

This cooperation isn't limited to private concerns. The state runs a program with Tamalpais High School District students working on Angel Island as trainee rangers. WEEP students at College of Marin work at San Quentin prison. The county helps out with diverse skills - some students do their exploratory work program observing in the public defender's office, for example.

There are career guidance centers at all three of the Tamalpais High School District's schools, complete offices with up-to-date information and counselling on jobs that students can visit whenever they want. In fact, the district's career education program will get national attention in February in a presentation at the American Personnel and Guidance Association convention.

CONSTRUCTION — Inspecting townhouses under construction in Corte Madera are Bob Foulton, Mike Herman, Ted Authauger and Chet Gibson, Redwood High School seniors enrolled in the construction industry exploratory work experience program — they aren't allowed to perform any actual work, since educators and employers alike agree that "it isn't right for a kid to do productive work for no pay" but they've observed all facets of the industry, guided in their learning by union officials.

In his proposal to the national group, Robert Maher, work experience teacher at Drake High School, wrote: "Many of our college graduates are educated but are no better prepared to face the realities of life than they were when they left high school . . ."

Listing the ways in which Marin is facing the problem, Maher explained: "It was clear to those of us in Marin County that educators, businessmen and government had a responsibility to provide the type of career education which would permit our citizens to live more effectively within our society.

"It was our job, working together, to find the best way to creating an effective and meaningful system - not by superimposing new and costly structures on top of existing ones - but rather by integerating this particular part of the educational process into our present system."

Educators are trying to make sure that duplication and overlap don't occur. In fact, the Regional Occupation Program can't offer courses that the high schools or College of Marin already provides.

However, some observers have the impression that integrating career education into the present system may tend to multiply the costly duplication of services and facilities which exists ad infinitum in Marin County. Thus, each high school and the College of Marin possesses expensively equipped vocational training facilities, from metal shop to typewriters to sewing machines. It is to be hoped they are all used to capacity.

To the uninvolved, it might make better sense for one high school to concentrate on data processing, for instance, while another specialized in automotive engineering and yet another in the health care field.

Yet, given the rivalry between high school districts that undoubtedly exists, there is no way this relinquishment of programs is likely to happen in the foreseeable future. This is understandable since the school districts are tied to attendance boundaries and local taxes.

Bette Wallace, a Tamalpais High School District trustee and member of the Industry Education Council, paid a visit this summer to the Skyline Center in Dallas, Texas, a $21 million showplace that serves as a career education center for the entire city.

She concluded that Marin County doesn't need, and can't afford, that kind of facility yet. "But what I would really like to see is a very specialized career development center to help develop programs and bring resource people from the community in," she said. "This planning center would work right from the ninth grade to adult education."

The center she envisages would cater to 300-400 students, and expand the on-site training that presently is represented in embryo form by would-be neuro-surgeons working in the delivery room at Marin General Hospital.

What do doctors recommend for patients in pain?

Doctors all over the country dispense over 50,000,000 of these tablets to their patients each year.

There are many medications a physician or dentist can prescribe for pain. Some are narcotic, many are available only on prescription. But there is one pain reliever, available without prescription, doctors dispense again and again . . . Anacin.

Each year, doctors give up to 50,000,000 Anacin tablets to their patients in pain. If doctors think enough about Anacin to dispense all these tablets, what better recommendation can you ask when you are in pain?

You see, Anacin contains more of the pain reliever doctors recommend most than any other leading tablet.

Headache and dental pain is relieved incredibly fast; minor pains of arthritis are dependably eased for hours; even the aches and pains of colds and flu respond to Anacin. So the tension and depression that can be caused by such pain will be relieved too. And millions take Anacin without stomach upset.

When you're in pain, why don't you follow the practice of so many doctors and take the tablet a doctor might give you in his own office. Take Anacin®.

Thousands Of Workers Evacuated From Hanoi

SAIGON (UPI) —Diplomats who know Hanoi said today that U.S. bombing brought new austerity to the North Vietnam capital and the evacuation of all citizens considered nonessential to the war effort.

They said many diplomatic missions in Hanoi plan to reduce their personnel if American bombing continues beyond Jan. 1.

School children and the elderly were evacuated from Hanoi when President Nixon renewed the bombing campaign last April 6, the diplomats said.

Thousands more non-essential workers left last week when Nixon ordered B52 bombers to strike targets in and around the city, leaving only the most needed workers and servicemen in a city which once boasted a population exceeding one million.

But the diplomats denied reports by some American sources in Saigon that Hanoi authorities had ordered the complete evacuation of the city.

"I don't think they would ever do that," one diplomat said.

"In the first place, they need many people to support the war effort in factories and so on," he said. "In the second place, it would cause tremendous morale problems among the population to learn that the capital had been totally evacuated."

The diplomats who discussed the situation in Hanoi are members of governments with missions in Hanoi. In at least one case, they were in direct contact with the North Vietnamese capital as recently as Christmas Day.

The diplomats said that Christmas in Hanoi had little of the gaiety of past years. Although Nixon at the last moment stopped the bombing for 36 hours, he did not make news of the halt public.

LOOTERS OUT — A man carries articles from a damaged store (back right) in the Mercado Central section of Managua as other people look for anything of value in the ruined central market section. Meanwhile, bodies are being burned to halt spread of disease in the earthquake-ravished city.

Bodies Are Burned On Site To Check Disease In Managua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) —Demolition crews using dynamite and bulldozers leveled a major section of this city, entombing unnumbered earthquake victims while Red Cross squads searched out and burned on site the scattered bodies of the other unknown dead today.

The government reversed policy and began feeding the living in what was left of the other parts of downtown Managua in an effort to stem widespread looting. Troops assigned to guard the city have abandoned their effort to control it.

A government spokesman said at least 3,000 persons perished in the earthquake last Saturday, but said a final official death toll was impossible because of the number of bodies burned in the ruins of Managua.

Some experts said the final toll might reach 6,000.

An eight-by-forty block district was declared a "contaminated area" Tuesday. Officials prepared to follow the demolition job by spreading lime thoughout the area to lessen the danger of disease from decomposing bodies.

The army began setting up 19 distribution stations today to distribute five-pound packages of rice, beans, sugar, powdered milk and clean water for 107,000 persons who refuse to abandon their homes after Saturday's disaster. The city's pre-quake population was 400,000.

"We must feed those who are still here," military strongman Gen. Anastasio Somoza said Tuesday night in relaxing earlier government reluctance to hand out food and to hasten evacuation of the city.

Nearly three-quarters of Managua's population had fled to nearby cities of Masaya, Leon, Granada and others by late Tuesday night.

Fires, burning sporadically since last Saturday, consumed three blocks of rubble Tuesday night, sending a yellow glow into the sky. The flames accomplished a measure of the demolition job that lies ahead and firemen did not attempt to put them out.

"We have eight 'rescue squads' combing the city," said a spokesman for the Nicaraguan Red Cross. "There is no way to bury the bodies in their condition. They are simply set on fire with gasoline or kerosene."

Relief help poured in from around the world in the form of food, clothing, medical supplies and money. Red Cross officials said the aid would stem looting.

"The people are simply hungry," said Ralph Mitchell of the American Red Cross in Atlanta. "They're stealing the food because they are hungry and General Somoza hopes to curb this with the food packages."

Doctors at field hospitals supplied by the United States and Cuba and a complete children's hospital from Chile continued massive inoculations to prevent possible outbreaks of disease from the bodies.

Passage Of Investment Law Assured

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — President Luis Echeverria's long-awaited foreign investment law calling for Mexican majority ownership was in Congress today and almost sure to pass both houses quickly.

The law calls for 51 per cent Mexican ownership as a general rule. Exceptions will be made only by a special commission composed of seven cabinet members.

A prominent American businessman based in Mexico said: "The campaign about foreign investments hasn't hurt us here yet. But it might easily scare off future investors."

The proposal was formally introduced by Echeverria Tuesday. It had been talked about since last fall, and was expected to meet little resistence in Congress. Echeverria's revolutionary institutional party controls every Senate seat and a heavy majority in the Chamber of Deputies.

In a detailed introduction, Echeverria said "Every nation has a right to freely use its own natural resources, to determine the shape of its own economic structure, and to subject the foreigners who realize economic activities in its territories to its own laws."

He said the new law will welcome foreign money that contributes to Mexican development.

"It does not imply an isolationist attitude," he said.

The law itself, when passed, will establish a foreign investments commission made up of seven cabinet members.

SST Witnesses Send Their Regrets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Administration witnesses scheduled to testify on possible resumption of the supersonic transport (SST) project backed out at the last minute, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said today.

Proxmire, who helped in killing the $4 billion SST program in the last Congress, announced the cancellations as a congressional subcommittee began hearings to probe reports the Nixon administration might seek to revive it.

"What is the administration trying to hide?" Proxmire asked. "If nothing is planned, why don't they come forward and say so?"

Proxmire said Secor D. Browne, chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board, reported he had "a long-standing family commitment" and would not be able to appear at today's hearings before the Joint Economic's Priorities and Economy in Government subcommittee.

Proxmire said Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe and federal Administrator John H. Shaffer agreed to send representatives, then sent word their agencies were "in transition" and could not send anyone. Both men are leaving their posts.

Proxmire said he was disappointed that two aircraft manufacturers and two airlines that could figure in any possible revival of the SST program had refused to testify at the hearings —identifying them as the Boeing Co., McDonnell Douglas Corp., United Air Lines and Pan American World Airways.

Boeing had the original contract to build the heavily government funded SST. But when Congress killed the program, Boeing disbanded its SST work force and the government sold its mockup of the 1,880 mile-an-hour passenger jetliner to a businessman who plans to use it as part of a private museum.

There were rumors during the presidential campaign that the administration would try to revive the program —to get the United States into competition with a comparable British-French aircraft now being test-flown and scheduled for commercial service in 1975.

"We have no program to revive the SST, and we have submitted nothing on the SST to the Office of Management and Budget," Volpe said, adding it would "requre a Hurculean effort" to take any action this year.

Car Theft Case To Superior Court

Arnold Dean Ash, 19, of Rohnert Park, yesterday was bound over to Marin Superior Court to answer a charge of attempted car theft in Novato on Nov. 21.

After a preliminary hearing, Municipal Judge Robert A. Smallman ordered Ash to appear in superior court Jan. 10.

The Auto Impact

SAN JUAN (UPI) —Little more than 20 years ago Puerto Rico had 61,000 registered motor vehicles. By the end of fiscal year 1971 motor vehicle registration had increased more than 10 times—up to 687,000 cars and trucks, according to the Puerto Rico planning board.

LOOTERS OUT — A man carries articles from a damaged store (back right) in the Mercado Central section of Managua as other people look for anything of value in the ruined central market section. Meanwhile, bodies are being burned to halt spread of disease in the earthquake-ravished city.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) —Demolition crews using dynamite and bulldozers leveled a major section of this city, entombing unnumbered earthquake victims while Red Cross squads searched out and burned on site the scattered bodies of the other unknown dead today.

The government reversed policy and began feeding the living in what was left of the other parts of downtown Managua in an effort to stem widespread looting. Troops assigned to guard the city have abandoned their effort to control it.

A government spokesman said at least 3,000 persons perished in the earthquake last Saturday, but said a final official death toll was impossible because of the number of bodies burned in the ruins of Managua.

Some experts said the final toll might reach 6,000.

An eight-by-forty block district was declared a "contaminated area" Tuesday. Officials prepared to follow the demolition job by spreading lime thoughout the area to lessen the danger of disease from decomposing bodies.

The army began setting up 19 distribution stations today to distribute five-pound packages of rice, beans, sugar, powdered milk and clean water for 107,000 persons who refuse to abandon their homes after Saturday's disaster. The city's pre-quake population was 400,000.

"We must feed those who are still here," military strongman Gen. Anastasio Somoza said Tuesday night in relaxing earlier government reluctance to hand out food and to hasten evacuation of the city.

Nearly three-quarters of Managua's population had fled to nearby cities of Masaya, Leon, Granada and others by late Tuesday night.

Fires, burning sporadically since last Saturday, consumed three blocks of rubble Tuesday night, sending a yellow glow into the sky. The flames accomplished a measure of the demolition job that lies ahead and firemen did not attempt to put them out.

"We have eight 'rescue squads' combing the city," said a spokesman for the Nicaraguan Red Cross. "There is no way to bury the bodies in their condition. They are simply set on fire with gasoline or kerosene."

Relief help poured in from around the world in the form of food, clothing, medical supplies and money. Red Cross officials said the aid would stem looting.

"The people are simply hungry," said Ralph Mitchell of the American Red Cross in Atlanta. "They're stealing the food because they are hungry and General Somoza hopes to curb this with the food packages."

Doctors at field hospitals supplied by the United States and Cuba and a complete children's hospital from Chile continued massive inoculations to prevent possible outbreaks of disease from the bodies.

Passage Of Investment Law Assured

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — President Luis Echeverria's long-awaited foreign investment law calling for Mexican majority ownership was in Congress today and almost sure to pass both houses quickly.

The law calls for 51 per cent Mexican ownership as a general rule. Exceptions will be made only by a special commission composed of seven cabinet members.

A prominent American businessman based in Mexico said: "The campaign about foreign investments hasn't hurt us here yet. But it might easily scare off future investors."

The proposal was formally introduced by Echeverria Tuesday. It had been talked about since last fall, and was expected to meet little resistence in Congress. Echeverria's revolutionary institutional party controls every Senate seat and a heavy majority in the Chamber of Deputies.

In a detailed introduction, Echeverria said "Every nation has a right to freely use its own natural resources, to determine the shape of its own economic structure, and to subject the foreigners who realize economic activities in its territories to its own laws."

He said the new law will welcome foreign money that contributes to Mexican development.

"It does not imply an isolationist attitude," he said.

The law itself, when passed, will establish a foreign investments commission made up of seven cabinet members.

SST Witnesses Send Their Regrets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Administration witnesses scheduled to testify on possible resumption of the supersonic transport (SST) project backed out at the last minute, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said today.

Proxmire, who helped in killing the $4 billion SST program in the last Congress, announced the cancellations as a congressional subcommittee began hearings to probe reports the Nixon administration might seek to revive it.

"What is the administration trying to hide?" Proxmire asked. "If nothing is planned, why don't they come forward and say so?"

Proxmire said Secor D. Browne, chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board, reported he had "a long-standing family commitment" and would not be able to appear at today's hearings before the Joint Economic's Priorities and Economy in Government subcommittee.

Proxmire said Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe and federal Administrator John H. Shaffer agreed to send representatives, then sent word their agencies were "in transition" and could not send anyone. Both men are leaving their posts.

Proxmire said he was disappointed that two aircraft manufacturers and two airlines that could figure in any possible revival of the SST program had refused to testify at the hearings —identifying them as the Boeing Co., McDonnell Douglas Corp., United Air Lines and Pan American World Airways.

Boeing had the original contract to build the heavily government funded SST. But when Congress killed the program, Boeing disbanded its SST work force and the government sold its mockup of the 1,880 mile-an-hour passenger jetliner to a businessman who plans to use it as part of a private museum.

There were rumors during the presidential campaign that the administration would try to revive the program —to get the United States into competition with a comparable British-French aircraft now being test-flown and scheduled for commercial service in 1975.

"We have no program to revive the SST, and we have submitted nothing on the SST to the Office of Management and Budget," Volpe said, adding it would "requre a Hurculean effort" to take any action this year.

Car Theft Case To Superior Court

Arnold Dean Ash, 19, of Rohnert Park, yesterday was bound over to Marin Superior Court to answer a charge of attempted car theft in Novato on Nov. 21.

After a preliminary hearing, Municipal Judge Robert A. Smallman ordered Ash to appear in superior court Jan. 10.

The Auto Impact

SAN JUAN (UPI) —Little more than 20 years ago Puerto Rico had 61,000 registered motor vehicles. By the end of fiscal year 1971 motor vehicle registration had increased more than 10 times—up to 687,000 cars and trucks, according to the Puerto Rico planning board.

OLIVER L. HARLE
Cites low income housing need

Planning Candidate Airs Views

(One of several stories on the qualifications and background of candidates for a vacant seat on the San Anselmo Planning Commission.)

Oliver L. Harle, president of the Wade Thomas School Parents Club, has applied for appointment to the San Anselmo Planning Commission seat vacated by the resignation of Allen J. Creighton.

The council plans to fill the seat Jan. 9. Harle, housewife Mary Sue Hulpke and financial consultant Thomas R. Biesheuvel are seeking appointment to the post.

Harle, who is seeking appointment because of his interest "in housing and planning problems," said the major issue facing the city today is the dilemma of "reconciling the needs of lower income people with protection of the property interests.

"We have to deal with the conflict between the desires of people who hold or occupy single family residential property with the needs of people not able to afford that type of housing," he said.

Harle, a member of the city's general plan committee on housing, said nonconforming uses, or second lots on parcels zoned single family, "should be allowed on a use permit basis without upsetting existing zoning.

Second units that provide decent and safe housing and qualify under health and safety criteria, respect the privacy of neighboring property, and don't add to parking, traffic or overall density problems should be allowed, he said. "I want to maintain the living quality of the town the way it is, recognizing there will be some adjustment in land use and density."

Harle said "room must be made" for moderate and low income residents, but that he is not promoting "widespread development" in the city. "There's just no room left to build here," he said.

He said he supported the city's building and zoning moratorium, saying the city needs about "six months to look into our land use and open space situation." He opposes, however, the county general plan's proposal to widen city thoroughfares.

"I don't like planning by circumstance," he said. "Widening thoroughfares would be inviting future needs. The traffic situation at present just doesn't justify it."

He applauded the Ross Valley Sanitary District's plan to stagger the undergrounding of a sewer pipe through downtown San Anselmo and added "the sewer situation and the plumbing in San Anselmo is atrocious."

Harle, 51, is a graduate of the University of Texas, where he received a bachelor's degree in chemistry, and of the University of California at Berkeley, where he received a doctorate in chemistry.

He is a research chemist for Chevron Co. in Richmond.

He lives with his wife, Nancy, at 21 Echo Court. The couple has a son and a daughter.

A Bombing Protest

DACCA, Bangladesh (UPI) — Students protesting the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam set fire to the United States Information Service (USIS) office and library in Rajshahi, a Dacca newspaper said today.

New Narcotic Classifications

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has signed legislation establishing five classifications for narcotics and restricted dangerous drugs.

The measure by Assemblyman William Campbell, R-Hacienda Heights, also regulates the five restricted substances on sale and use. Reagan's office said yesterday the bill brings California statutes into conformity with the federal Uniform Control Substances Act of 1970.

Existing offenses and penalties relating to narcotics and dangerous drugs are not affected.

Campbell's bill is AB 192.

Man Pleads Guilty To Burglary Charges

Steven John Pappas, 21, of San Francisco, has been ordered to serve 60 days in Marin County Jail and placed on five years probation after pleading guilty to two counts of burglary.

A third burglary count was dismissed on motion of the district attorney after Pappas changed his earlier plea of innocent.

Pappas and two other men were arrested Aug. 23 by San Anselmo police, who said the trio teamed up to trick shopkeepers into leaving cash registers unattended so one of them could steal the money.

John R. Arbuckle, 22, of no known address, failed to keep an Oct. 17 trial date on the charges and is the target of a bench warrant. Charges were dismissed against the third defendant, Andrew Joseph Carrino, 28, of San Rafael.

Superior Court Judge Samuel W. Gardiner ordered Pappas's sentence on the burglary counts to run concurrently with jail time he is serving for an armed robbery in Larkspur committed in April.

Uniform Vote Schedule Asked

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Board of Supervisors has asked Congress to establish a voting schedule that would force all polling places in America to close at the same moment.

The action was aimed at preventing the wave of election results that start coming in hours before the voting has ended on the West Coast. The officials said the early returns tend to discourage westerners from making the effort to vote.

The supervisors also asked Congress to enact legislation that would put a halt to early broadcast predictions on the outcomes of elections.

OLIVER L. HARLE
Cites low income housing need

Planning Candidate Airs Views

(One of several stories on the qualifications and background of candidates for a vacant seat on the San Anselmo Planning Commission.)

Oliver L. Harle, president of the Wade Thomas School Parents Club, has applied for appointment to the San Anselmo Planning Commission seat vacated by the resignation of Allen J. Creighton.

The council plans to fill the seat Jan. 9. Harle, housewife Mary Sue Hulpke and financial consultant Thomas R. Biesheuvel are seeking appointment to the post.

Harle, who is seeking appointment because of his interest "in housing and planning problems," said the major issue facing the city today is the dilemma of "reconciling the needs of lower income people with protection of the property interests.

"We have to deal with the conflict between the desires of people who hold or occupy single family residential property with the needs of people not able to afford that type of housing," he said.

Harle, a member of the city's general plan committee on housing, said nonconforming uses, or second lots on parcels zoned single family, "should be allowed on a use permit basis without upsetting existing zoning.

Second units that provide decent and safe housing and qualify under health and safety criteria, respect the privacy of neighboring property, and don't add to parking, traffic or overall density problems should be allowed, he said. "I want to maintain the living quality of the town the way it is, recognizing there will be some adjustment in land use and density."

Harle said "room must be made" for moderate and low income residents, but that he is not promoting "widespread development" in the city. "There's just no room left to build here," he said.

He said he supported the city's building and zoning moratorium, saying the city needs about "six months to look into our land use and open space situation." He opposes, however, the county general plan's proposal to widen city thoroughfares.

"I don't like planning by circumstance," he said. "Widening thoroughfares would be inviting future needs. The traffic situation at present just doesn't justify it."

He applauded the Ross Valley Sanitary District's plan to stagger the undergrounding of a sewer pipe through downtown San Anselmo and added "the sewer situation and the plumbing in San Anselmo is atrocious."

Harle, 51, is a graduate of the University of Texas, where he received a bachelor's degree in chemistry, and of the University of California at Berkeley, where he received a doctorate in chemistry.

He is a research chemist for Chevron Co. in Richmond.

He lives with his wife, Nancy, at 21 Echo Court. The couple has a son and a daughter.

A Bombing Protest

DACCA, Bangladesh (UPI) — Students protesting the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam set fire to the United States Information Service (USIS) office and library in Rajshahi, a Dacca newspaper said today.

New Narcotic Classifications

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has signed legislation establishing five classifications for narcotics and restricted dangerous drugs.

The measure by Assemblyman William Campbell, R-Hacienda Heights, also regulates the five restricted substances on sale and use. Reagan's office said yesterday the bill brings California statutes into conformity with the federal Uniform Control Substances Act of 1970.

Existing offenses and penalties relating to narcotics and dangerous drugs are not affected.

Campbell's bill is AB 192.

Man Pleads Guilty To Burglary Charges

Steven John Pappas, 21, of San Francisco, has been ordered to serve 60 days in Marin County Jail and placed on five years probation after pleading guilty to two counts of burglary.

A third burglary count was dismissed on motion of the district attorney after Pappas changed his earlier plea of innocent.

Pappas and two other men were arrested Aug. 23 by San Anselmo police, who said the trio teamed up to trick shopkeepers into leaving cash registers unattended so one of them could steal the money.

John R. Arbuckle, 22, of no known address, failed to keep an Oct. 17 trial date on the charges and is the target of a bench warrant. Charges were dismissed against the third defendant, Andrew Joseph Carrino, 28, of San Rafael.

Superior Court Judge Samuel W. Gardiner ordered Pappas's sentence on the burglary counts to run concurrently with jail time he is serving for an armed robbery in Larkspur committed in April.

Uniform Vote Schedule Asked

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Board of Supervisors has asked Congress to establish a voting schedule that would force all polling places in America to close at the same moment.

The action was aimed at preventing the wave of election results that start coming in hours before the voting has ended on the West Coast. The officials said the early returns tend to discourage westerners from making the effort to vote.

The supervisors also asked Congress to enact legislation that would put a halt to early broadcast predictions on the outcomes of elections.

BAUBLES OF cherry tomatoes and Idaho potatoes turn crown roast of pork into a special feast.

ROAST PORK

Crowning Touch For Gala Dinner

When friends are invited to share a special meal, you want the best of everything. Fragrant greens, glowing candles, shining silver and china are the mood setters. But, above all, the food should be your very best, elegant and impressive, a feast for the eye as well as the palate.

Special meals don't have to involve a lot of elaborate pre-preparation. Often the simplest foods, well-prepared and presented are your best solution. And, there's nothing more elegant than a perfectly cooked cut of meat garnished with colorful, tender vegetables.

A savory sausage-stuffed crown roast of pork is a splendid main dish on its own any time. But, when decorated with "baubles" of brilliant red cherry tomatoes and pan-roasted potatoes, the result is a festive spectacular of flavor and appeal.

When your best china and crystal are in order, only the finest ingredients will do. This means fresh, choice meat, firm, red cherry tomatoes and Idaho potatoes.

To prepare the potato baubles, choose medium-sized potatoes. Parboil them quickly and scoop out the "baubles" with a melon baller. Popped into the roasting pan to brown, these savory potatoes are a tasty accompaniment for the garlic sauteed cherry tomatoes.

When you're ready to serve, place a potato bauble on each "point" of the crown roast. Spoon the remaining potato and tomato "baubles" around the roast.

CHRISTMAS BAUBLE CROWN ROAST

Pork Roast:
- 1 crown roast of pork (about 5 pounds)
- 2½ pounds ground pork trimmings & sausage meat
- ½ cup bread crumbs
- ¼ cup chopped onions
- 2 tablespoons red wine
- ¼ teaspoon savory
- ¼ teaspoon paprika
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper

Potato Baubles:
- 8 Idaho potatoes, peeled

Tomato Baubles:
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 1 box cherry tomatoes
- ¼ cup minced parsley
- 3 green onions, chopped
- 1 clove garlic, pressed

Have your butcher grind the trimmings from your roast and add enough bulk sausage to make two and a half pounds. Combine the sausage with the other ingredients and fill the center of the roast. Protect the bone ends with foil and roast in a 350 degree F. oven, allowing 30 to 45 minutes per pound.

Parboil the potatoes for 15 minutes. Drain and cut into balls with a melon baller. Place balls in roasting pan with meat during the last 15 minutes of cooking, rolling them in the meat's drippings occasionally.

Melt the butter in a frying pan, add the tomatoes, parsley, onion and garlic and saute over low heat for about three minutes or until tomatoes are warmed through.

To serve the roast, remove the foil from the bones and top each bone with a potato. Surround the roast with tomatoes and remaining potatoes.

Makes eight servings.

Papayas Ideal For Holidays

In days gone by, fresh fruit was so rare in winter months that it was a treat reserved for the Christmas stocking of only the best-behaved children.

Thanks to jet-age transportation, we enjoy the same sunny-flavored papayas eaten in Hawaii. Since they are not a tree-ripened fruit, papayas can be shipped to the mainland while still green. They ripen to a bright golden-orange color when left on the counter, then hold beautifully in the refrigerator for several days.

The papaya is one of the island's most versatile fruits. Its delicious flavor and smooth texture make a delightful change of pace from typical winter fruits. Whether served as a tempting addition to meats, salads and desserts or on their own with a squeeze of lime, Hawaiian papayas add color and zest to any meal.

The papaya's seed cavity is perfect for filling with many different foods. For instance, use a whole papaya (after scooping out the seeds) as a mold for tangy tomato aspic. Chilled and quartered and topped with a crab dressing, aspic-filled papayas become a most festive appetizer for a holiday dinner party. This dish makes a little crab go a long way. And, since it's very low in calories, it's ideal for the main course of a luncheon any time.

Shrimp cocktail gets a tropical treatment when papaya halves become containers for the heady dipping sauce. After the shrimp is gone, the papaya flesh is deliciously accented by the remaining sauce. A combination that's long been a favorite in the islands, it's surprisingly good. When simple shrimp cocktail is on your menu, "stretch" the more expensive shrimp by mixing equal quantities of papaya and shrimp or create papaya and shrimp kabobs to serve as tempting dippers for the sauce.

Papayas are perfect for unharried hostessing. Because they don't darken when sliced like other soft fruits, you can prepare these tempting appetizers well in advance of your gala dinner.

PAPAYA ASPIC WITH CRAB DRESSING

3 Hawaiian papayas, not too ripe

Tomato Aspic
- 1 large can tomatoes (1 pound, 13 ounces - or approx. 3½ cups)
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon paprika
- 1½ teaspoons sugar
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 green onion, chopped
- 1 large rib celery, chopped
- 1 bay leaf
- ¼ teaspoon curry powder
- 2 tablespoons gelatin
- ½ cup water

Crab Dressing
- 1 cup mayonnaise
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice
- ¼ teaspoon dill weed
- ¼ teaspoon onion salt
- ¼ cup ketchup
- 1 can (8 ounces) crab meat

Combine the aspic ingredients, except gelatin and water, in a saucepan and simmer for 30 minutes. Strain. Soak the gelatin in cold water. Dissolve it in the strained hot liquid. Add enough water to make four cups liquid. Chill the aspic, stirring now and then until syrupy.

Cut a slice from the bottom end of each papaya and reserve. Using a spoon or a chopstick, loosen and remove all seeds from inside. Support papayas in glasses or mugs and fill with syrupy aspic. Replace bottoms and refrigerate overnight. To serve, cut each papaya into fourths lengthwise and serve with Crab Dressing. To make the Crab Dressing, combine the mayonnaise and seasonings. Then fold in the crab. Chill.

Makes 12 servings.

PAPAYA SHRIMP COCKTAIL
- 2 Hawaiian papayas
- 1 pound jumbo prawns
- 1 quart water
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 2 peppercorns
- 1 small onion, sliced

Cocktail Sauce
- ¾ cup ketchup
- ¼ cup chili sauce
- 1 tablespoon wine vinegar
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 4 drops Tabasco
- 1 tablespoon horseradish
- 1 tablespoon minced green onion
- ¼ cup finely chopped celery
- 1 teaspoon Worchestershire sauce
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon minced parsley

Shell and devein prawns leaving the last section of shell and tail intact. In a large saucepan bring the water to a boil, add the other ingredients except the prawns and boil.

Add the prawns and simmer very gently, uncovered, until pink and tender — two to five minutes. Drain and refrigerate.

Combine all of the cocktail sauce ingredients and mix together well. Chill. When ready to serve, halve and seed papayas and fill each hollow with cocktail sauce. Arrange the cooked prawns around them. The papaya meat can be eaten with the remaining cocktail sauce when you have finished the prawns.

Makes four servings.

Tasty, But Simple Party Treats

Looking for an hors d'oeuvres to serve for a New Year's Eve party? These, which are uncomplicated, are suggested by Diane MacMillan, who hosts KTIM's "Kitchen Time in Marin."

SHRIMP STUFFED OLIVES

Drain one can of small shrimps. Marinate them in a well-seasoned French dressing for several hours. Drain well. Place a shrimp in the cavity of each large pitted ripe olive. Chill. Serve on toothpicks.

CHEESE AND BEER SPREAD

Grate one pound sharp cheddar cheese. Blend in one-eighth pound softened butter, a dash of Tabasco and one-quarter cup of beer (room temperature) or just enough beer to reach the desired spreading consistency. This spread is also good with a variation of port, rum or cognac used in place of the beer. Spread on crackers or toast rounds.

ROQUEFORT AND BEER SPREAD

Mash one pound Roquefort or Blue Cheese with one-quarter pound of softened butter and blend in one-quarter cup (room temperature) beer. Spread on crackers.

PUFFED PARMESAN ROUNDS

Cut and toast 16 rounds of bread, on top of each place a thin slice of cucumber, and on top of that place a paper thin slice of onion. Combine two-thirds cup of mayonnaise with one-third cup of parmesan cheese. Divide over the top of the onion slices — place under the broiler approximately three inches from the heating unit and broil just until the cheese puffs and browns. Watch carefully. Serve immediately.

BACON WRAPPED TIDBITS

Almost anything can be wrapped in bacon and turn out successfully for an hors d'oeuvre. First lightly broil one side of the slices of bacon. Drain on paper towels. Wrap around: waterchestnuts; marinated mushrooms; marinated chicken livers; pimiento stuffed olives; cocktail onions; canned oysters; smoked clams, or pineapple chunks. The choice is yours. Wrap the partially broiled bacon (cut into appropriate size pieces) around your choice tidbit, secure with a toothpick. Place on a shallow pan and broil just until the bacon is nicely browned and crisp. Serve hot.

Special For Twelfth Day Of Christmas

On the Twelfth Day of Christmas, Jan. 6, many foods are traditionally served. Tipsy parson or trifle, as it is sometimes known, is a delicious finale for this festive season.

Prepare one quart of boiled custard sauce either from a packaged mix or your own favorite recipe. Cool. Cut a 10-inch angel food cake into three crosswise slices.

Place the bottom layer in an attractive glass bowl or large compote. Sprinkle slivered almonds generously over the layer and douse well with sherry wine (about one-third cup).

Spoon one-third of the custard sauce over this and repeat layers of cake, almonds, sherry and custard. Pour any extra custard into the center of the bake. Cover with one cup cream, whipped stiffly and sweetened lightly. Chill all thoroughly for several hours before serving.

New Battleground—Orange Juice

By DAVID HOLMSTROM
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

SAN FRANCISCO — Unless you squeezed it yourself, your glass of orange juice at breakfast — no matter how much it tastes and looks like orange juice — may not be pure orange juice. In fact, it may contain very little orange juice at all.

A "great beverage fight," a national tug of war over the amount of orange juice in "orange juice drinks" has been under way since the early 1960s. The chief adversaries are the orange juice trade associations from Florida and California.

Caught in the middle is the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, the agency charged with creating and maintaining food standards.

At stake is the shape and direction of a $1 billion industry, $800 million of which is in frozen fuit juices alone. Also at stake is the consumer's diet — and his or her gullibility.

ORANGE JUICE standards are also a classic example of standards designed to protect consumers but which many find confusing.

Currently there are no standards for "diluted" orange beverages. But there are proposed standards for "orange juice drink blend, orange juice drink containing a certain percentage of orange juice, orange drink with a percentage of orange juice, or orange flavored drink with a percentage of orange juice."

When a consumer's hand reaches out in the supermarket for a can of frozen orange juice, or a bottle of orange colored liquid that looks like orange juice, or a can with a label that claim "40 per cent more orange juice than any other leading canned orange drink", the consumer should know exactly what he is getting for his money, consumer advocates say.

Currently the consumer is getting a bewildering array of so-called orange juice products, a few claiming to be "100 per cent orange juice." Although there are standards for single strength orange juice (pure orange juice) they are complex and involve numerous qualifications and definitions which carry the product further and further away from the orange that drips from a squeezed orange.

A spokesman for the FDA in Washington said it could be "as long as two years" before the FDA decides what the diluted standards will be. The original proposals were issued in 1968.

A spokesman for the National Juice Products Association (NJPA) in Tampa, Fla., said the main issue was regional competition.

"The characteristic of a Florida orange is such that you can simply pasteurize it and put it in a bottle," he said. "But California oranges contain more acid."

A California company created an "orange juice blend" of California and Florida oranges with some sugar, water, fruit solids and other ingredients, he said.

"They even declared on the label that it contained 70 per cent orange juice," he went on. "It became quite popular. Florida became irritated because it couldn't compete. When it came time to standardize the product, Florida wanted it outlawed."

BOBBY F. MCKOWN, an official of the Florida Canners Association in Winter Haven, said, "We are opposed to an orange juice blend. If it is a blend of orange juice and water and other ingredients then it is an orange drink and should be called a drink."

He cited a survey in which consumers bought the blend thinking they were buying "orange juice." We feel that all product names should be truthful and not misleading," he said.

As is customary, the proposed standards were first published in the Federal Register, in 1968 followed by a public hearing. To date there has been so much dispute over the standards that they remain as proposals and not standards.

At one point the FDA received over 260 comments, including many from consumers and consumer organizations. The majority of the consumers wanted the percentage of orange juice in the "blend" clearly displayed on the label and disagreed with the FDA proposal that the label need only declare a range of percentages of orange juice in the product. Most wanted the product labeled "diluted orange juice drink."

Why is it taking the FDA so long to establish standards? FDA officials in Washington would not answer directly, but asserted that most of their time and effort is aimed at the regulation and inspection of "dangers to health" such as the nature and quality of drugs.

Second on the priority list is sanitation or the "defect level in food." Third is "economic cheats" such as poor quality in orange juice or misleading claims about orange juice.

An FDA official in Los Angeles said that inspecting and analyzing citrus fruit drinks was "less than 1 per cent of my operation." In San Francisco, an official said in three years he had never analyzed an orange juice product to determine if it was what it claimed to be.

"THE MAJORITY of the industry is complying with the law of the land," said Benjamin Gutterman, assistant director for coordination of that FDA's Office of Product Technology. "The consumer can have faith in that."

Because orange juice is a standarized food — meaning that its ingredients are so well known that they do not need to be on the label — there is plenty of opportunity for all degrees of dilution by manufacturers and processors, consumers say.

The frozen juice industry revenues rose from $716 million in 1970 to $808 million in 1971. Quick Frozen Foods magazine asserts that this jump is partly the result of "a mammoth new market, the federally subsidized school lunch and school breakfast programs" using frozen concentrated orange juice.

Moreoever there is congressional interest in making full disclosure of ingredients on standardized foods as well as nonstandardized products.

PAPAYA ASPIC WITH CRAB DRESSING

3 Hawaiian papayas, not too ripe

Tomato Aspic
- 1 large can tomatoes (1 pound, 13 ounces - or approx. 3½ cups)
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon paprika
- 1½ teaspoons sugar
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 green onion, chopped
- 1 large rib celery, chopped
- 1 bay leaf
- ¼ teaspoon curry powder
- 2 tablespoons gelatin
- ½ cup water

Crab Dressing
- 1 cup mayonnaise
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice
- ¼ teaspoon dill weed
- ¼ teaspoon onion salt
- ¼ cup ketchup
- 1 can (8 ounces) crab meat

Combine the aspic ingredients, except gelatin and water, in a saucepan and simmer for 30 minutes. Strain. Soak the gelatin in cold water. Dissolve it in the strained hot liquid. Add enough water to make four cups liquid. Chill the aspic, stirring now and then until syrupy.

A California company created an "orange juice blend" of California and Florida oranges with some sugar, water, fruit solids and other ingredients, he said.

"They even declared on the label that it contained 70 per cent orange juice," he went on. "It became quite popular. Florida became irritated because it couldn't compete. When it came time to standardize the product, Florida wanted it outlawed."

BOBBY F. MCKOWN, an official of the Florida Canners Association in Winter Haven, said, "We are opposed to an orange juice blend. If it is a blend of orange juice and water and other ingredients then it is an orange drink and should be called a drink."

He cited a survey in which consumers bought the blend thinking they were buying "orange juice." We feel that all product names should be truthful and not misleading," he said.

As is customary, the proposed standards were first published in the Federal Register, in 1968 followed by a public hearing. To date there has been so much dispute over the standards that they remain as proposals and not standards.

At one point the FDA received over 260 comments, including many from consumers and consumer organizations. The majority of the consumers wanted the percentage of orange juice in the "blend" clearly displayed on the label and disagreed with the FDA proposal that the label need only declare a range of percentages of orange juice in the product. Most wanted the product labeled "diluted orange juice drink."

Why is it taking the FDA so long to establish standards? FDA officials in Washington would not answer directly, but asserted that most of their time and effort is aimed at the regulation and inspection of "dangers to health" such as the nature and quality of drugs.

Second on the priority list is sanitation or the "defect level in food." Third is "economic cheats" such as poor quality in orange juice or misleading claims about orange juice.

An FDA official in Los Angeles said that inspecting and analyzing citrus fruit drinks was "less than 1 per cent of my operation." In San Francisco, an official said in three years he had never analyzed an orange juice product to determine if it was what it claimed to be.

"THE MAJORITY of the industry is complying with the law of the land," said Benjamin Gutterman, assistant director for coordination of that FDA's Office of Product Technology. "The consumer can have faith in that."

Because orange juice is a standarized food — meaning that its ingredients are so well known that they do not need to be on the label — there is plenty of opportunity for all degrees of dilution by manufacturers and processors, consumers say.

The frozen juice industry revenues rose from $716 million in 1970 to $808 million in 1971. Quick Frozen Foods magazine asserts that this jump is partly the result of "a mammoth new market, the federally subsidized school lunch and school breakfast programs" using frozen concentrated orange juice.

Moreoever there is congressional interest in making full disclosure of ingredients on standardized foods as well as nonstandardized products.

From A Pie Baker To Restaurant Owner

CHRISTIANSTED, Virgin Islands — It has been a long road from washing dishes in a Coxsackie, N.Y., establishment to masterminding the classy Comanche Restaurant on St. Croix in the Virgin Islands, and Dick Boehm is happy the trip is over.

Dick is highly successful in his business venture, but he believes it is the location that is the frosting on the cake.

"We don't ever want to leave. The climate's great, and I've really liked it since the first day we got off the plane. It's a great thing to be surrounded by beauty all the time," said Mary Boehm, Dick's English-born wife and partner in the restaurant operation.

Dick's circuitous route to a career in the tropical paradise really began at age 15 in Coxsackie, where his father is an apple farmer. "I got a job as a dishwasher, but two weeks later the pie baker got sick," Dick said with a grin. "Then I worked my way through college as a cook at summer resorts."

After majoring in English at New York State University in Albany, Dick studied a year at Cornell University's School of Hotel Administration. He also car-hopped in New Orleans, worked at the Ahwahnee Hotel in Yosemite National Park, and taught English in Honolulu.

"THEN I took a trip around the world and eventually went back to New York City, where I taught school and opened a catering business on 53rd Street, called Pantry East," said Dick.

Though his clientele included several celebrtiies, the business of delivering hot dishes in congested Manhattan traffic was not without its aggravations. So Dick and his bride of a year jumped at the chance to leave for the island of St. Martin in the West Indies to help open Alexis Lichine's restaurant, Jolie Madame.

"It sounds fabulous, but it wasn't so great," Dick said.

After a year, he took a job as chef at St. Croix By the Sea, and later as chef at Grapetree Bay Hotel, also on St. Croix.

"I was actually fired from both jobs," he grinned.

Six years ago Dick and Mary took over the Comanche Restaurant in Christiansted, adjoining the Comanche Club Hotel. The restaurant, established some 17 years earlier, has flourished in their capable hands after an inauspicious past.

"The place wasn't popular," Dick said, "but the first year I brought it out of the red. There's no secret about it, I just started serving good food. We've never advertised."

DICK TRAINED his own chef, Maynard Austin, a "down islander" from Nevis in the Lesser Antilles, who was a dishwasher when Dick cooked at St. Croix By the Sea. There are also two second cooks, a relief cook, and a pantryman.

"I still like to go out in the kitchen, too. I like food, and I like to experiment," Dick said.

His extensive luncheon and dinner menus, which he changes twice a year, include a mixture of continental dishes and Crucian (of St. Croix) specialties native to the island.

"Creole sauce is probably one of the more interesting Crucian items. It's used in a conch creole with rice or with other fish," Dick said.

"The best fish of the Caribbean is dolphin and red snapper, and kingfish is the most popular with the natives.

"Other Crucian dishes include fungi, a cornmeal-based, polenta-like mixture; kalaloo, a native green; goatwater, a thin goat stew; salt fish; and chicken rice.

"We also serve roast pork with a Crucian potato stuffing —mashed white potatoes with raisins, tomato paste, hot pepper, onion, and green pepper. And another Crucian dish is a hot, spicy stew with beef and dumplings — they're like lead," he grinned.

CREOLE SAUCE

4 tomatoes, seeded and coarsely chopped
3 onions, coarsely chopped
3 peppers, coarsely chopped
½ pound butter
Salt, pepper and Tabasco to taste
½ teaspoon thyme
2 tablespoons tomato paste

Steam vegetables in butter until tendercrisp. Add seasonings. Add tomato paste and swirl in pan until sauce thickens and is smooth. Shake pan in a circular motion until sauce gets thick and homogeneous. Serve immediately. Makes eight servings. This sauce may be served with many types of fish and is also very good with poached shrimp over rice.

LOBSTER, SHRIMP AND CRAB SINGAPORE CURRY

¼ pound butter
5 onions, chopped
2 cloves garlic
⅛ teaspoon cumin seed
2 teaspoons powdered ginger
dash cayenne pepper
2 teaspoons salt
2 tablespoons curry powder
2 tomatoes, chopped
2 tablespoons flour
2½ cups milk, or combination of milk and shrimp stock
1 pound combination of cooked shrimp, lobster, and crabmeat
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon plum jam or chopped chutney
Cooked rice and sambals

In butter, saute onions and garlic 10 minutes. Add seasonings and tomatoes; cover and cook over low heat, stirring occasionally for 10 minutes. Add flour and cook for two minutes. Add milk and bring to a boil. Add seafood, lemon juice, and jam; heat until warm. Correct and balance seasoning; curry should be lightly sweet-sour.

Serve over rice and with sambals such as mango chutney, sliced fresh pineapple, large pieces of crisp bacon, chopped onion in sour cream, toasted almonds, raisins, grapefruit and orange sections, chopped dill pickle, and pimento. Makes six servings.

Some Tips On Cooking Of Rice

The rice you purchase is American-grown, milled and processed. This rice is ready to cook when you open the package, having been carefully milled and packaged to assure you that is clean and wholesome.

Best results for cooking rice are obtained when these tips are followed:

1. First, read the directions on the rice package.
2. Measure all ingredients.
3. Cooking utensil to be used should have tight fitting lid or use aluminum foil to cover.
4. The rice is at its best when steamed. Bring ingredients to a boil, stir, cover, turn heat to simmer and use the cooking time recommended on the package.
5. After rice is cooked, remove lid, toss rice with a fork and place in a serving dish. (This will help to separate the grains and prevent packing in bottom of pan. It also prevents over-cooking.)
6. One tablespoon butter or margarine added to mixture before cooking will add flavor and helps to separate grains.

Rice grown in the United States is one of the easiest foods to prepare when these simple rules are followed.

Rice Dish With Tomato And Cheese

TOMATO AND CHEESE BAKE

3 cups hot, cooked brown rice
4½ tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon garlic salt
Pepper to taste
6 slices process cheese
6 tomato slices
1 teaspoon Italian seasonings
Additional salt and pepper

Combine rice, two tablespoons butter, eggs, and seasonings. Spoon into a buttered shallow baking dish. Arrange cheese slices over rice. Top each with a slice of tomato, brush with remaining butter, and sprinkle with Italian seasonings and additional salt and pepper. Bake at 400 degrees for eight to 10 minutes. Makes six servings.

Break Meal Monotony

NUTTY BROWN RICE

1 cup uncooked brown rice
1 cup chopped green onions with tops
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 cups chicken broth
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup chopped nuts

Saute rice and onions in butter until golden. Stir in broth and salt. Bring to a boil; stir once. Cover and simmer 45 minutes or until rice is tender and liquid absorbed. Add nuts and toss lightly. Makes six to eight servings.

CHRISTIANSTED, Virgin Islands — It has been a long road from washing dishes in a Coxsackie, N.Y., establishment to masterminding the classy Comanche Restaurant on St. Croix in the Virgin Islands, and Dick Boehm is happy the trip is over.

Dick is highly successful in his business venture, but he believes it is the location that is the frosting on the cake.

CREOLE SAUCE

4 tomatoes, seeded and coarsely chopped
3 onions, coarsely chopped
3 peppers, coarsely chopped
½ pound butter
Salt, pepper and Tabasco to taste
½ teaspoon thyme
2 tablespoons tomato paste

Steam vegetables in butter until tendercrisp. Add seasonings. Add tomato paste and swirl in pan until sauce thickens and is smooth. Shake pan in a circular motion until sauce gets thick and homogeneous. Serve immediately. Makes eight servings. LOBSTER, SHRIMP AND CRAB SINGAPORE CURRY

¼ pound butter
5 onions, chopped
2 cloves garlic
⅛ teaspoon cumin seed
2 teaspoons powdered ginger
dash cayenne pepper
2 teaspoons salt
2 tablespoons curry powder
2 tomatoes, chopped
2 tablespoons flour
2½ cups milk, or combination of milk and shrimp stock
1 pound combination of cooked shrimp, lobster, and crabmeat
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon plum jam or chopped chutney
Cooked rice and sambals

In butter, saute onions and garlic 10 minutes. Add seasonings and tomatoes; cover and cook over low heat, stirring occasionally for 10 minutes. Add flour and cook for two minutes. Add milk and bring to a boil. Add seafood, lemon juice, and jam; heat until warm. Correct and balance seasoning; curry should be lightly sweet-sour.

Serve over rice and with sambals such as mango chutney, sliced fresh pineapple, large pieces of crisp bacon, chopped onion in sour cream, toasted almonds, raisins, grapefruit and orange sections, chopped dill pickle, and pimento. Makes six servings.

Rice Dish With Tomato And Cheese

TOMATO AND CHEESE BAKE

3 cups hot, cooked brown rice
4½ tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon garlic salt
Pepper to taste
6 slices process cheese
6 tomato slices
1 teaspoon Italian seasonings
Additional salt and pepper

Combine rice, two tablespoons butter, eggs, and seasonings. Spoon into a buttered shallow baking dish. Arrange cheese slices over rice. Top each with a slice of tomato, brush with remaining butter, and sprinkle with Italian seasonings and additional salt and pepper. Bake at 400 degrees for eight to 10 minutes. Makes six servings.

ON 90TH BIRTHDAY

A Singer Turned Pianist Gives Recital For Friends

By BETTY FROST

"I had not touched the piano in about 35 years," Mrs. Pearl Ladd Arnold of Sausalito said.

Yet, on Dec. 16 she gave a recital performing the first and second movements of the Beethoven Concerto, number one, for 40 guests. The program was in celebration of Mrs. Arnold's 90th birthday.

"I thought I would surprise them all," Mrs. Arnold said.

She began working on the "surprise" last March, soon after she had met pianist Leonard Jared of Tiburon.

"I knew he was a very great artist when he played for me, and I asked him if he would accept me as a student," she said.

Months of hard work followed. Of her teacher the Sausalito woman said, "He is the stingiest person I know with his praise."

FILLING THE ROOM with music, Mrs. Pearl Ladd Arnold of Sausalito, demonstrates the technique which brought her acclaim last week when she gave a piano recital in San Rafael for 40 guests. The concert was in celebration of the woman's 90th birthday.

HER EXTRAORDINARY performance was held at the B-J Studio in San Rafael, and attended by friends from the world of music, some of whom came from out of the state to attend.

"It was the most wonderful birthday I ever had," the nonegaganarian exclaimed. And, despite arthritis in her hands, which makes it necessary for her to do warming up exercise before playing, she said "I wouldn't dream of stopping now. I get lost in the beautiful music."

Jared, who accompanied her on a second piano, said, "She didn't make any mistakes, but I was so nervous I missed a few notes."

Although this is "Laddy's" first time around as a pianist, she had a distinguished singing career. In 1908 she made her debut in light opera at a performance at El Comedia in Madrid, attended by King Alfonso XIII and Queen Victoria Eugenia of Spain. She is proud of having been the first person to sing light opera in Spain.

Pearl Ladd was born in San Francisco on Dec. 14, 1882. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Ladd. Her father was the proprietor of Ladd's Gun Store, located on Kearney Street. Her father, she recalls, was a great sportsman.

HER EARLY education was in San Francisco, where she attended Denman Grammar School and the Convent of the Sacred Heart.

She studied the piano as a child, but "gave it up for singing. The music master used to rap my knuckles," she said.

She left San Francisco in 1902 for Europe, intending to stay for two years. She did not return to California for 15 years. In Paris she studied voice with Jacques Bouhy for four years. Bouhy is credited with having created the part of the Toreador in the opera, "Carmen." Miss Ladd was trained in opera, and appeared as Musetta in "La Boheme" and Micaela in "Carmen."

The quality of her soprano voice was ideal for starring roles in light opera, and in this field she had great success.

She was in Le Havre, France, for Easter vacation when news of the disastrous San Francisco earthquake of 1906 was received. She was staying at Le Havre en pension with a friend. This friend kept from her the news of the San Francisco holocaust for several days, hoping to get word of the Ladd family to reassure Pearl. However, Miss Ladd saw a magazine showing San Francisco's California Street, and the Crocker residence, which the California girl recognized. She still thinks with great affection of the friend who tried to protect her from the bad news.

AFTER THE earthquake her parents moved to the home in Sausalito where Mrs. Arnold moved permanently in 1940 and where she lives today.

She bagan her career in Paris in 1906 where she gave a concert. Later that year she went to London where she gave some concerts. After her Spanish debut in light opera, she returned to London and appeared in musical comedies.

In 1911, she was an understudy in the "Chocolate Soldier." She took over the starring role of Nadina in an emergency and played it continuously for two-and-a-half years, touring all over England.

In London she was engaged to play the female leads in Gilbert and Sullivan operas for a tour of South Africa, New Zealand and Australia. In this company she met her husband, the late George Villiers Arnold, who had a great baritone voice. They were married in New Zealand in 1916. Arnold's father, also in the theater, had been a character actor in Joseph Jefferson's theatrical company, which brought "Rip Van Winkle" to the United States in the 1850's and toured America.

Miss Ladd was such a success in Australia that she stayed there for about eight years. She and her husband formed their own repertory company and toured Australia and New Zealand and appeared in concert in Honolulu.

In 1921 her husband died during a flu epidemic in Australia. Mrs. Arnold came back to San Francisco, "not caring if I lived or died." She stayed with her mother in the house in Sausalito. After a time she got restless, and went to New York City with her mother. She had been offered a role in the "Merry Widow" operetta. However, at the time of her stay, there was a strike in New York theaters and her funds rapidly dissipated. She had an offer to resume her career in London.

MRS. ARNOLD'S mother argued against going to England. She also knew that her daughter was very fond of the family's Sausalito residence. A bargain was made. If Pearl would return to California the mother would leave her the Marin home.

"So, I gave up my career for this property," Mrs. Arnold said, sitting in the living room, where a picture window commands a clear view down Raccoon Strait.

"There is a destiny that shapes our ends," she quoted from Shakespeare.

Before coming to Sausalito permanently 32 years ago, Mrs. Arnold lived in San Francisco, and often sang at St. Mary's Cathedral. She is proud that she composed the music to the prayer, "Hail Mary," which she has sung many times.

Music will continue to fill her life in the next year. She also expects to travel in the spring, to Europe, Egypt, South Africa. "I want to cover all the territory I have seen in the past and see the changes," she said, "travel is my bug."

HER ROLE as Nadina in the Chocolate Soldier kept Pearl Ladd on tour for over two years from 1911 to 1913. She made her singing debut in 1908 before the King and Queen of Spain in Madrid. Now 90 years old the former singer is studying music again.

Man Has Always Made Resolutions

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) —Mankind has been making resolutions for centuries. Also breaking them.

As early as 194 B.C., Plautus was writing, "'He means well' is useless unless he does well."

In 1875, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow said, "Resolve and thou art free."

Which brings up the closing hours of 1972 and the opening of another year—the traditional time for trying to make oneself over or at least improve oneself in some way with reassessment and a list of New Year's resolutions.

AS FOR MINE, I kept every one, not only from 1972 but for several years past. I've just been recycling them each year. At present, the 1972 list is in a file on the den desk. The file's marked "pending" and among other things pending are those resolutions.

First resolution for 1973. Clear out the pending file.

I asked some of my associates in the office about their resolutions. One of them said she first would simply try to straighten out her desk sufficiently to find last year's.

Another said his only resolution so far was "to live out the old year joyously." He headed resolutely for a bar, leaving behind a sheet of paper in his typewriter that started, "Dear Mom."

Still another co-worker, bitter about the renewed bombing of North Vietnam and our continuing loss of aircraft and crews said, "I resolve not to listen to my government's telling me how we're winding down the war."

Behavioral scientists tell us we make resolutions because inwardly we know there's always room for improvement and setting aims down on paper helps enforce the promise to keep them.

We break them because to err is human and because ingrained habits are difficult to change.

IN THE INTERESTS, though, of offering some encouragement to myself and perhaps to you, I've made up a suggested list. You take it from there.

LOVE. In capital letters. There is too little of it around and little danger of our overindulging in this area.

Help others. In today's busy world, many of us find excuses for not realizing that we are all a piece of mankind and should in some way serve. Volunteer for a charity, a hospital, for Recording for the Blind, to read at an old folks' home. The areas for service are boundless and you can make the time. Remember the saying, "If you want something done, ask a busy person to do it."

Quit procrastinating. Get the onerous chores out of the way and leisure then is a pleasure instead of something to haunt you.

Practice my religion more physically too. The effort some Sundays of dressing and going to church seems too much. But a friend of mine who makes that effort at least each Sunday says the spiritual lift she gets lasts her through the week.

And let's face it. A lot of us should for health's as well as appearance's sake lose some weight in 1973. I put this one down just after inveriewing a nun who'd lost 76 pounds in 15 months and had gone from a size 44 to a size 10 or 12. That's resolution for you!

Charlotte Carter New Mrs. Peter W. Weikel

Charlotte Marie Carter of San Rafael became the bride of Peter Wiley Weikel of Petaluma in a ceremony at St. Isabella's Church in Terra Linda on Dec. 17.

For the afternoon nuptials Charlotte was attended by Jeanette Marie Asselin of Novato as maid of honor and her sisters, Mrs. Sue Haley of Concord, Abi Carter and Emily Carter, both of San Rafael.

Bob Fracchia of Terra Linda performed best man's duties. Guests were seated by the bridegroom's two brothers, Curtis Weikel of San Bruno and Chris Weikel of Easton, Pa., and the bride's brother, Ken Carter of San Rafael.

Charlotte is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Carter of San Rafael, and she is the granddaughter of Mrs. Paul D. Cleary and Mrs. Jess Pearl, both of Petaluma.

She is a Terra Linda High School graduate, attended the College of Marin and is employed by the Bank of America in San Francisco.

Peter's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Weikel of Petaluma, and Carolyn Soho of Redding is his sister. He is the grandson of Mrs. Wiley Metcalf of Hornick, Iowa.

Now employed by the Sears store at Northgate Mall, Peter is a graduate of Terra Linda High School and he attended California State University, San Francisco.

Carpentry Course Is Completed

The Bolinas Women's Carpentry Collective has completed the first course of instruction, begun in September. A new course will begin in April, with the funding of $900 granted by Community Action Marin insuring continued instruction to the low income women seeking to learn the carpentry trade.

On permanent loan from Frank Cerda of Inverness are big power tools, such as table saws, a band saw, a drill press and a jointer. Cerda, trained as a carpenter, has encouraged the woman in their wish to acquire carpentry skills.

Lucia Rose of Bolinas is the coordinator and the workshop is located in a garage near her home. A Saturday class will begin on Jan. 13. This will allow a different group of women, not available during the week, to familiarize themselves with tools and tool use. Home repairs will be emphasized in these classes.

WHILE THEY have sophisticated tools available, the real need is for more hand tools, according to Mrs. Rose.

There is a great esprit de corps among the 12 women, aged 20 to 40, who are the mainstay of the collective. One of their first projects was to build the foundation for a house in Bolinas. They also do shingling.

"In fact," Mrs. Rose said, "getting jobs is no problem. "We have made bunk beds, cabinets, a writing desk, special doors on order and have put in shelving and molding. What we need is more instruction."

Carpenters in the community assist with instruction on a volunteer basis.

"It felt good when I first picked up a hammer and learned to use it," Mrs. Rose said.

Acquiring these traditionally male skills is partly motivated by women's liberation thinking and partly by the frustrations of not being able to handle simple repairs and construction without asking for help, the coordinator said.

Marion Rowe Is New Mrs. Lion

The Independent-Journal erred Saturday in the headline of a story announcing the marriage of Marian Ralston Rowe of Dallas, Tex., and Garrett Ernest Lion of Sausalito on Friday in Dallas.

The bride's last name was given incorrectly as Howe.

Carpentry Course Is Completed

The Bolinas Women's Carpentry Collective has completed the first course of instruction, begun in September. A new course will begin in April, with the funding of $900 granted by Community Action Marin insuring continued instruction to the low income women seeking to learn the carpentry trade.

On permanent loan from Frank Cerda of Inverness are big power tools, such as table saws, a band saw, a drill press and a jointer. Cerda, trained as a carpenter, has encouraged the woman in their wish to acquire carpentry skills.

Lucia Rose of Bolinas is the coordinator and the workshop is located in a garage near her home. A Saturday class will begin on Jan. 13. This will allow a different group of women, not available during the week, to familiarize themselves with tools and tool use. Home repairs will be emphasized in these classes.

WHILE THEY have sophisticated tools available, the real need is for more hand tools, according to Mrs. Rose.

There is a great esprit de corps among the 12 women, aged 20 to 40, who are the mainstay of the collective. One of their first projects was to build the foundation for a house in Bolinas. They also do shingling.

"In fact," Mrs. Rose said, "getting jobs is no problem. "We have made bunk beds, cabinets, a writing desk, special doors on order and have put in shelving and molding. What we need is more instruction."

Carpenters in the community assist with instruction on a volunteer basis.

"It felt good when I first picked up a hammer and learned to use it," Mrs. Rose said.

Acquiring these traditionally male skills is partly motivated by women's liberation thinking and partly by the frustrations of not being able to handle simple repairs and construction without asking for help, the coordinator said.

Marion Rowe Is New Mrs. Lion

The Independent-Journal erred Saturday in the headline of a story announcing the marriage of Marian Ralston Rowe of Dallas, Tex., and Garrett Ernest Lion of Sausalito on Friday in Dallas.

The bride's last name was given incorrectly as Howe.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Little Matchmaker: Just Keep Nose Out Of Your Son's Affairs

DEAR HELEN:

I don't want to be a nosy mother, but my son needs a push.

He is 25, dating a 20-year-old girl I've never met. However, friends tell me she is a good, church-going, moral, well brought-up girl. She's pretty too, as he has a picture of her in his room. From what I hear they're so much alike in habits and ideals that it's uncanny.

But — my son was deeply hurt three years ago and I think he is afraid of getting serious, though he has dated this girl for about six months. He hasn't brought her home to meet us, so he probably hasn't told her how he feels, and she may figure it's "just friends" so slip away from him. Girls like her are few and far between — and my son isn't getting any younger.

I think he would like to say, "Let's get married," and do just that in a couple of weeks. Financially, he's able, but a girl wants a big wedding, and he should give her notice. I can't understand why he doesn't bring her home and get everything settled.

Like I say, I'm not a nosy mother, but shouldn't I have a talk with him? — MRS. C.M.

DEAR MRS. M:

Back up to "I'm not a nosy mother," add a big, fat exclamation point, and cut the "buts."

A 25-year-old son needs a mother's "push" toward matrimony like he needed her taking him to the barbershop at age 14. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I like mimeographed family letters for Christmas cards, provided they're interesting and fun to read. But when they're received during the holiday rush, they're seldom appreciated.

Therefore, we send our Christmas letters out after New Year's. It works great! By then we have heard from all our friends, so we can tack on really personal answers at the bottom. Also, we have all the new addresses. Colored paper, with matching ink, incidentally, livens up any correspondence.

As for gifts: we do our gift giving throughout the year — and that goes for birthdays, too. Whenever we find something just right for a friend or relative, we buy it and send it quickly, with a note saying this is "Your special gift and we couldn't wait for the special day." How much nicer it is to get a surprise present when it can be savored all by itself. Christmas we reserve for children — and for pleasant, relaxed family gatherings, unburdened with thoughts of those mountainous bills for adult gifts.

Thanks for letting me share my Christmas ideas with you. — ALICE M.

DEAR HELEN:

Here's an idea for low-budget gifts that really mean something. Our daughter lost her part-time job this fall. She loves to give, but said it wouldn't be right if her parents paid her bills (though she's only 16). So she made up fancy little I.O.U. notes, decorated with humorous drawings, and placed them in envelopes on the tree. Her married sister and brother and their spouses each received "ten hours baby-sitting, but not during finals week." The older children got "one trip to the beach, big picnic, payable July 14." She made the younger ones stuffed animals and dolls. And for us, her parents, she had the greatest gift of all: "365 days of love and appreciation for two super-good guys, plus two car-wash-and-wax jobs, and one day scrubbing down the kitchen cupboards." — NICE, HUH?

DEAR NICE:

The nicest! You've got a great daughter there. — H.

Keppel-Wlodarczyk Vows Are Exchanged

An afternoon wedding Dec. 16 at St. Eugene's Cathedral in Santa Rosa was the setting for the wedding of Bonnie Katherine Keppel and Michael Robert Wlodarczyk.

Bonnie, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Erven Keppel of Rohnert Park, chose Judy Baranzini of Cotati as her maid of honor. Diane Short of Novato and the bridegroom's sisters Kris of Santa Rosa and Mrs. John Casto of Rohnert Park were bridesmaids.

Bonnie was graduated from Rancho Cotate High School in Rohnert Park. She is employed in the Sonoma County District Attorney's Office. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Starz of Lake City, Minn.

Michael is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Wlodarczyk of Rohnert Park. Steve Cincersa of Rohnert Park was his best man. His brother, Scott; the bride's brother, Edward of Fort Riley, Kan.; and John Casto of Rohnert Park, were ushers.

The bridegroom is also a graduate of Rancho Cotate High School and attends Santa Rosa Junior College. He has two other brothers: Steve of Tulsa, Okla., and Pat of Rohnert Park. He is the grandson of Stanley Ryzanca of Munising, Mich., and Mrs. Mary Wlodarczyk of Holland, Mich.

The couple will visit Southern California and Mexico on their wedding trip before making their home in Santa Rosa.

Vows Exchanged At St. Hilary's Church

St. Hilary's Church in Tiburon was the setting for the marriage of Theresa Klune McLean and Frederick T. Dietrich Jr. at 7 p.m. on Dec. 16.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Wilson McLean of Sonoma. Frederick T. Dietrich of Mill Valley is the bridegroom's father.

Maid of honor was Pamela Walker of Laguna Beach.

George Bont O'Neill of San Rafael was the best man. The ushers were Christian P. Dietrich and William E. Dietrich, of Mill Valley, the bridegroom's brothers, and Carl Erwin Paine of Mill Valley.

The couple was escorted from the church by a kilted Scottish bagpiper, playing. This is a tradition of the bride's parents, originally from Scotland.

The reception was given at the Sausalito Yacht Club.

Theresa is a graduate of St. Bernardine's High School in San Bernardino, and of the University of San Francisco. She did graduate studies at the University of California at Berkeley.

The bridegroom is a graduate of the San Rafael Military Academy and of the University of San Francisco. He received the master's degree in labor relations from Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y.

After a wedding trip to Heavenly Valley, Lake Tahoe, the couple will live in Mill Valley.

Time To Plan For Birthday Bash

NEW YORK (UPI) — A woman who's been staging historical celebrations for 45 years says it's high time the nation got started on plans for its 200th birthday party.

Mrs. Adele Gutman Nathan would like especially to see the planners stage one giant bash in Washington, D.C., July 4, 1976, marking the bicentennial celebration of the signing of the Declaration of Independence in 1776.

She already recommends the site—the National Capitol which "is just naturally one huge outdoor stage. Either the front or back of the building is adaptatable, she said, but she likes the back because the rolling land behind would enable "millions to see the presentation."

To those who say, "But Washington wasn't even the capital then, why Washington?", she answers, "We're celebrating an ideal...the ideal of creating a perfect government.

"AND I can't see our government not having a national observance of its bicentennial."

Which puts her at odds with the National Council of the Arts. Jean Dalrymple, the theatrical impresario, is a council member and said that at a recent all-day session of the group in Washington the conclusion seemed to be that observances would have to be local or state, that no single extravaganza seemed possible nationally.

So far, Mrs. Nathan said, several states have celebrations in the planning stage and she's certain there will be others set for Philadelphia (where the Continental Congress in 1776 adopted the Declaration of Independence), Valley Forge, Boston and other centers typifying the emergence of our nation.

Mrs. Nathan said that in addition every school, church and synagogue, every patriotic society, is "bound to have" an observance.

She would like to see celebrations "take some of the things set down in the Declaration and stress them" rather than have "shooting wars" recreated.

"LIKE 'ALL men are created equal,'" she continued. "Well, we haven't made it yet, but maybe we can.

"I'd like to see the bicentennial dramatized in good taste. People won't accept anything shoddy."

She summarizes the one major consideration in any plans—"Cut the cost according to the cloth. In other words, find out something that'll fit your means...not something that calls for the Metropolitan Opera and the budget of 'My Fair Lady'".

Mrs. Nathan has just had published a "how to" book called "How to Plan and Conduct a Bicentennial Celebration" (Stackpole Books, Harrisburg, Pa.). It's a step-by-step guide for schools, clubs, community groups and all on how to dramatize America's 200th birthday in vignettes, parades, happenings and pageants.

Mrs. Nathan, Baltimore-born, began her career as a newswoman, first in Washington and Baltimore, then as a roving foreign correspondent for the then United Press, now United Press International.

SHE'D DONE some theater directing when she was asked to help with a dramatic portion of the Jewish Tercentenary in Trenton, N.J. Then the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad asked her to help with its centennial celebration in 1927.

A whole new career had opened for Mrs. Nathan. Her credits include the 175th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, the Railroad Show in Chicago in 1949-50, numerous industry celebrations, the 100th anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg, and celebration of Lincoln's Gettysburg Address centennial.

She's won numerous awards for her works. And along the way, she's written 14 books ("I think that's the right number), three of them about Lincoln.

"You know what happens," she said. "You do all that mass of research for an observance and then don't want the notes to go to waste. So you put it all down between covers."

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Wilson McLean of Sonoma. Frederick T. Dietrich of Mill Valley is the bridegroom's father.

Maid of honor was Pamela Walker of Laguna Beach.

George Bont O'Neill of San Rafael was the best man. The ushers were Christian P. Dietrich and William E. Dietrich, of Mill Valley, the bridegroom's brothers, and Carl Erwin Paine of Mill Valley.

The couple was escorted from the church by a kilted Scottish bagpiper, playing. This is a tradition of the bride's parents, originally from Scotland.

The reception was given at the Sausalito Yacht Club.

Theresa is a graduate of St. Bernardine's High School in San Bernardino, and of the University of San Francisco. She did graduate studies at the University of California at Berkeley.

The bridegroom is a graduate of the San Rafael Military Academy and of the University of San Francisco. He received the master's degree in labor relations from Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y.

After a wedding trip to Heavenly Valley, Lake Tahoe, the couple will live in Mill Valley.

Time To Plan For Birthday Bash

NEW YORK (UPI) — A woman who's been staging historical celebrations for 45 years says it's high time the nation got started on plans for its 200th birthday party.

Mrs. Adele Gutman Nathan would like especially to see the planners stage one giant bash in Washington, D.C., July 4, 1976, marking the bicentennial celebration of the signing of the Declaration of Independence in 1776.

She already recommends the site—the National Capitol which "is just naturally one huge outdoor stage. Either the front or back of the building is adaptatable, she said, but she likes the back because the rolling land behind would enable "millions to see the presentation."

To those who say, "But Washington wasn't even the capital then, why Washington?", she answers, "We're celebrating an ideal...the ideal of creating a perfect government.

"AND I can't see our government not having a national observance of its bicentennial."

Which puts her at odds with the National Council of the Arts. Jean Dalrymple, the theatrical impresario, is a council member and said that at a recent all-day session of the group in Washington the conclusion seemed to be that observances would have to be local or state, that no single extravaganza seemed possible nationally.

So far, Mrs. Nathan said, several states have celebrations in the planning stage and she's certain there will be others set for Philadelphia (where the Continental Congress in 1776 adopted the Declaration of Independence), Valley Forge, Boston and other centers typifying the emergence of our nation.

Mrs. Nathan said that in addition every school, church and synagogue, every patriotic society, is "bound to have" an observance.

She would like to see celebrations "take some of the things set down in the Declaration and stress them" rather than have "shooting wars" recreated.

"LIKE 'ALL men are created equal,'" she continued. "Well, we haven't made it yet, but maybe we can.

"I'd like to see the bicentennial dramatized in good taste. People won't accept anything shoddy."

She summarizes the one major consideration in any plans—"Cut the cost according to the cloth. In other words, find out something that'll fit your means...not something that calls for the Metropolitan Opera and the budget of 'My Fair Lady'".

Mrs. Nathan has just had published a "how to" book called "How to Plan and Conduct a Bicentennial Celebration" (Stackpole Books, Harrisburg, Pa.). It's a step-by-step guide for schools, clubs, community groups and all on how to dramatize America's 200th birthday in vignettes, parades, happenings and pageants.

Mrs. Nathan, Baltimore-born, began her career as a newswoman, first in Washington and Baltimore, then as a roving foreign correspondent for the then United Press, now United Press International.

SHE'D DONE some theater directing when she was asked to help with a dramatic portion of the Jewish Tercentenary in Trenton, N.J. Then the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad asked her to help with its centennial celebration in 1927.

A whole new career had opened for Mrs. Nathan. Her credits include the 175th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, the Railroad Show in Chicago in 1949-50, numerous industry celebrations, the 100th anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg, and celebration of Lincoln's Gettysburg Address centennial.

She's won numerous awards for her works. And along the way, she's written 14 books ("I think that's the right number), three of them about Lincoln.

"You know what happens," she said. "You do all that mass of research for an observance and then don't want the notes to go to waste. So you put it all down between covers."

JUDGES LIKE PROGRAM

Foundation Helps Felons With Desire To Improve

By LARRY MOWELL

SAN FRANCISCO — How to give society its "eye for an eye" and still turn criminals from felonies to jobs has long been a thorny problem for Marin judges, but an unconventional San Francisco clan apparently is offering a solution.

Increasingly, Marin judges are resolving the seemingly paradoxical goals of punishment and rehabilitation by sending problem criminals on the verge of prison to the Delancey Street Foundation instead.

Judges like the two-year-old foundation because it keeps a criminal off the streets for a minimum of 18 months — six months longer than the maximum legal jail sentence — while offering hope of rehabilitation. Superior Court Judge Samuel W. Gardiner has called it the best program available.

It is too early to gauge success, since few have completed the program, but probation officers readily endorse it and are trying to place more in the presently crowded program.

The subject of all the good words is a conglomeration of contradictions, a "puritanical commune" in the words of one resident.

Based in San Francisco, the facility is named after a New York City street where immigrants started on the road to success.

The 170 participants, with records of poverty, joblessness and antisocial behavior, live in a 28-room mansion which once housed high Egyptian government officials. Bills of $20,000 to $25,000 a month are paid without help from any kind of grant in an age when almost every help agency survives on outside assistance.

A "people-helping" group, it is "in profound disagreement with almost everyone in the people-helping business," founder John Maher told the Independent-Journal.

"Hopeless dingbats" and "selfish cripples" go through a program of shaved heads and candlelight dinners, floor scrubbing and social outings, cramped quarters in a wealthy neighborhood, encounter sessions and image changing.

All the unlikely ingredients are blended in an effort to turn misfits around, teach them to work for success, be honest and live by some code of ethics, according to Maher.

Maher, a tough-talking self-admitted former con man from New York, founded the house two years ago with $100 after spending years in Synanon.

He said it is no more similar to Synanon than one religion is to another.

First step in a long process for a prospective Delancey Street participant is a jail interview during which he is given a bleak picture of the voluntary program. "We want to scare off the guys who don't mean serious business," Maher said.

Otherwise, the entrance requirements are meager. Said Maher, "I'll take anybody in here: Communists, Black Muslims, Nazis, convicts. A man comes dressed like Napoleon. Fine. Once he comes inside the door, he don't dress like Napoleon no more."

Once in, the welcome is rude and testing. Men and women are garbed much like prisoners in denims or khakis and men must have their heads shaved for several reasons.

It is a first step toward a new image, it shows they are sincere and it helps keep them from leaving. "The first week or so, they don't want to stay, but they can't go hustling with a bald head," said Joanne Mancuso, a former drug user living in the house.

Despite the shaving, one in four gives up and leaves, but no one who has stayed six months has left the voluntary program, Maher said.

New arrivals are not allowed out of the house without a long-time resident, but the only restraint is their probation, Maher said.

Since most are on probation (half would have been in prison if not sent to Delancey Street), leaving means jail when caught, Maher said.

New arrivals spend the first two months doing menial jobs in the mansion, then are shifted to hard labor, like construction and furniture moving in foundation-run companies.

"That is the one thing these guys need. They have to sweat off some of this guilt they have stored up," Miss Mancuso said.

Maher's almost fanatical belief in the rehabilitative value of hard work and in man's ability to work out his own problems is his handling of the ex-drug users who make up half the house's population.

The addicts receive no methadone and other pacifiers. "I just tell them, 'Stop.' Nobody has ever told them, 'Stop.' This is a radical approach. We are not in the business of handing out patent medicine psychic remedies," Maher said.

Rules of the house are few — no violence of threats, no alcohol or drugs and triweekly participation in a massive encounter session called a circus. So far the rules haven't been broken, Maher and Miss Mancuso said.

"Not one of our people has ever been arrested while here, not even a police complaint," Maher said.

One of the techniques for reducing agresssion and solving problems is the encounter session involving up to 200 persons. "We all meet in a room and settle our beefs so the steam can get off," Maher said.

If the rules are followed and good work habits are developed, the next step is schooling or vocational training. "You can't leave an environment like this knowing nothing," Miss Mancuso said.

Maher was more direct: "I demand that young people go to school. Otherwise I won't do bsuiness with them." They have to continue to work for the privilege of schooling, he said.

One resident of the house is enrolled in the San Francisco Conservatory of Music; a second attends the private Drew School, compliments of house members who painted the school in exchange for her tuition.

"We just transmute labor into capital," Maher said to explain the way the house pays its way.

Some clothing and food is donated, but the foundation earns money from a moving business, a construction school, an auto repair shop and a flower business. Some residents also serve as movie extras.

Still more cash comes from professional people who live in the house and donate their salaries. No one at the house is salaried. "We learned that from the Catholic Church," Maher said.

But sink-scrubbing, floor-sweeping, car-fixing and soul-searching sessions are only half the program. A combination of movie and humor seems to give the house a bright side.

Living in a building owned by Egypt ("They weren't overjoyed with the image, but they had already accepted my check," Maher said), the group gleefully celebrates Jewish holidays.

The Egyptians unsuccessfully sued to throw Delancey Street out, but neighbors, give or take a few "nouveau riche cranks," according to Maher, have not complained.

Other publicized shenanigans of the house have been annual journeys to the San Francisco Jail on St. Valentine's Day to give flowers to women prisoners, a trip to San Quentin in limousines to pick up a parolee and an offer to the state to buy the prison and pay for it by charging admission to tourists who want to see the gas chamber.

But the basic premise of Delancey Street is that other programs for helping the poor and the socially outcast are failures. Paying off people with handouts and methadone isn't a solution, Maher claimed.

"The very idea that those guys died for in Valley Forge has been lost in these payments to the poor," he said.

Handouts are not a part of the Delancey Street effort. "These guys are making it on their own," Maher said.

Maher likened the foundation to a Scotch clan, a loosely knit association providing a job and a large number of supporting friends.

Only one thing is asked in return. "Anybody I help today, I will expect to help somebody else someday," Maher said.

ASSIGNMENT CENTER — Three Delancey Street Foundation residents work at the front desk where everyone signs in and out and checks on the day's chores. Other nerve centers in the 28-room mansion include a business office, which runs all the companies of the foundation, and a procurement office, which manages the flow of food and clothing.

LEARNING TO WORK — Miguel Rodriquez of Point Reyes Station folds laundry during his initiation into Delancey Street Foundation. Shaved heads and household chores are the lot of each new resident, but after living in the house for a while, appearance becomes a matter of choice.

FUN AND GAMES — Peter Van Blaricom of Vallejo and Dane Ryan of Las Vegas compete in a game of pool, one of many afterwork activities for residents of the Delancey Street Foundation.

AUTO SHOP — Two Delancey Street Foundation residents tinker with the group's antique truck while a third makes a phone call. The old truck is a rolling reminder of Delancey's emphasis on the old-fashioned work ethic. The auto shop is one of several moneymaking operations supporting the group.

Harry Truman: He Did His Damndest

The stout heart finally gave up, but even in his last illness, Harry Truman proved a tough fighter to the end. His doctors were amazed at the vitality that kept him alive for weeks after all signs were against survival.

It was typical of Harry Truman. He was a man who never quit.

We may never see his like in the White House again. All politicians claim to be "men of the people." But Harry Truman really was a man of the people. His virtues were the solid virtues that the people admire; his failings, the human failings that the people understand.

WHEN FRANK D. Roosevelt tapped the senator from Missouri to be his third vice presidential running-mate, Truman felt deeply the responsibility that might be thrust upon him, for he knew the President, then winding up his third term, was in uncertain health. But he accepted the challenge, as he accepted all challenges. For Harry Truman never "copped out."

FDR did not take his vice presidents into his confidence. So when Roosevelt died on April 12, 1945 — with World War II at its climax — Truman faced the critical war-ending, peace-making decision period with little preparation. He fully realized this.

The humility that accompanied his bulldog tenaciousness was shown in his remark to reporters after he was sworn into office in a hasty ceremony following Roosevelt's death. "Pray for me!" he asked the newsmen.

But with the decision-making power thrust upon him, Harry Truman did not hesitate to make decisions. Some of them were great. Some of them were wrong. But none of them was a "copout."

HE ORDERED the atomic bombing of Japan —to end the war with a saving of lives, as he saw it. He instituted the Marshall Plan to rebuild Europe. He proved he would not back down to Stalin when he ordered the Berlin Airlift. He put the United States into the Korean War because he felt it was necessary to make the United Nations effective.

The motto of his presidency was on his White House desk: "The buck stops here." It epitomized the no-nonsense, down-to-earth integrity that endeared Harry Truman to the people, and that enabled him to snatch victory from predicted defeat in his 1948 presidential race against Thomas E. Dewey — a startling victory in an election in which early editions of the Chicago Tribune headlined a Dewey victory, to Truman's subsequent delight.

A scholar-historian writing of United States presidents recently predicted that Truman might be the last man without a college education to sit in the White House; he only finished high school.

He may also, as big spending and contrived publicity play larger and larger roles in our elections, be the last President who can truly be called "a man of the people."

LONG BEFORE he breathed his last on Tuesday morning, he had picked the epitaph he wanted. It was on a tombstone in a pioneer cemetery in Arizona: "Here lies Jack Williams. He done his damndest."

That was Harry Truman. He did his damndest.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

'Slow' Police Response Actually Was Speedy

Relative to a letter written by S. Ruland that appeared in the Independent Journal on Dec. 19, complaining of slow response to emergency calls by the San Anselmo Police Department, please be advised of the following discrepancies in that letter.

The first alleged incident occurred on Thanksgiving morning, Nov. 23. Radio log and police report both show that two officers arrived five minutes after receiving the message. Locating the exact apartment was difficult as the complainant reported the disturbance was taking place in one of six apartments at 1355 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard. This case amounted to an argument between a husband and wife.

The second allegation occurred on Saturday, Dec. 9. It should be noted that this department was not directly contacted by anyone at the scene. Rather, this department was advised by county communications to follow up an ambulance call at 1355 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard. This request was made at 5:37 p.m., and the officer arrived at 5:39 p.m., a matter of two minutes. This was involving a lady who had fallen and was injured.

It is most unfortunate that your newspaper does not have a policy to check on facts before publishing such as injurious letter.

City Backs Developer Against Conservationist

A few months ago, this subscriber wrote about the condemnation of the Will Lieb's land on Hill Road by the City of Novato to aid and assist an Oakland developer so he could build 92 apartments on the old Louis Nave place adjacant to Mr. Lieb's chicken ranch.

Ready for Chapter 2?

Now, the Oakland developer is busy tearing out trees, among them, a bull pine growing at the entrance of Will Lieb's ranch. Justification: "Not enough room to allow heavy equipment onto the project."

The Novato Planning Department says the tree is to remain. The Novato public works director sent the project superintendent a letter to wit: remove the tree. The city manager "backs up" the public works director. The city attorney, Clark Palmer, is receiving "pressure" from the law firm of the Oakland developer, so he wants the city to act against Will Lieb and get this "straightened out."

Will Lieb has appealed to the "conservation-minded city councilman" but, after three or more 'phone calls, the "representative of the people" states: "Settle the law suit and we can save the tree". Legal blackmail is now being applied to a citizen and taxpayer who was born in Novato on the ranch he is trying to defend . . .

Solution: At this point, the citizens of Novato have but two ways to correct this type of problem:

#1: Dis-incorporate the City of Novato; thus, eliminate the city hall crowd.

#2: Request the resignation of the city manager, Charles Brown; the resignation of the city attorney, Clark Palmer, and the resignation of the city public works director, Cliff Temps.

Which solution do you support?

NOW Newsletter Not Advertising Organ

I was quite shocked and more than a little annoyed at a paragraph in Mary Leydecker's column of 18 Dec. referring to the Marin NOW Newsletter as an "advertising media for lesbians." Ms. (Mrs.-editor) Leydecker was in error, which she admitted to in a subsequent call to her desk. She agreed to a retraction statement in the 19 Dc. issue of the I-J. A rather vague statement did appear on the 20th, however where was it located? At the bottom of an insert advertising supplement, a throwaway sheet in many Marin households. This is hardly a satisfactory retraction.

If an I-J writer is allowed to prominently print snide, high school gossip column remarks, factually in error and not correct these in an equally prominent place, your paper is sinking to even newer lows in its quality of news and comment.

To set the record straight, the Marin NOW Newsletter accepts no advertising of any kind and I can think of no feminist publication in Marin County which is an "advertising media for lesbians", so Ms. Leydecker is in error from every standpoint . . .

Plan Or No Plan, Costs Will Go Up

The Independent-Journal editorial of Dec. 11, on the countywide plan, "Where Will All The Money Come From?", is based on one false assumption. It gives the impression that there will be no cost to the taxpayers if the plan were not carried out. In fact, however, we will have to pay for needed governmental services whether the countywide plan is adopted or not. The question really is, whether we want to pay for a Marin which follows the goals of the present countywide plan, or a different plan, or no plan at all.

In some respects, Marin with a countywide plan may be less expensive than Marin without the plan. For example, the estimated capital cost over 18 years of the proposed transportation system would be $522 million. The estimated capital cost of the transportation system that would be required, if present trends continued without the plan, is $697 million.

The financing gaps, which exist between some of the plan's goals and the assumed revenue sources, are a cause for concern. That is why we have so clearly shown them. It means that we have to work hard to close these gaps, or if unsuccessful, to revise the goals of the plan in the future.

You further stated that the annual per capita cost from $355 to $363 was in addition to the present tax load. This is very misleading. Firstly, the annual cost is given in 1990 dollars. Expressed in 1972 dollars, the amount would be $226 to $235. . .

Nixon's Young Man Whitehead Inherits Agnew Censorship Role

WASHINGTON — At the White House, they explain their latest excursion against the First Amendment in almost patriotic terms: When Clay T. Whitehead speaks for the administration and hints at bringing the government even more directly into censorship of broadcast news, he is merely seeking to start a good old-fashioned American public debate.

That his carefully phrased remarks, certainly cleared by high political policymakers in the White House, are a clear menace to freedom of the press just insures that the debate will be healthy and direct. So let it begin.

WHITEHEAD, who is a bright young man out of MIT and Rand Corp., was chosen originally as director of the White House Office of Telecommunications Policy presumably because he is expert in systems engineering and other such technical disciplines. That no doubt is helpful in one of the important areas of communications controversy these days, cable television.

But what Whitehead increasingly has tried to do is apply federal government systems engineering, with a distinctly Nixon-Republican flair, to the content of news programs. He broke into the open first by deploring the central (for which read "liberal") production of news and public affairs programs on the Public Broadcasting Service, and since then a new chief of the corporation for public broadcasting has been named to put his views into policy.

Now he is after the Big Three private networks that feed news and news analysis into every home in the country.

He made a speech at Indianapolis calling for legislation to set two standards for television station license renewals from the Federal Communications Commission. Stations would have to show they had been attuned to the needs of their communities, and that they have afforded genuine opportunity for the airing of conflicting views on hot issues.

STANDING ALONE, his suggestions may seem reasonably innocuous, not out of line with existing provisions that stations can be challenged at license renewal time for alleged failure to serve the public. But Whitehead now wants the individual stations also to be held responsible at renewal time for the balance and fairness of the network news programs they broadcast — and if they want to be sure of renewal, they had damn well better put pressure on the networks to shape up.

Even going that far, his proposals might sound acceptable if drifting out of academe, or from some seminar of private broadcasters. What makes them totally unacceptable and deeply threatening is their source — the most censorship-prone and politically pugnacious White House since the television era dawned.

This is the outfit engaged in a niggling reprisal against the society reporter of the Washington Post because the Post was by White House standards too aggressive in its coverage of the Watergate affair. It is the one that turned Mr. Agnew loose on the networks and the press. It is the one whose former attorney general urged that newsmen be held vulnerable to subpoena to disclose their sources — and a subsequent court ruling to that effect has a series of reporters either in or threatened by jail.

Indeed, despite the cold and colorless sound of his credentials — MIT, Rand, systems engineering — it appears that Whitehead has the Agnew franchise for the time being. The White House declined to respond when asked whether he had inherited the Agnew speechwriter, too, but the stylistic evidence was strong, and it was the language surrounding his legislative proposals that raised hackles in the networks and newsrooms.

He put out unfounded innuendo about "ideological plugola" by newsmen who purportedly stress or suppress facts in line with their own prejudices. He called for management discipline of "so-called professionals who confuse sensationalism with sense and who dispense elitist gossip in the guise of news analysis."

TO WHICH the dedicated television fan may say, well, he's right, the networks are overloaded with guys who give us that old Eastern Establishment "booshwa" as if it were the gospel, any why shouldn't they be called to account for it?

And to which anyone sensitive to his basic freedoms must say in return, fine, let's you out there in televisionland call them to account, and let's insist that the industry police itself. But any American who respects his own judgment, and wants to exercise it on the events of the day rather than on propaganda certified by the federal government, will be a fool to let the systems engineers, ex-editorial writers or ex-advertising men in the White House get even one finger so much as one millimeter farther into the judging, balancing, approving or disapproving of broadcast news and comment in this country.

Right To Protect Sources Not Absolute For Reporter

WASHINGTON — I enter a dissenting opinion concerning the alleged right of any reporter under any circumstance to keep any source of information secret for any reason satisfactory to him.

It seems to me that quite a few in the media are overstating and overclaiming the right of unlimited confidentiality, and that trying to put into law an all-embracing shield may well hurt the press, not help it.

Surely something can be said for the right of the public to know sources of information in order to judge the credibility of published information, and the right of courts to subpoena any witness whose knowledge may be essential to a fair trial.

The right of a defendant to a fair trial is constitutionally guaranteed.

When the exercise of these rights comes into conflict, you are not going to find all widsom and all merit on one side.

This conflict was evident in the temporary decision of the Los Angeles Times to withhold the tapes of its interview with a witness in the Watergate trial. The issue dissolved when the Times was given approval by its source to yield the full tapes to the court.

The customary defense of the right of a reporter to shield his sources is that reporting sometimes uncovers wrongdoing by public officials and private citizens which might well remain uncovered unless the press could do its job. The press might well not be able to bring such information to light if it could not protect the anonymity of helpful sources.

That is a valid defense for confidentiality of sources. This kind of confidentiality is a valuable right and deserves to be secured.

BUT THE TWO reporters who are in jail today for refusing to testify in court were in no way engaged in reporting designed to perform any public service of any kind.

The "exclusive" by William Farr, then of the Los Angeles Herald Examiner, dealt with aspects of the Manson murder case leaked to him by lawyers in the case who had been ordered by Judge Charles Older to make public no information concerning the trial. Reporter Farr had been informed of this ruling by the court.

The New Republic, which is certainly not soft on civil rights, describes this reporter's story "as a seamy sensational account based on material obtained in contradiction to court order, where selling more newspapers was the only public service."

The other reporter in jail for contempt of court is Peter Bridge of the defunct Evening News of Newark, N.J., who put into print an unsubstantiated, unverified allegation from an unidentified source of a $10,000 bribe attempt to influence a Newark housing commissioner to vote for a particular executive director of the commission.

Mrs. Pearl Beatty under oath told quite a different story than Bridge reported and refuted two other versions attributed to her. Understandably the county prosecutor, after reading allegations which appeared to him unfounded but printed as if true, wanted to establish what was true and what was false.

He subpoenaed Bridge to testify. Bridge refused to testify. But why shouldn't he testify if he wanted to perform a public service?

THE RIGHT of a reporter to shield his confidential sources seems to me a valid and defensible right when it is being used to serve the public interest. When it is so used — and it was not so used in either of these two cases —it would be reasonable to expect the courts to respect that right.

If a judge disdains that right when it is reasonably exercised, then a newspaper and its reporter should fight it out in court — and be ready to take the consequences.

In my opinion the press does not need a special law to shield its sources when it is valid to do so.

SB 90's Built-In Shortages May Rule Out Tax Cut

By RUS WALTON

The financial affairs of the state are, to put it mildly, slightly confused. If you ran a business in the same way, you'd be bankrupt in a year — or less.

On the one hand, there are those — mainly in the governor's staff and cabinet — who feel that the state is piling up a surplus at such a rate that a tax cut is in order.

That is why Governor Reagan announced recently that he would press for a cut in income taxes next year.

But others — in the controller's office and the legislative staff, and including Finance Director Verne Orr — say that future surpluses have already been committed to the other programs. There is, they say, no money for any tax reductions.

Further, they predict that the state may be forced to increase taxes within the next two or three years.

And they point to SB 90 — the so-called tax shift and education financing act — as the culprit: it will sop up any extra funds, and then some.

SO, THE SACRAMENTO stage is set. The houselights dim, and the players take their places. To cut or not to cut, that is the question. To tax, perchance to increase — aye, there's the rub!

Either way, it's your money and you might be interested in this bob-tailed projection of some state spending in the coming three years:

SB 90 has no impact on the current fiscal year, which ends June 30, 1973. The experts agree 1972-73 will end with a surplus of about $700 million. It is from that tidy pot of gold that Governor Reagan wants to cut your taxes.

SB 90 starts grinding away on July 1, 1973. And its on-going, built-in demands will cost the taxpayers at least $1 billion a year at the state level. Which is one reason finance director Verne Orr is predicting a $9.4 billion budget next year.

Geanted, about one-half of that increase, $550 million, will go to reimburse counties for revenue losses due to the increase in the homeowners' property tax exemptions. Another $560 million will go for increased state support of public schools.

The increased revenues from the hike in the sales tax and the bank and corporation tax will bring in about $670 million. Anticipated federal revenue sharing funds put another $215 million in the pot. But the pot will be something like $248 million short — and that shortage will be taken from "surplus" funds.

A SIMILAR SHORTAGE will occur in 1974-75.

Increased expenses because of SB 90 will total $1.27 billion that year. Increased revenues, including federal "sharing" funds, will come to about $1 billion. So, the state will have to toss $227 million into the pot and that, again, will come from the surplus.

In 1975-76, the deficit will be even larger: $1.4 billion. The "new" income will come to only $1.1 billion, leaving a shortage of $300 million.

All told, for those three years SB 90 will cost $825 million more than it takes in. The problem is there may not be that much money in the state's till to make up the difference.

Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post thinks the total surplus for those same three years may come to about $500 million. If, he says — if there are no other new programs or demands on the treasury.

Thus, it would seem that the built-in drain of SB 90 will not only gobble up all the surplus funds for the three years, 1973-76, it will require another $325 million. That extra $325 million must come either from new taxes or cuts in other state programs.

His first year in office, Governor Reagan was forced to raise taxes to pay for his predecessor's extravagances. The next man to take over the governor's office may find himself in the same position.

Harry Truman: He Did His Damndest

The stout heart finally gave up, but even in his last illness, Harry Truman proved a tough fighter to the end. His doctors were amazed at the vitality that kept him alive for weeks after all signs were against survival.

It was typical of Harry Truman. He was a man who never quit.

We may never see his like in the White House again. All politicians claim to be "men of the people." But Harry Truman really was a man of the people. His virtues were the solid virtues that the people admire; his failings, the human failings that the people understand.

WHEN FRANK D. Roosevelt tapped the senator from Missouri to be his third vice presidential running-mate, Truman felt deeply the responsibility that might be thrust upon him, for he knew the President, then winding up his third term, was in uncertain health. But he accepted the challenge, as he accepted all challenges. For Harry Truman never "copped out."

FDR did not take his vice presidents into his confidence. So when Roosevelt died on April 12, 1945 — with World War II at its climax — Truman faced the critical war-ending, peace-making decision period with little preparation. He fully realized this.

The humility that accompanied his bulldog tenaciousness was shown in his remark to reporters after he was sworn into office in a hasty ceremony following Roosevelt's death. "Pray for me!" he asked the newsmen.

But with the decision-making power thrust upon him, Harry Truman did not hesitate to make decisions. Some of them were great. Some of them were wrong. But none of them was a "copout."

HE ORDERED the atomic bombing of Japan —to end the war with a saving of lives, as he saw it. He instituted the Marshall Plan to rebuild Europe. He proved he would not back down to Stalin when he ordered the Berlin Airlift. He put the United States into the Korean War because he felt it was necessary to make the United Nations effective.

The motto of his presidency was on his White House desk: "The buck stops here." It epitomized the no-nonsense, down-to-earth integrity that endeared Harry Truman to the people, and that enabled him to snatch victory from predicted defeat in his 1948 presidential race against Thomas E. Dewey — a startling victory in an election in which early editions of the Chicago Tribune headlined a Dewey victory, to Truman's subsequent delight.

A scholar-historian writing of United States presidents recently predicted that Truman might be the last man without a college education to sit in the White House; he only finished high school.

He may also, as big spending and contrived publicity play larger and larger roles in our elections, be the last President who can truly be called "a man of the people."

LONG BEFORE he breathed his last on Tuesday morning, he had picked the epitaph he wanted. It was on a tombstone in a pioneer cemetery in Arizona: "Here lies Jack Williams. He done his damndest."

That was Harry Truman. He did his damndest.

'Slow' Police Response Actually Was Speedy

Relative to a letter written by S. Ruland that appeared in the Independent Journal on Dec. 19, complaining of slow response to emergency calls by the San Anselmo Police Department, please be advised of the following discrepancies in that letter.

The first alleged incident occurred on Thanksgiving morning, Nov. 23. Radio log and police report both show that two officers arrived five minutes after receiving the message. Locating the exact apartment was difficult as the complainant reported the disturbance was taking place in one of six apartments at 1355 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard. This case amounted to an argument between a husband and wife.

The second allegation occurred on Saturday, Dec. 9. It should be noted that this department was not directly contacted by anyone at the scene. Rather, this department was advised by county communications to follow up an ambulance call at 1355 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard. This request was made at 5:37 p.m., and the officer arrived at 5:39 p.m., a matter of two minutes. This was involving a lady who had fallen and was injured.

It is most unfortunate that your newspaper does not have a policy to check on facts before publishing such as injurious letter.

City Backs Developer Against Conservationist

A few months ago, this subscriber wrote about the condemnation of the Will Lieb's land on Hill Road by the City of Novato to aid and assist an Oakland developer so he could build 92 apartments on the old Louis Nave place adjacant to Mr. Lieb's chicken ranch.

Ready for Chapter 2?

Now, the Oakland developer is busy tearing out trees, among them, a bull pine growing at the entrance of Will Lieb's ranch. Justification: "Not enough room to allow heavy equipment onto the project."

The Novato Planning Department says the tree is to remain. The Novato public works director sent the project superintendent a letter to wit: remove the tree. The city manager "backs up" the public works director. The city attorney, Clark Palmer, is receiving "pressure" from the law firm of the Oakland developer, so he wants the city to act against Will Lieb and get this "straightened out."

Will Lieb has appealed to the "conservation-minded city councilman" but, after three or more 'phone calls, the "representative of the people" states: "Settle the law suit and we can save the tree". Legal blackmail is now being applied to a citizen and taxpayer who was born in Novato on the ranch he is trying to defend . . .

Solution: At this point, the citizens of Novato have but two ways to correct this type of problem:

#1: Dis-incorporate the City of Novato; thus, eliminate the city hall crowd.

#2: Request the resignation of the city manager, Charles Brown; the resignation of the city attorney, Clark Palmer, and the resignation of the city public works director, Cliff Temps.

Which solution do you support?

NOW Newsletter Not Advertising Organ

I was quite shocked and more than a little annoyed at a paragraph in Mary Leydecker's column of 18 Dec. referring to the Marin NOW Newsletter as an "advertising media for lesbians." Ms. (Mrs.-editor) Leydecker was in error, which she admitted to in a subsequent call to her desk. She agreed to a retraction statement in the 19 Dc. issue of the I-J. A rather vague statement did appear on the 20th, however where was it located? At the bottom of an insert advertising supplement, a throwaway sheet in many Marin households. This is hardly a satisfactory retraction.

If an I-J writer is allowed to prominently print snide, high school gossip column remarks, factually in error and not correct these in an equally prominent place, your paper is sinking to even newer lows in its quality of news and comment.

To set the record straight, the Marin NOW Newsletter accepts no advertising of any kind and I can think of no feminist publication in Marin County which is an "advertising media for lesbians", so Ms. Leydecker is in error from every standpoint . . .

Plan Or No Plan, Costs Will Go Up

The Independent-Journal editorial of Dec. 11, on the countywide plan, "Where Will All The Money Come From?", is based on one false assumption. It gives the impression that there will be no cost to the taxpayers if the plan were not carried out. In fact, however, we will have to pay for needed governmental services whether the countywide plan is adopted or not. The question really is, whether we want to pay for a Marin which follows the goals of the present countywide plan, or a different plan, or no plan at all.

In some respects, Marin with a countywide plan may be less expensive than Marin without the plan. For example, the estimated capital cost over 18 years of the proposed transportation system would be $522 million. The estimated capital cost of the transportation system that would be required, if present trends continued without the plan, is $697 million.

The financing gaps, which exist between some of the plan's goals and the assumed revenue sources, are a cause for concern. That is why we have so clearly shown them. It means that we have to work hard to close these gaps, or if unsuccessful, to revise the goals of the plan in the future.

You further stated that the annual per capita cost from $355 to $363 was in addition to the present tax load. This is very misleading. Firstly, the annual cost is given in 1990 dollars. Expressed in 1972 dollars, the amount would be $226 to $235. . .

Nixon's Young Man Whitehead Inherits Agnew Censorship Role

WASHINGTON — At the White House, they explain their latest excursion against the First Amendment in almost patriotic terms: When Clay T. Whitehead speaks for the administration and hints at bringing the government even more directly into censorship of broadcast news, he is merely seeking to start a good old-fashioned American public debate.

That his carefully phrased remarks, certainly cleared by high political policy-makers in the White House, are a clear menace to freedom of the press just insures that the debate will be healthy and direct. So let it begin.

WHITEHEAD, who is a bright young man out of MIT and Rand Corp., was chosen originally as director of the White House Office of Telecommunications Policy presumably because he is expert in systems engineering and other such technical disciplines. That no doubt is helpful in one of the important areas of communications controversy these days, cable television.

But what Whitehead increasingly has tried to do is apply federal government systems engineering, with a distinctly Nixon-Republican flair, to the content of news programs. He broke into the open first by deploring the central (for which read "liberal") production of news and public affairs programs on the Public Broadcasting Service, and since then a new chief of the corporation for public broadcasting has been named to put his views into policy.

Now he is after the Big Three private networks that feed news and news analysis into every home in the country.

He made a speech at Indianapolis calling for legislation to set two standards for television station license renewals from the Federal Communications Commission. Stations would have to show they had been attuned to the needs of their communities, and that they have afforded genuine opportunity for the airing of conflicting views on hot issues.

STANDING ALONE, his suggestions may seem reasonably innocuous, not out of line with existing provisions that stations can be challenged at license renewal time for alleged failure to serve the public. But Whitehead now wants the individual stations also to be held responsible at renewal time for the balance and fairness of the network news programs they broadcast — and if they want to be sure of renewal, they had damn well better put pressure on the networks to shape up.

Even going that far, his proposals might sound acceptable if drifting out of academe, or from some seminar of private broadcasters. What makes them totally unacceptable and deeply threatening is their source — the most censorship-prone and politically pugnacious White House since the television era dawned.

This is the outfit engaged in a niggling reprisal against the society reporter of the Washington Post because the Post was by White House standards too aggressive in its coverage of the Watergate affair. It is the one that turned Mr. Agnew loose on the networks and the press. Indeed, despite the cold and colorless sound of his credentials — MIT, Rand, systems engineering — it appears that Whitehead has the Agnew franchise for the time being. The White House declined to respond when asked whether he had inherited the Agnew speechwriter, too, but the stylistic evidence was strong, and it was the language surrounding his legislative proposals that raised hackles in the networks and newsrooms.

He put out unfounded innuendo about "ideological plugola" by newsmen who purportedly stress or suppress facts in line with their own prejudices. He called for management discipline of "so-called professionals who confuse sensationalism with sense and who dispense elitist gossip in the guise of news analysis."

Publicized Candidacies Increase Planning Commission Choices

If there is any lingering doubt that planning is a hot matter in Novato, the healthy turnout of candidates for appointment to the planning commission should dispel it.

Interest was expected to be spurred by the recent debates about the city's proposed new general plan, but the number of applicants, 10, was still a surprise.

Incidentally, the turnout of 10 applicants came shortly after the Independent-Journal had battled to make public the names of persons being considered for appointment to city commissions and committees.

At that time Mayor F. Wayne Sartain was hesitant, commenting that the publication of names might discourage some able persons from applying.

Apparently in the past, a would-be commissioner could submit his name, and if not chosen, wouldn't suffer embarrassment, loss of face or whatever through publicity.

One of the applicants, Col. John F. Taylor, said he believed the publicity and consequent interviews of candidates by the Independent-Journal were good.

"The more people you get interested, theoretically, the better choice you will have," he said.

THE CITY HAD many applicants, not only for the planning commission, but also for the parks and recreation commission and several committees.

Under the city's current policy, the lists will be updated every six months to assure that those on the list are still interested in serving.

The procedure now, with publication of names, interviews by the council, and up-to-date lists, is certainly tidier than in the past.

In past years, the council would have a secret session for a few minutes or more and then come out and announce that so-and-so was appointed.

Members of the audience might or might not have known that so-and-so was being considered, but most likely didn't know who else might have been considered.

THE COUNCIL'S choices this time were George McDaniel, a veterinarian, and Robert Glascock, a construction superintendent for Condiotti Enterprises.

The appointment of Glascock, a representative of the building and construction industry, on the commission might raise a few eyebrows among environmentalists, but apparently councilmen believed it would provide some balance on the commission.

State Will Observe Day For Truman

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan has ordered all but the emergency functions of state government to shutdown Thursday for an "official day of mourning" for former President Harry S Truman.

In proclaiming the day of mourning, Reagan gave most state workers the day off Thursday. He said state offices would maintain work forces to meet emergency situations and to provide vitally necessary public services.

A spokesman for Reagan said the day of mourning would not be exactly like a state holiday because it was uncertain how many state employes would be needed on the job.

"I call upon all businesses and all citizens to join in the observance of this day which is being set aside to honor the memory of former President Truman," Reagan said Tuesday in a statement issued by his office.

Sinyavsky, 46, made the application to the Soviet visa office. He has received no reply as yet, the sources said.

State Hierarchy Pretends Bagley Act Still Law

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

California's public education hierarchy seems intent on pretending that Proposition 21 did not pass and the Bagley Act is still on the lawbooks.

Proposition 21 did pass on Nov. 7, by an overwhelming margin. It was in two parts. The first part declares: "No public school student shall, because of his race, creed, or color, be assigned to or required to attend a particular school." The second part repeals the Bagley Act, which provided that school districts should make annual surveys of the racial balance in each school and each grade and prepare plans for eliminating imbalance where found.

Under the California Constitution, a ballot measure passed by the people becomes law immediately on certification of the election returns. So the Bagley Act no longer is in existence.

HOWEVER, at the California State Board of Education's December meeting, State Supt. Wilson C. Riles presented comments from the Department of Education's legal staff on "implications of Proposition 21."

The legal staff noted that three challenges of the proposition are in the courts: in Santa Barbara, San Bernardino and Sacramento counties. The staff then speculated that "an independent action could be filed against the State Board of Education to require them (sic) to adopt regulations under the Bagley Act."

Therefore, said Riles — on advice of his legal staff — the state board should either (1) continue to develop guidelines for implementing the Bagley Act, or (2) wait and see what happens in the courts.

THE BOARD DECIDED to continue to develop guidelines for implementing the non-existent act. On motion of Mark T. Gates Jr. of Los Angeles, it voted to have the committee that was appointed to work out the Bagley Act guidelines "continue development of regulations which would alleviate... ethnic, racial or economic conflict."

The committee members, accordingly, will travel around the state, running up bills, and chart proposed methods of alleviating "ethnic, racial or economic conflict" — all under authority of an act that has been repealed.

Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, author of the act, has himself entered the Santa Barbara case, filing an amicus curiae brief attacking the constitutionality of both Proposition 21 and the method by which it was qualified for the ballot. He claims it should have been a referendum instead of an initiative.

Given the usual court delays, the suit cannot be expected to reach the California Supreme Court in less than two years. If appeal is carried to the United States Supreme Court, it may be four or five years before the issue is decided.

IN THE MEANTIME, according to the resolution passed by the state board, the Bagley Act-authorized committee will go on spending money and making rules just as if the act were still law.

The legality of such expenses might be subject to question. The Department of Education's legal staff, however, did not speculate as to whether a taxpayer suit might be filed as result of such spending.

IN RESPONSE to a recent column, I have received requests for addresses of State Board of Education members. Here they are:

Sentencing Set On Armed Robbery

LeRoy Raymond Quintana, 29, of Novato, is to appear in Marin Superior Court Tuesday for sentencing on two counts of armed robbery.

He entered guilty pleas to the charges in an appearance before Judge Samuel W. Gardiner on Friday. Quintana was arrested Oct. 3 by San Rafael police. Officers reported three men complained that Quintana pointed a gun at them and demanded their wallets, at Third and Tamalpais streets.

Russia Still Dominant In Chess

By LARRY ELDRIDGE
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

Bobby Fischer's victory over Boris Spassky struck a big blow for western chess, but don't get the idea it ended Russia's overall domination of the game.

The Soviet Union still has more top players than the rest of the world put together, as it proved a couple of years ago by winning a match under such terms. Now in addition to this old guard, the Russians have come up with a 21-year-old sensation, Anatoly Karpov, the man they hope will win back the title for them in the not too distant future.

Americans got a first-hand look at this newest Soviet grandmaster during the international tournament recently in San Antonio, Tex., and he showed them plenty. There were chess luminaries present from all over the world, but Karpov still tied for first place with his countryman Tigran Petrosian, the former world champion, and Hungarian star Lajos Portisch.

Both Fischer and Spassky turned down invitations to play in the wake of their summerlong title struggle, but the new champion did show up on the final day and immediately became the main attraction. He was surprisingly gregarious, shaking hands, signing autographs, granting interviews, and showing none of the moody, petulant, arrogant image he conveyed during the match in Iceland.

Questions turned quickly to Fischer's immediate plans — especially the possibility of a title defense. Under the current international system, the next championship match isn't scheduled until 1975, but Fischer has indicated he wants to defend his title more frequently than that, and there's been a lot of talk about a rematch with Spassky, perhaps next year.

Money is always a big item with Fischer; however, and the 29-year old American made it clear that his price comes high nowadays. He doesn't like to mention specific figures, but he pointed out that professional golf tournaments offer first prizes of up to $50,000. Furthermore, he said, chess is more difficult than golf, and a chess tourney takes about a month compared to one weekend.

So how much should be put up for a chess event?

"You figure it out," he said.

Fischer said he still considered Spassky the best player around — present company excluded, of course. Asked about up-and-coming players who might be future challengers, he agreed there were a few around, but when he was pressed to identify them he laughed and said: "I don't want to encourage them."

Karpov's name naturally came up, but Fischer wasn't about to give the young Russian star any ego trip.

"I've hardly heard of him," Fischer deadpanned.

A better guess would be that Fischer is very much aware of everything Karpov has done, and is already studying his games in much the same way he pored over those of Petrosian, Spassky, and other prospective foes. But, as he said why encourage the competition?

Actually, few people had heard of Karpov until about a year ago, when he burst into international prominence with first place in the Alekhine Memorial Tournament in Moscow ahead of Spassky, Petrosian and many other big names. Now his followup in San Antonio demonstrates conclusively that the earlier triumph was no fluke.

Karpov won seven games, drew seven, and lost just one in the 16-player round robin competition. Portisch had the same score, while the notoriously cautious Petrosian played nine draws and six wins to come out with the same total of 10 and one-half points.

Petrosian and Karpov were tied for first place entering the last round, with Portisch half a point behind them. Both leaders had the white pieces, and thus the advantage of the first move. But by an apparent pre-arrangement they settled for quick draws, Petrosian playing only 10 moves against Duncan Suttles of Canada while Karpov made only nine against Henrique Mecking of Brazil.

Either of the Russians might have tried for victory and thus risk a defeat in hopes of winning the tournament outright, but they played it safe. Portisch then won his final game to catch up.

There were four Americans in the field, but not one could manage even a .500 performance. Donald Byrne's 10th place finish was the best U.S. showing, with Larry Evans coming in 11th, Anthony Saidy tied for 14th, and Kenneth Smith last.

Yes, Fischer may be the world champion, but except for him, it looks as though the U.S. still has quite a bit of catching up to do.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

Publicized Candidacies Increase Planning Commission Choices

If there is any lingering doubt that planning is a hot matter in Novato, the healthy turnout of candidates for appointment to the planning commission should dispel it.

Interest was expected to be spurred by the recent debates about the city's proposed new general plan, but the number of applicants, 10, was still a surprise.

Incidentally, the turnout of 10 applicants came shortly after the Independent-Journal had battled to make public the names of persons being considered for appointment to city commissions and committees.

At that time Mayor F. Wayne Sartain was hesitant, commenting that the publication of names might discourage some able persons from applying.

Apparently in the past, a would-be commissioner could submit his name, and if not chosen, wouldn't suffer embarrassment, loss of face or whatever through publicity.

One of the applicants, Col. John F. Taylor, said he believed the publicity and consequent interviews of candidates by the Independent-Journal were good.

"The more people you get interested, theoretically, the better choice you will have," he said.

THE CITY HAD many aplicants, not only for the planning commission, but also for the parks and recreation commission and several committees.

Under the city's current policy, the lists will be updated every six months to assure that those on the list are still interested in serving.

The procedure now, with publication of names, interviews by the council, and up-to-date lists, is certainly tidier than in the past.

In past years, the council would have a secret session for a few minutes or more and then come out and announce that so-and-so was appointed.

East Learns That High Cards Alone Won't Win The Big Hand

People sometimes thoughtlessly say that bridge is a game of high cards. If you're lucky enough to be dealt enough high cards, you'll win; otherwise, you'll lose. The fallacy in this kind of claim is shown in a hand played in the recent playoff to pick the North American team for the 1973 world championship.

EAST LUCKY?

Wasn't East lucky to be dealt those 21 points in high cards! What a winner he was sure to be! But let's see how Fate slipped East a Mickey.

New York expert Bill Grieve simply wasn't going to pass the South hand even though he was vulnerable and had heard East's opening bid of two notrump. He bid three clubs to start with, knowing that there would be further bidding.

A QUESTION

"Is that anything special?" West asked Grieve's partner. (So many club bids have a special meaning that you learn to take nothing for granted.) "I think it's for the majors," George Rapee answered. He dimly remembered a discussion five years earlier in which he and Grive had decided that clubs more than notrump should be for major suit takeout, or perhaps not. Five years is a long time to remember.

RIGHT HAND

If South wanted majors, Rapee has the right hand; so he jumped to four spades. Grieve had to bid five clubs, and now see how lucky East was. His opponents obviously didn't know what they were doing! "Double," he announced.

South won the opening lead with the ace of diamonds, cashed the ace of hearts and ruffed a heart in dummy. He ruffed a spade in his hand, and ruffed another low heart in dummy. When the king of hearts fell, it was all over. South drew trumps and claimed the rest, making his doubled game contract.

WHAT YOU MAKE

"You've simply proved that distribution is luckier than high cards," you may object. Not so. At the other table South passed with his fine distribution, and his opponents bid and made three no-trump. Luck is what you make it.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with two notrump (22 to 24 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - J 8 6 5 3 2
♥ - 10
♦ - 10 7 3
♣ - 10 5 3.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three spades.

You will probably get to four spades as a final contract. If you cannot make four spades, the consolation is that your partner might well have gone down if you had passed him at two no-trump.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Physicians Can Now Determine Congenital Defects In Fetus

Physicians now can determine whether a pregnant woman is carrying a fetus with congenital defects. During the 15th or 16th week of pregnancy, a small amount of amniotic fluid is removed from the bag of waters in the uterus for chromosomal analysis. Testing requires about 14 days.

The procedure is not recommended for the majority of pregnant women, but will help alleviate the anxiety of the small percentage of women most likely to give birth to babies with chromosomal aberrations that cause a variety of defects. If the test is positive, the family will be given the option for therapeutic abortion.

AMNIOTIC FLUID analysis or amniocentesis now is considered the best way to reduce the number of mongoloid births. The procedure is aimed mainly at pregnant women over 40 (some physicans say 35) years of age in whom the risk of having a mongoloid child is the greatest.

Statisticians tell us that although only 13.5 per cent of the babies are born to women over 35, these same women produce over 50 per cent of the mongoloids. The overall figure is one infant with a significant chromosomal abnormality in 200 live births. But in mothers 40 to 45 years of age, there is one mongoloid per 66 births, and one in 21 infants born to mothers 45 and older.

THE RISK attending amniotic fluid testing is not as great as giving birth to a mongoloid child. In a series of 155 amniotic fluid analyses by Dr. H.L. Nadler of Children's Memorial Hospital in Chicago, there were no immediate complications. Premature births occurred in seven. But significant chromosomal aberrations were noted in 85 of the 155 women.

These and other reports have led authorities to believe that at least one-quarter of all mongoloids expected to be born each year could be recognized early in pregnancy by this procedure. This would result in tremendous savings in the cost of custodial care and spare the parents many heartaches.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

NIGHTMARES

Mrs. S. M. writes: My 18-year-old grandson has nightmares and often gets up, dresses, and goes outside for a while. Then he goes back to bed, fully dressed. He also moves things around the room without waking. A few nights ago he broke his heavy bed. He awoke on the floor, with a cut on his leg, and pain in the stomach. Can you give me some advice on this boy?

REPLY

He needs medical attention, as he may have epilepsy.

LAXATIVES

S. A. writes: Is it safe to take a mild laxative every day to reduce?

REPLY

It is safe, but rather silly. Laxatives remove waste material that is about to be eliminated under its own power. Stronger purges remove water — not fat. Why not eat more roughage that is low in calories and filling? It is more logical and will take the place of the laxative.

LEG FRACTURE

B. K. writes: Can a woman of 60 who broke a leg ever walk again?

REPLY

Yes — after the fracture is set and healing is complete. She may have a residual limp.

U.S. Protests Bomb Criticism

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The State Department has "protested strongly" Swedish Prime Minister Olaf Palme's criticism of American bombing of North Vietnam and has decided to keep the U.S. charge d'affaires to Stockholm, John Guthrie, in Washington for the time being.

Guthrie is in Washington. A State Department spokesman said: "He will not return, at least for the time being."

The spokesman said Guthrie's remaining here was related to the U.S. government's reaction to a statement by Palme that the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam was an outrage to be compared with Nazi massacres of World War II.

Seven Hurt In Fire At Hotel

OAKLAND (UPI) — A three-alarm fire forced the evacuation of 101 persons Tuesday night from the five-story San Pablo Hotel.

Seven persons were hospitalized for smoke inhalation, hysteria and slight burns. There were no serious injuries.

The College Yearbooks Dying Off

PALO ALTO (BW) — Time has begun to catch up with the college yearbooks — Tomes of campus trivia, gossip and athletic lore. Like homecomings, proms and Greek life in general, yearbooks are becoming a dying breed, reports California Business, financial weekly of the west.

Their editors, much like the publishers of the expiring Life and the already dead Look and Saturday Evening Post, cite rising costs, heavy debt and a rapidly changing and unpredictable audience as the cause.

Stanford University's 76-year-old "Quad" failed last year because of financial problems and "general student apathy." The 500-page hardcover book, which sold for $10, was nearly $12,000 in debt when it folded.

The University of Oregon's "Oregana," first published in 1910, "died a very easy death" four years ago, says a campus representative.

She blamed general student disinterest that led to declining subscriptions for killing off the $10 hardcover book.

Roy Paul Nelson, professor of journalism and 1947 editor of the "Oregana," is more specific: "Students no longer feel part of a close-knit organization. It's not like in the old days when everyone knew everyone.

"When I was editor we played up the fraternities and sororities," he says. "Now, most of them are dead. It was the Greek houses that generated the most interest and revenue for the publication."

Another factor Nelson believes contributed to the problem was overly zealous editors. "The editors became more and more dissatisfied with editing — moving more and more towards a magazine and cause-oriented format.

"That wasn't what the people wanted. The kids weren't interested in seeing how creative the editors could be. They wanted a record book," he asserts.

The University of Washington's $10 "Tyee", first published in 1900, also went under last year. Long considered one of the more successful college yearbooks, says Barbara Miller, public information officer, student interest bottomed out along with school spirit.

"This could be the last year for UCLA's 63-year-old "Southern Campus," laments Harry Morris, student publications manager. He also points to the demise of Greek social organizations as the key.

The University of California at Berkeley has turned to an abbreviated format this year in an attempt to stay out of debt. By switching to a much smaller paperbound book, Arthur Choy, manager of the "Blue and Gold", hopes to reverse a trend which has seen sales slipping by 1,000 books a year since 1968.

The business school graduate student says interest may be perking up, evidenced by an increased staff this year, but prospects for the 100-year-old publication remain dim.

"Our yearbook still makes money," beams an office of student publications staffer at the University of Southern California. USC's El Rodeo, published since 1914, even manages to clear several thousand dollars a year, she says.

Today is Wednesday, Dec. 27, the 362nd day of 1972 with four to follow.

The moon is in its last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Mars. The evening stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

Louis Pasteur, noted French bacteriologist, was born Dec. 27, 1822.

For draft eligibles the lottery number is 290.

On this day in history:

In 1941, Japanese airplanes bombed Manila in the Philippines, despite the fact it had been declared an open city.

In 1945, the United States, Russia and Britain announced they would govern Korea as joint trustees for five years, then grant independence.

In 1963, the U.S. Commerce Department authorized the sale of surplus wheat to Russia.

In 1968, the Apollo 8 astronauts returned to Earth after a trip around the moon 10 times, preparatory to later moon-landing missions.

A thought for the day: British physicist John Tyndall said: "It is as fatal as it is cowardly to blink facts because they are not to our taste."

San Rafael air quality yesterday:

Oxidants, clean air.

Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.

Carbon monoxide, light air pollution.

Smoke particles, light air pollution.

Other areas:

San Francisco, clean air.

San Jose, significant air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, while the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Physicians Can Now Determine Congenital Defects In Fetus

Physicians now can determine whether a pregnant woman is carrying a fetus with congenital defects. During the 15th or 16th week of pregnancy, a small amount of amniotic fluid is removed from the bag of waters in the uterus for chromosomal analysis. Testing requires about 14 days.

The procedure is not recommended for the majority of pregnant women, but will help alleviate the anxiety of the small percentage of women most likely to give birth to babies with chromosomal aberrations that cause a variety of defects. If the test is positive, the family will be given the option for therapeutic abortion.

AMNIOTIC FLUID analysis or amniocentesis now is considered the best way to reduce the number of mongoloid births. The procedure is aimed mainly at pregnant women over 40 (some physicans say 35) years of age in whom the risk of having a mongoloid child is the greatest.

Statisticians tell us that although only 13.5 per cent of the babies are born to women over 35, these same women produce over 50 per cent of the mongoloids. The overall figure is one infant with a significant chromosomal abnormality in 200 live births. But in mothers 40 to 45 years of age, there is one mongoloid per 66 births, and one in 21 infants born to mothers 45 and older.

THE RISK attending amniotic fluid testing is not as great as giving birth to a mongoloid child. In a series of 155 amniotic fluid analyses by Dr. H.L. Nadler of Children's Memorial Hospital in Chicago, there were no immediate complications. Premature births occurred in seven. But significant chromosomal aberrations were noted in 85 of the 155 women.

These and other reports have led authorities to believe that at least one-quarter of all mongoloids expected to be born each year could be recognized early in pregnancy by this procedure. This would result in tremendous savings in the cost of custodial care and spare the parents many heartaches.

NIGHTMARES

Mrs. S. M. writes: My 18-year-old grandson has nightmares and often gets up, dresses, and goes outside for a while. Then he goes back to bed, fully dressed. He also moves things around the room without waking. A few nights ago he broke his heavy bed. He awoke on the floor, with a cut on his leg, and pain in the stomach. Can you give me some advice on this boy?

REPLY

He needs medical attention, as he may have epilepsy.

LAXATIVES

S. A. writes: Is it safe to take a mild laxative every day to reduce?

REPLY

It is safe, but rather silly. Laxatives remove waste material that is about to be eliminated under its own power. Stronger purges remove water — not fat. Why not eat more roughage that is low in calories and filling? It is more logical and will take the place of the laxative.

LEG FRACTURE

B. K. writes: Can a woman of 60 who broke a leg ever walk again?

REPLY

Yes — after the fracture is set and healing is complete. She may have a residual limp.

U.S. Protests Bomb Criticism

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The State Department has "protested strongly" Swedish Prime Minister Olaf Palme's criticism of American bombing of North Vietnam and has decided to keep the U.S. charge d'affaires to Stockholm, John Guthrie, in Washington for the time being.

Guthrie is in Washington. A State Department spokesman said: "He will not return, at least for the time being."

The spokesman said Guthrie's remaining here was related to the U.S. government's reaction to a statement by Palme that the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam was an outrage to be compared with Nazi massacres of World War II.

Seven Hurt In Fire At Hotel

OAKLAND (UPI) — A three-alarm fire forced the evacuation of 101 persons Tuesday night from the five-story San Pablo Hotel.

Seven persons were hospitalized for smoke inhalation, hysteria and slight burns. There were no serious injuries.

The College Yearbooks Dying Off

PALO ALTO (BW) — Time has begun to catch up with the college yearbooks — Tomes of campus trivia, gossip and athletic lore. Like homecomings, proms and Greek life in general, yearbooks are becoming a dying breed, reports California Business, financial weekly of the west.

Their editors, much like the publishers of the expiring Life and the already dead Look and Saturday Evening Post, cite rising costs, heavy debt and a rapidly changing and unpredictable audience as the cause.

Stanford University's 76-year-old "Quad" failed last year because of financial problems and "general student apathy." The 500-page hardcover book, which sold for $10, was nearly $12,000 in debt when it folded.

The University of Oregon's "Oregana," first published in 1910, "died a very easy death" four years ago, says a campus representative.

She blamed general student disinterest that led to declining subscriptions for killing off the $10 hardcover book.

Roy Paul Nelson, professor of journalism and 1947 editor of the "Oregana," is more specific: "Students no longer feel part of a close-knit organization. It's not like in the old days when everyone knew everyone.

"When I was editor we played up the fraternities and sororities," he says. "Now, most of them are dead. It was the Greek houses that generated the most interest and revenue for the publication."

Another factor Nelson believes contributed to the problem was overly zealous editors. "The editors became more and more dissatisfied with editing — moving more and more towards a magazine and cause-oriented format.

"That wasn't what the people wanted. The kids weren't interested in seeing how creative the editors could be. They wanted a record book," he asserts.

The University of Washington's $10 "Tyee", first published in 1900, also went under last year. Long considered one of the more successful college yearbooks, says Barbara Miller, public information officer, student interest bottomed out along with school spirit.

"This could be the last year for UCLA's 63-year-old "Southern Campus," laments Harry Morris, student publications manager. He also points to the demise of Greek social organizations as the key.

The University of California at Berkeley has turned to an abbreviated format this year in an attempt to stay out of debt. By switching to a much smaller paperbound book, Arthur Choy, manager of the "Blue and Gold", hopes to reverse a trend which has seen sales slipping by 1,000 books a year since 1968.

The business school graduate student says interest may be perking up, evidenced by an increased staff this year, but prospects for the 100-year-old publication remain dim.

"Our yearbook still makes money," beams an office of student publications staffer at the University of Southern California. USC's El Rodeo, published since 1914, even manages to clear several thousand dollars a year, she says.

Today is Wednesday, Dec. 27, the 362nd day of 1972 with four to follow.

The moon is in its last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Mars. The evening stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

Louis Pasteur, noted French bacteriologist, was born Dec. 27, 1822.

For draft eligibles the lottery number is 290.

On this day in history:

In 1941, Japanese airplanes bombed Manila in the Philippines, despite the fact it had been declared an open city.

In 1945, the United States, Russia and Britain announced they would govern Korea as joint trustees for five years, then grant independence.

In 1963, the U.S. Commerce Department authorized the sale of surplus wheat to Russia.

In 1968, the Apollo 8 astronauts returned to Earth after a trip around the moon 10 times, preparatory to later moon-landing missions.

A thought for the day: British physicist John Tyndall said: "It is as fatal as it is cowardly to blink facts because they are not to our taste."

San Rafael air quality yesterday:

Oxidants, clean air.

Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.

Carbon monoxide, light air pollution.

Smoke particles, light air pollution.

Other areas:

San Francisco, clean air.

San Jose, significant air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, while the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

$100,000 Award To Pilot Upheld

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The California Supreme Court Tuesday upheld a $100,000 award to a test pilot who accused his employer of failing to discover cancer during a physical examination.

The decision was handed down in the case of Robert D. Coffee, a retired Air Force pilot who sued the McDonnell-Douglas Corp.

Coffee said in his original suit that he took a physical exam and this showed an unusual blood condition which should have resulted in further testing.

But, he said, no further examinations were made until March 1967 when he collapsed. He said a Navy doctor eventually diagnosed his condition as cancer of the bone marrow.

Coffee said he eventually returned to work as a test pilot but sued his employer. After Coffee won a court verdict, the company appealed, resulting in the Supreme Court decision.

Hughes In London

LONDON (UPI) —Millionaire recluse Howard Hughes, who fled the Nicaraguan capital of Managua after last week's devastating earthquake, arrived in Britain late Tuesday, official sources said today.

Welfare Cases Show Decline

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Reagan administration has reported California's welfare case-load declined to 2,037,716 persons in November for the eighth consecutive monthly drop.

State Welfare Director Robert B. Carlseon also said in the report Tuesday that welfare costs last month were $163,734,463, an increase of $80,755 over October and a jump of $547,408 from November, 1971.

The caseload total for last month fell by 6,586, making it the 17th caseload decline in the last 20 months. The last time the welfare caseload increased was in March of this year.

Holiday Traffic Toll Was 592

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The National Safety Council estimated another 430 to 530 persons would die in traffic accidents New Year's weekend. The council said nearly 100 lives could be saved next weekend if safety belts and shoulder harnesses are worn by automobile travelers.

The United Press International Christmas count showed 592 persons died in traffic accidents, 53 in fires, 9 in plane mishaps and 34 in other accidents, for a total of 688 accidental deaths between 6 p.m. local time Friday and midnight Monday.

Fault Said Underlying Plant Site

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The head of a U.S. Geological Survey (USGS) team says aerial photographs show there is a possibility an active earthquake fault lies beneath the proposed site for the nation's largest coastal nuclear power plant.

Frank McKnown, of the USGS team, said data from photographs of the 586-acre site, 100 air miles north of San Francisco on the Mendocino Coast, raises the possibility that it is within reach of the San Andreas Fault zone.

A spokesman for Pacific Gas & Electric Co. said additional surveys of the area for the $830 million facility are planned and will be submitted to the Atomic Energy Commission in March. But current plans for the big nuclear plant near Point Arena remain unchanged.

"Our applications are still active and we're hoping to have them approved," said PG&E's news director Lawrence R. McDonald.

The company hopes to have the first unit in by 1978, said Kip Newton, nuclear information specialist for PG&E.

$100,000 Award To Pilot Upheld

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The California Supreme Court Tuesday upheld a $100,000 award to a test pilot who accused his employer of failing to discover cancer during a physical examination.

The decision was handed down in the case of Robert D. Coffee, a retired Air Force pilot who sued the McDonnell-Douglas Corp.

Coffee said in his original suit that he took a physical exam and this showed an unusual blood condition which should have resulted in further testing.

But, he said, no further examinations were made until March 1967 when he collapsed. He said a Navy doctor eventually diagnosed his condition as cancer of the bone marrow.

Coffee said he eventually returned to work as a test pilot but sued his employer. After Coffee won a court verdict, the company appealed, resulting in the Supreme Court decision.

Hughes In London

LONDON (UPI) —Millionaire recluse Howard Hughes, who fled the Nicaraguan capital of Managua after last week's devastating earthquake, arrived in Britain late Tuesday, official sources said today.

Welfare Cases Show Decline

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Reagan administration has reported California's welfare case-load declined to 2,037,716 persons in November for the eighth consecutive monthly drop.

State Welfare Director Robert B. Carlseon also said in the report Tuesday that welfare costs last month were $163,734,463, an increase of $80,755 over October and a jump of $547,408 from November, 1971.

The caseload total for last month fell by 6,586, making it the 17th caseload decline in the last 20 months. The last time the welfare caseload increased was in March of this year.

Holiday Traffic Toll Was 592

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The National Safety Council estimated another 430 to 530 persons would die in traffic accidents New Year's weekend. The council said nearly 100 lives could be saved next weekend if safety belts and shoulder harnesses are worn by automobile travelers.

The United Press International Christmas count showed 592 persons died in traffic accidents, 53 in fires, 9 in plane mishaps and 34 in other accidents, for a total of 688 accidental deaths between 6 p.m. local time Friday and midnight Monday.

"Did you hear that? President Nixon's inauguration ceremonies are blacked out in Massachusetts and the District of Columbia."

Fault Said Underlying Plant Site

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The head of a U.S. Geological Survey (USGS) team says aerial photographs show there is a possibility an active earthquake fault lies beneath the proposed site for the nation's largest coastal nuclear power plant.

Frank McKnown, of the USGS team, said data from photographs of the 586-acre site, 100 air miles north of San Francisco on the Mendocino Coast, raises the possibility that it is within reach of the San Andreas Fault zone.

A spokesman for Pacific Gas & Electric Co. said additional surveys of the area for the $830 million facility are planned and will be submitted to the Atomic Energy Commission in March. But current plans for the big nuclear plant near Point Arena remain unchanged.

"Our applications are still active and we're hoping to have them approved," said PG&E's news director Lawrence R. McDonald.

The company hopes to have the first unit in by 1978, said Kip Newton, nuclear information specialist for PG&E.

'WHICH WAY TO BOURBON STREET?'

Hayes Pays Tribute To Truman

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)—Woody Hayes, the Ohio State football coach, wanted to pay his respects to Harry Truman.

"I always ask myself what kind of a football coach a man would have made," Hayes said at a Rose Bowl luncheon Tuesday. "He (Truman) would have been a great one.

"He had to make the greatest decision ever, ever, ever made and he made it. He decided to drop the atomic bomb in order to save lives—both American and Japanese lives.

"A lot of people didn't vote for him but they supported him. He was typical of the type of American this country has turned out."

Hayes' tribute to the former President was greeted by applause at the annual Tournament of Rose football writers luncheon at the Annandale Country Club here.

Both Hayes and John McKay of Southern California underwent a question-and-answer session during which the big question concerned the national championship.

While USC already has won the UPI coaches' national title, the Ohio State coach has said the Rose Bowl should decide it all.

But Hayes refused to go into the matter in front of McKay, saying only, "There will be other people who will decide that."

McKay refused to back down and said:

"We're the national champions because UPI has voted us No. 1. We've already won it."

The Trojans' coach, whose teams have won three UPI national championships in the last 11 years, was questioned about using only 12 of the 16 days allotted to him for practice for the Rose Bowl.

"I don't see any reason to use the full 16 days," he said. "We don't need all that time to get in condition. Bob Devaney of Nebraska used only 11 days to get ready for the Orange Bowl game last season and he did pretty well. Notre Dame is taking only nine days this year.

"I think it's what you do with the time when you practice. We only practice one hour and 15 minutes a day but we accomplish a lot. We intend to play very, very well."

Then McKay grinned impishly and added, "Of course, if we lose I'll have to go back to the dressing room and think about an alibi."

Questioned about USC's outstanding speed, Hayes noted, "They're (the Trojans) faster than Michigan, faster than we are, faster than anyone."

The Ohio State coach called the Trojans "better" than Michigan, the team the Buckeyes beat to earn the Big Ten's trip to the Rose Bowl.

Hayes, an irascible sort who will be 60 next year, was asked if his pleasant demeanor since arriving in Southern California this trip meant he had mellowed.

"Never," he smiled. "I'm too old to change. The biggest mistake a person can make is to change just because other people around you are changing."

In the Rose Bowl for the fifth time in seven years, Southern Cal is a two-touchdown favorite and the writers agreed in a straw vote. Eighty-eight picked the Trojans by an average spread of 14 points while 15 voted for Ohio State by a five-point average spread. One writer said the game was going to end in a tie.

WEST QB UNDECIDED

Huff To Start For East

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Gary Huff of Florida State opens at quarterback for the East in Saturday's Shrine Classic but the West quarterback remains undecided.

West Coach Dee Andros of Oregon State said he'll wait until the last minute to decide whether Ty Paine of Washington State or Iowa State's George Amundson would get the starting nod.

"I'll make the choice myself but I hate to do it too quickly," said the Great Pumpkin. "I want to be fair to the kids, but they'll just about split time anyway."

East Coach Carmen Cozza of Yale said he chose Huff over Mike Wells of Illinois because Huff "has more experience in the type of offense we will run."

Joining Huff in the East backfield will be Otis Armstrong of Purdue and Duke's Steve Jones. Jim Lash of Northwestern and Tennessee State's James Thaxton will be the receivers.

The West will counter with Nat "Puddin'" Jones and Terry Metcalf at running backs. Steve Sweeney of California and San Diego State's Isaac Curtis are the wide receivers while Washington's John Brady will be the tight end.

Cozza said Dick Jauron, whom he coached at Yale where he gained 1,055 yards, would be used at both fullback and tailback.

The East tackles are Paul Seymour of Michigan and Ed Newman of Duke, with guards Bill Singletary of Temple and Joe DeLamielleure of Michigan State flanking center Larry McCarren of Illinois.

SONICS SCORE — Dick Snyder (10) of the Seattle SuperSonics drove past the Warriors' Rick Barry for a layup in the first period of their National Basketball Association game last night in Oakland. The Warriors' Clyde Lee (43) watched. Seattle won, 97-95. (UPI Telephoto)

Bills' Simpson Is MVP Winner

NEW YORK (UPI)—O.J. Simpson was a happy man when he found out Lou Saban was named the Buffalo Bills' new coach last season and he showed why.

Simpson, running behind a line riddled by injuries, emerged as pro football's leading rusher this season with 1,251 yards, and was rewarrded today when he was named United Press International's American Football Conference Player of the Year.

Simpson received 15 votes in balloting of 39 pro football writers, three from each conference city, to easily outdistance rookie running sensation Franco Harris of Pittsburgh, second with eight. Quarterback Earl Morrall of Miami was third with six votes and Dolphin teammate Larry Csonka took fourth with five. Five other players reeived one vote each.

Simpson, the Bills' No. 1 draft choice four years ago after winning the Heisman Trophy in a sensational record-breaking career at Southern California, didn't blossom fully as a pro until this season. And the main reason was Saban.

The Bills concentrated on a passing game in recent years but Saban, who helped develop Floyd Little into one of the league's premier runners at Denver, changed all that. He made Simpson the Bills' workhorse and the 6-foot-2, 207-pounder responded with six 100-yard performances.

Harris, the Steelers' No. 1 draft choice out of Penn State, moved into a starting job midway though the season when Frenchy Fuqua and Preston Pearson were hurt and became the most talked about runner in the AFC. He tied a league record set by Jim Brown when he rushed for 100 or more yards in six consecutive games and only a series of injuries to his offensive line may have prevented him from breaking it.

Harris gained 1,056 yards despite his slow start and was a prime reason for the Steelers' first title in 40 years of NFL play.

Morrall, the 38-year-old veteran of 17 NFL campaigns, emerged from the shadows when Bob Griese was hurt in Miami's fifth game and quarterbacked the Dolphins to a league-record 14 victories without a defeat. Morrall, traded from Baltimore to Miami before the season, emerged as the No. 1 passer in the AFC.

Csonka, the bulldozer fullback of the Dolphins, was one of five 1,000-yard rushers in the AFC.

Other Player of the Year votes went to Nick Buoniconti and Paul Warfield of Miami, Joe Namath of New York, Terry Bradshaw of Pittsburgh and Daryle Lamonica of Oakland.

Another Bummer For Seals

VANCOUVER, B.C. (UPI)—It was a gala homecoming for defenseman Ted McAneeley but a bummer for the rest of the California Golden Seals.

McAneeley scored his first two goals of the season Tuesday night to twice give the Seals the lead, but it wasn't enough as the Vancouver Canucks bounced back three times to eke out a 4-3 victory.

McAneeley, who was born in Cranbrook, B.C., and now lives at North Vancouver, opened the scoring for the Seals at 12:30 of the first period with an unassisted goal. After John Wright tied the score 18 seconds later, McAneeley took feeds from center Walt McKechnie and defenseman Darryl Maggs to beat goalie Dunc Wilson at 15:24 and boost California into a 2-1 advantage.

Then Don Tannahill got hot for Vancouver. He tallied a three-goal hat trick to pull it out.

After Tannahill's 10th goal knotted the count at 2-2 at the end of the opening period, rookie Stan Weir put the Seals ahead for the third time with his fourth goal 2:16 into the middle period.

From then on, goalie Wilson shut off the Seals attack while Tannahill tallied in the second period and completed the scoring 31 seconds into the final period. Wilson was forced to come up with numerous saves on breakaways in the third period to preserve the win.

Vancouver rifled 41 shots at Seals goalie Gilles Meloche including 19 in a wide-open final period.

Terra Linda Wins Long Game; San Marin Zapped

In the only other game involving a prep team from the county, San Marin High became the 14th victim of undefeated St. Elizabeth in Oakland, 112-59, although Fred Doar scored 30 points for the Mustangs.

Terra Linda (5-7) played a college-length game of two 20-minute halves. "We got to play a lot of people, and we experimented a bit — we man-pressed them and zone-pressed them and a few other things," said coach Bob Corley.

Rich Mullin scored 15 points, Mark Lowey 13, Scott Logan and Larry Chiaroni 12 each and Mike Austin 10 for the Trojans. The rebounding was similarly balanced, with Scott Logan's 10 the best on a team which outrebounded Marin, 49-38.

The Tars' Rick Love, who played for Terra Linda last year, singed his old mates for 20 points in his first game after recovering from a knee injury.

San Marin (6-3) was blitzed by a team which has exceeded 100 points six times this season. St. Elizabeth shot 65 per cent from the field (47 or 72), piled up a 54-27 rebounding advantage, and did everything else except stop Doar, who had the best scoring night of his career. Doar made 10 straight free throws at one stage of the game.

College Cage Tourneys Scheduled

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

'Tis the season for the big holiday basketball jousts and West Coast teams are right in the thick of things tonight.

At Portland, Oregon, Oregon State and Washington State host the 17th Far West Classic against five invaders, including national powerhouse Minnesota. The Gophers bluntly say they are going for the national title this year and this is a good test for them.

The Oregon teams each have 5-2 records, and 11-time champ Oregon State traditionally plays super basketball at the Far West Classic.

Washington, which has lost just one and appars to be second only to UCLA among Pac-8 teams, also gets a stiff test as it journeys to the Hawaiian Islands to try its luck in the Rainbow Classic.

An Allen Prediction: Staubach Will Start

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Washington Coach George Allen predicted today his rival Dallas strategist Tom Landry will start Roger Staubach instead of Craig Morton when the Redskins and Cowboys clash in their National Conference playoff Sunday.

"I expect Staubach to be their quarterback but whichever it is, we'll be ready," Allen said of the contest which will decide the National Football Conference championship with the winner going to Super Bowl VII against either Pittsburgh or Miami in Los Angeles Jan. 14.

Staubach sat out most of the year after sustaining a shoulder separation in pre-season play but replaced Morton in the final period against San Francisco Saturday and turned a 15-point deficit into a 30-28 Dallas victory.

Morton was at the helm for the Cowboys in the two regular season confrontations between the two divisional rivals. Washington won the first meeting, 24-20, but the Cowboys recouped in their second contest, 34-24.

Allen described the Redskins first full-scale workout as "not as good as our first one last week" when Washington began preparations for the 16-3 playoff victory over the young Green Bay Packers.

Larry Brown, the NFC's leading rusher, was running full tilt, showing little evidence of the injuries that forced him to sit out Washington's successive losses to Dallas and the Buffalo Bills on the final two weeks of the regular season.

Brown, who hobbled off the field with a strained knee but returned against Green Bay to collect 101 yards on 25 carries, told newsmen: "I'm 95 per cent ready. I'll be ready."

Also in uniform was offensive guard John Wilbur who sat out the Packer game because of a kidney injury. Allen thought he would be ready for action against the Cowboys.

The only Redskin not practicing Tuesday was tackle Terry Hermeling who was under the weather with a touch of flu.

Too Much Haywood; Sonics Tip Warriors

OAKLAND (UPI)—Spencer Haywood was a one-man band while most of the Golden State Warriors were hitting sour notes.

As a result, the Seattle SuperSonics were able to snap a seven-game losing streak and win their first game on the road in 14 starts by edging past the Warriors 97-95 Tuesday night.

Haywood, a 6-foot-8 forward, tallied a season-high 42 points on 18 of 30 field goal attempts. He also snagged 14 rebounds and had three assists.

"Spencer did it all for us tonight," said Sonics coach Tom Nissalke who is under fire for the 11-29 record of his squad. "It was the best team game he's had this season. He only took four bad shots but was great in all other phases of the game."

Regarding the team as a whole, Nissalke said, "We did some things tonight we haven't been doing. We moved the ball around well and played good team defense."

Whether it was good defense or an off night for the Warriors, they hit a miserable 32.1 per cent from the floor including a frigid 26.3 in the first half while falling behind 52-39.

In contrast, the Sonics finished with a shooting percentage of .457. Seattle's Dick Snyder helped out Haywood by collecting a career high of 12 rebounds.

For the Warriors, Rick Barry hit on only 5 of 22 from the field while Clyde Lee, the other forward, was 0-for-7 in 34 minutes. However, Lee managed to pull down 16 rebounds.

Center Nate Thurmond topped the Warriors with 25 points and 23 rebounds.

"We just weren't penetrating," said Warrior coach Al Attles. "We can't win consistently from the outside. I can understand why we have an off-shooting night but we just didn't play aggressive basketball."

Golden State next hosts the Cleveland Cavaliers Thursday night at the Coliseum-Arena.

Air Battle Expected In North-South Test

MIAMI (UPI)—The question of whether Mercury Morris or Jim Kiick will start next Sunday is an old one. It's been asked every week since September.

Of course, it was asked again this week, and it got the same old answer from Coach Don Shula: "It could be Kiick or Morris."

It seems likely that Morris will start the AFC championship game at Pittsburgh, but Shula emphasized Tuesday that he will "alternate them as we have all year."

Kiick started last Sunday in the 20-14 playoff win over Cleveland and Morris also saw a lot of action.

"I thought both of them played very well. Both were certainly instrumental in us winning," Shula said. "We started to run inside effectively in the third quarter. When we got that accomplished we were able to get outside some too."

It will be a homecoming in the truest sense of the word for Morris.

"Where Three Rivers Stadium is now, I used to live on the 25-yard line on Shore Avenue," Morris said. "They tore the place down to build the stadium a few years ago.

"I lived there for about three weeks when I was a kid," he said. "I was in the eighth grade and my folks moved back into the city. I was going to have to change schools, but I decided to move back to stay with my grandparents so I wouldn't have to change."

It will be Morris's first performance in the Pittsburgh area since 1964 when he was a senior halfback for Avonworth High School.

Morris, a 1,000-yard rusher this year, admitted he was thinking about playing in his hometown even before the Cleveland game.

"When I saw the Steelers on TV Saturday, I was trying not to, but I was thinking past Cleveland," Morris said.

He was apparently impressed with the Steelers' performance against Oakland.

"I realize it's going to take a maximum effort and I'm trying to get myself psychologically prepared," Morris said. "They're going to be up there with a lot of hooraw and all those armies (Franco's Italian Army and Gerela's Gorillas). All that hooraw doesn't do anything but excite us, especially me."

7 EX-SEALS ALL-STARS IN NEW LEAGUE

SANTA ANA (AP) — The California Golden Seals may be struggling in last place in their division of the National Hockey League, but they are tearing up the new World Hockey Association by proxy.

Seven former Seals were named to the 21-man East all-star team announced Tuesday, which will meet the West Jan. 6 in the first WHA All-Star game in Quebec City.

One, forward Tom Webster of the New England Whalers, was a unanimous choice. Two others, forward Garry Jarrett and defenseman Paul Schmyr, both of Cleveland, also were selected for the first team.

Forward Wayne Carleton of Ottawa was named to the second team. Third-team selections were forwards Bobby Sheehan of New York and Gerry Pinder of Cleveland. On the fourth forward line was Norm Ferguson of New York.

Mercury's Homecoming

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)—The great battle between the North and South over a century ago was fought on the ground, but the war will be brought out of the trenches here tonight as the Blue meets the Gray in one of the nation's oldest all-star football games.

Several of the nation's top offensive performers of the 1972 college season were to be on the field for the 35th annual Blue-Gray game. A crowd of about 23,000 was expected in Montgomery's Cramton Bowl for the game to be produced for national television by Mislou Productions. (The game will be televised in the Bay Area on channels 2 and 40, beginning at 5 p.m.)

An all-out air war appeared in the making with the nation's two top offensive performers on hand to direct the attacks.

North Coach Vince Gibson of Kansas State was expected to start Tony Adams of Utah State at quarterback. South Coach Charles Coffey of Virginia Tech was to counter with his own Don Strock.

Adams finished second in total offense and third in passing in the final national statistics. He completed 204 of 351 passes for 2,787 yards.

Virginia Tech's Strock, however, finished the regular season No. 1 in both total offense and forward passing. He completed 228 of 427 passes for 3,243 yards.

Adams' favorite target is expected to be Utah State teammate Tom Forzani, who led the nation in receiving with 85 catches for 1,169 yards. John Goerger of Kansas State, who led the Big Eight with 57 receptions, also was in the Blue receiving corps.

Strock had two of his Virginia Tech teammates—Mike Brunop and Craig Valentine—available for catching duties.

If the game reverts to a ground battle, the North will have the weapons to make a go of it in the trenches. Gibson could call on Peter Van Valkenburg of Brigham Young, Mike Deutsch of North Dakota or Martin Januszkiewicz of Syracuse. Van Valkenburg was the nation's rushing leader with 1,386 yards.

Slated for duty in the South backfield were Wade Hughes of Clemson, Bill Sadler of TCU, and Ken Garrett of Wake Forest.

New Winter Olympic Bid By Reno-Tahoe Group

SOUTH LAKE TAHOE, Calif. (UPI)—A bid to attract the 1976 Winter Olympic Games to the Lake Tahoe-Reno area was sent to the U.S. Olympic Committee Tuesday.

Eric Auer, former member of the Denver Olympics Organizing Committee, said the effort will be sponsored by representatives of Reno, Carson City and Lake Tahoe.

A rival bid submitted last week by the Tahoe-Squaw Valley Bicentennial Committee would stage the Games at Squaw Valley, Reno and Truckee, but would eliminate most of the Tahoe basin.

Auer said the new bid proposed holding figure skating, hockey and ski jumping at Squaw Valley, site of the 1964 Games. Alpine events would be at Squaw Valley and Heavenly Valley. Cross country skiing and biathlon could be held between Truckee and North Lake Tahoe. Additional skating events would be at the Reno Coliseum, and speed skating could be either at Reno or Carson City, he said.6

Hayes Pays Tribute To Truman

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)—Woody Hayes, the Ohio State football coach, wanted to pay his respects to Harry Truman.

"I always ask myself what kind of a football coach a man would have made," Hayes said at a Rose Bowl luncheon Tuesday. "He (Truman) would have been a great one.

"He had to make the greatest decision ever, ever, ever made and he made it. He decided to drop the atomic bomb in order to save lives—both American and Japanese lives.

"A lot of people didn't vote for him but they supported him. He was typical of the type of American this country has turned out."

Hayes' tribute to the former President was greeted by applause at the annual Tournament of Rose football writers luncheon at the Annandale Country Club here.

Both Hayes and John McKay of Southern California underwent a question-and-answer session during which the big question concerned the national championship.

While USC already has won the UPI coaches' national title, the Ohio State coach has said the Rose Bowl should decide it all.

But Hayes refused to go into the matter in front of McKay, saying only, "There will be other people who will decide that."

McKay refused to back down and said:

"We're the national champions because UPI has voted us No. 1. We've already won it."

The Trojans' coach, whose teams have won three UPI national championships in the last 11 years, was questioned about using only 12 of the 16 days allotted to him for practice for the Rose Bowl.

"I don't see any reason to use the full 16 days," he said. "We don't need all that time to get in condition. Bob Devaney of Nebraska used only 11 days to get ready for the Orange Bowl game last season and he did pretty well. Notre Dame is taking only nine days this year.

"I think it's what you do with the time when you practice. We only practice one hour and 15 minutes a day but we accomplish a lot. We intend to play very, very well."

Then McKay grinned impishly and added, "Of course, if we lose I'll have to go back to the dressing room and think about an alibi."

Questioned about USC's outstanding speed, Hayes noted, "They're (the Trojans) faster than Michigan, faster than we are, faster than anyone."

The Ohio State coach called the Trojans "better" than Michigan, the team the Buckeyes beat to earn the Big Ten's trip to the Rose Bowl.

Hayes, an irascible sort who will be 60 next year, was asked if his pleasant demeanor since arriving in Southern California this trip meant he had mellowed.

"Never," he smiled. "I'm too old to change. The biggest mistake a person can make is to change just because other people around you are changing."

In the Rose Bowl for the fifth time in seven years, Southern Cal is a two-touchdown favorite and the writers agreed in a straw vote. Eighty-eight picked the Trojans by an average spread of 14 points while 15 voted for Ohio State by a five-point average spread. One writer said the game was going to end in a tie.

WEST QB UNDECIDED

Huff To Start For East

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Gary Huff of Florida State opens at quarterback for the East in Saturday's Shrine Classic but the West quarterback remains undecided.

West Coach Dee Andros of Oregon State said he'll wait until the last minute to decide whether Ty Paine of Washington State or Iowa State's George Amundson would get the starting nod.

"I'll make the choice myself but I hate to do it too quickly," said the Great Pumpkin. "I want to be fair to the kids, but they'll just about split time anyway."

East Coach Carmen Cozza of Yale said he chose Huff over Mike Wells of Illinois because Huff "has more experience in the type of offense we will run."

Joining Huff in the East backfield will be Otis Armstrong of Purdue and Duke's Steve Jones. Jim Lash of Northwestern and Tennessee State's James Thaxton will be the receivers.

The West will counter with Nat "Puddin'" Jones and Terry Metcalf at running backs. Steve Sweeney of California and San Diego State's Isaac Curtis are the wide receivers while Washington's John Brady will be the tight end.

Cozza said Dick Jauron, whom he coached at Yale where he gained 1,055 yards, would be used at both fullback and tailback.

The East tackles are Paul Seymour of Michigan and Ed Newman of Duke, with guards Bill Singletary of Temple and Joe DeLamielleure of Michigan State flanking center Larry McCarren of Illinois.

Bills' Simpson Is MVP Winner

NEW YORK (UPI)—O.J. Simpson was a happy man when he found out Lou Saban was named the Buffalo Bills' new coach last season and he showed why.

Simpson, running behind a line riddled by injuries, emerged as pro football's leading rusher this season with 1,251 yards, and was rewarrded today when he was named United Press International's American Football Conference Player of the Year.

Simpson received 15 votes in balloting of 39 pro football writers, three from each conference city, to easily outdistance rookie running sensation Franco Harris of Pittsburgh, second with eight. Quarterback Earl Morrall of Miami was third with six votes and Dolphin teammate Larry Csonka took fourth with five. Five other players reeived one vote each.

Simpson, the Bills' No. 1 draft choice four years ago after winning the Heisman Trophy in a sensational record-breaking career at Southern California, didn't blossom fully as a pro until this season. And the main reason was Saban.

The Bills concentrated on a passing game in recent years but Saban, who helped develop Floyd Little into one of the league's premier runners at Denver, changed all that. He made Simpson the Bills' workhorse and the 6-foot-2, 207-pounder responded with six 100-yard performances.

Harris, the Steelers' No. 1 draft choice out of Penn State, moved into a starting job midway though the season when Frenchy Fuqua and Preston Pearson were hurt and became the most talked about runner in the AFC. He tied a league record set by Jim Brown when he rushed for 100 or more yards in six consecutive games and only a series of injuries to his offensive line may have prevented him from breaking it.

Harris gained 1,056 yards despite his slow start and was a prime reason for the Steelers' first title in 40 years of NFL play.

Morrall, the 38-year-old veteran of 17 NFL campaigns, emerged from the shadows when Bob Griese was hurt in Miami's fifth game and quarterbacked the Dolphins to a league-record 14 victories without a defeat. Morrall, traded from Baltimore to Miami before the season, emerged as the No. 1 passer in the AFC.

Csonka, the bulldozer fullback of the Dolphins, was one of five 1,000-yard rushers in the AFC.

Other Player of the Year votes went to Nick Buoniconti and Paul Warfield of Miami, Joe Namath of New York, Terry Bradshaw of Pittsburgh and Daryle Lamonica of Oakland.

Another Bummer For Seals

VANCOUVER, B.C. (UPI)—It was a gala homecoming for defenseman Ted McAneeley but a bummer for the rest of the California Golden Seals.

McAneeley scored his first two goals of the season Tuesday night to twice give the Seals the lead, but it wasn't enough as the Vancouver Canucks bounced back three times to eke out a 4-3 victory.

McAneeley, who was born in Cranbrook, B.C., and now lives at North Vancouver, opened the scoring for the Seals at 12:30 of the first period with an unassisted goal. After John Wright tied the score 18 seconds later, McAneeley took feeds from center Walt McKechnie and defenseman Darryl Maggs to beat goalie Dunc Wilson at 15:24 and boost California into a 2-1 advantage.

Then Don Tannahill got hot for Vancouver. He tallied a three-goal hat trick to pull it out.

After Tannahill's 10th goal knotted the count at 2-2 at the end of the opening period, rookie Stan Weir put the Seals ahead for the third time with his fourth goal 2:16 into the middle period.

From then on, goalie Wilson shut off the Seals attack while Tannahill tallied in the second period and completed the scoring 31 seconds into the final period. Wilson was forced to come up with numerous saves on breakaways in the third period to preserve the win.

Vancouver rifled 41 shots at Seals goalie Gilles Meloche including 19 in a wide-open final period.

Terra Linda Wins Long Game; San Marin Zapped

In the only other game involving a prep team from the county, San Marin High became the 14th victim of undefeated St. Elizabeth in Oakland, 112-59, although Fred Doar scored 30 points for the Mustangs.

Terra Linda (5-7) played a college-length game of two 20-minute halves. "We got to play a lot of people, and we experimented a bit — we man-pressed them and zone-pressed them and a few other things," said coach Bob Corley.

Rich Mullin scored 15 points, Mark Lowey 13, Scott Logan and Larry Chiaroni 12 each and Mike Austin 10 for the Trojans. The rebounding was similarly balanced, with Scott Logan's 10 the best on a team which outrebounded Marin, 49-38.

The Tars' Rick Love, who played for Terra Linda last year, singed his old mates for 20 points in his first game after recovering from a knee injury.

San Marin (6-3) was blitzed by a team which has exceeded 100 points six times this season. St. Elizabeth shot 65 per cent from the field (47 or 72), piled up a 54-27 rebounding advantage, and did everything else except stop Doar, who had the best scoring night of his career. Doar made 10 straight free throws at one stage of the game.

College Cage Tourneys Scheduled

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

'Tis the season for the big holiday basketball jousts and West Coast teams are right in the thick of things tonight.

At Portland, Oregon, Oregon State and Washington State host the 17th Far West Classic against five invaders, including national powerhouse Minnesota. The Gophers bluntly say they are going for the national title this year and this is a good test for them.

The Oregon teams each have 5-2 records, and 11-time champ Oregon State traditionally plays super basketball at the Far West Classic.

Washington, which has lost just one and appars to be second only to UCLA among Pac-8 teams, also gets a stiff test as it journeys to the Hawaiian Islands to try its luck in the Rainbow Classic.

An Allen Prediction: Staubach Will Start

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Washington Coach George Allen predicted today his rival Dallas strategist Tom Landry will start Roger Staubach instead of Craig Morton when the Redskins and Cowboys clash in their National Conference playoff Sunday.

"I expect Staubach to be their quarterback but whichever it is, we'll be ready," Allen said of the contest which will decide the National Football Conference championship with the winner going to Super Bowl VII against either Pittsburgh or Miami in Los Angeles Jan. 14.

Staubach sat out most of the year after sustaining a shoulder separation in pre-season play but replaced Morton in the final period against San Francisco Saturday and turned a 15-point deficit into a 30-28 Dallas victory.

Morton was at the helm for the Cowboys in the two regular season confrontations between the two divisional rivals. Washington won the first meeting, 24-20, but the Cowboys recouped in their second contest, 34-24.

Allen described the Redskins first full-scale workout as "not as good as our first one last week" when Washington began preparations for the 16-3 playoff victory over the young Green Bay Packers.

Larry Brown, the NFC's leading rusher, was running full tilt, showing little evidence of the injuries that forced him to sit out Washington's successive losses to Dallas and the Buffalo Bills on the final two weeks of the regular season.

Brown, who hobbled off the field with a strained knee but returned against Green Bay to collect 101 yards on 25 carries, told newsmen: "I'm 95 per cent ready. I'll be ready."

Also in uniform was offensive guard John Wilbur who sat out the Packer game because of a kidney injury. Allen thought he would be ready for action against the Cowboys.

Too Much Haywood; Sonics Tip Warriors

OAKLAND (UPI)—Spencer Haywood was a one-man band while most of the Golden State Warriors were hitting sour notes.

As a result, the Seattle SuperSonics were able to snap a seven-game losing streak and win their first game on the road in 14 starts by edging past the Warriors 97-95 Tuesday night.

Haywood, a 6-foot-8 forward, tallied a season-high 42 points on 18 of 30 field goal attempts. He also snagged 14 rebounds and had three assists.

"Spencer did it all for us tonight," said Sonics coach Tom Nissalke who is under fire for the 11-29 record of his squad. "It was the best team game he's had this season. He only took four bad shots but was great in all other phases of the game."

Regarding the team as a whole, Nissalke said, "We did some things tonight we haven't been doing. We moved the ball around well and played good team defense."

Whether it was good defense or an off night for the Warriors, they hit a miserable 32.1 per cent from the floor including a frigid 26.3 in the first half while falling behind 52-39.

In contrast, the Sonics finished with a shooting percentage of .457. Seattle's Dick Snyder helped out Haywood by collecting a career high of 12 rebounds.

For the Warriors, Rick Barry hit on only 5 of 22 from the field while Clyde Lee, the other forward, was 0-for-7 in 34 minutes. However, Lee managed to pull down 16 rebounds.

Center Nate Thurmond topped the Warriors with 25 points and 23 rebounds.

"We just weren't penetrating," said Warrior coach Al Attles. "We can't win consistently from the outside. I can understand why we have an off-shooting night but we just didn't play aggressive basketball."

Golden State next hosts the Cleveland Cavaliers Thursday night at the Coliseum-Arena.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Leisure Spending On The Upswing

For the first time in history Americans are spending more money on leisure pursuits than on national defense. Leisure spending is more than the outlay for new houses. It surpasses the total of all corporate profits and exceeds the total U.S. exports.

These facts, with figures to back them up, were brought out by Howard Larson, president of the Boating Industry Association, in a speech in Chicago earlier this winter.

Boating is a large part of leisure-time activities and in the past summer more than 20 per cent of the population — about 42 million people — participated and enjoyed boating in some form.

It goes very well with almost any other hobby or pastime you can think of.

Look at the many activities it complements so well: camping, swimming, fishing, hunting, bird watching, nature study, photography, and practically every other do-it-yourself hobby there is.

It's also one of the last areas of freedom and innovation left in our over-regulated, regimented lives. Some of the questions I've been asked spell this out:

Q. We have a beautiful retreat in the north woods — but the shore is pebbly and wears out the bottom of our boat. Any suggestions?

A. Lay an old auto tire at the water's edge — as a landing field. If you like, you can sink it into a depression in the stones so it's firmly anchored. Big truck tires are best — and you can use two or three.

Q. I'm taking an extensive trip south this winter. I want to fish wherever I can. Is it worthwhile taking my small outboard motor?

A. If it's a light fishing motor don't go without it. From Key West to Ensenada you can rent boats for a couple of bucks a day, but a motor can cost up to $25.

Q. I'm a duck hunter. Can I train a dog that's a great retriever to work from a boat?

A. Nail one inch strips to a two-foot length of plywood, about a foot wide, to make a "staircase" that you can hang over the side of the boat for the dog to scramble up. Give him a good fitting harness, too, so that someone on board can grab Rover and help him over the gunwale. You'll never lose a bird.

Q. Every picture I take from our boat shows a blur due to movement. Is there an answer?

A. First and foremost, try to take every picture as you are approaching or going away from your subject, rather than when you are passing it broadside. Use the fastest shutter speed you can with the exposure required, and try this: When you are about to snap the shutter, have someone close the throttle. As the boat slows you will feel no vibration.

Q. Is it possible to make your own water skis?

A. Very easily. Use five-eighths inch marine grade plywood. Copy the dimensions from a pair you like. The difficult part is the bend at the front. This is done by saw cuts through all but the bottom ply. Cover the skis with fiber glass and resin. This will hold the bent shape permanently.

Q. We are taking lessons in water ski jumping. Who started it?

A. The first jump on water skis was 25 feet made in 1928 by Dick Pope, who later ran the ski shows at Cypress Gardens, Fla. His son Dick Pope, Jr., is still an aquatic performer.

Browns' Skorich Gets New Contract

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

CLEVELAND — Cleveland Browns' head coach Nick Skorich, whose team made it to the American Football Conference playoffs despite losing all exhibition games and three out of its first five regular season contests, Tuesday was given a new three-year contract by owner Art Modell.

Terms of the new contract, which replaced an existing pact that had one more year to run, were not disclosed.

Skorich, who has been head coach since the retirement of Blanton Collier at the end of the 1970 season, led the Browns into the playoffs in 1971 and 1972.

This year the Browns lost the AFC Central Division championships to the Pittsburgh Steelers but made the playoffs as the "wild card" team with the best second place record.

Going against the undefeated Miami Dolphins, the Browns nearly pulled an upset until a last second interception preserved a 20-14 Miami victory Sunday.

This was Skorich's ninth season with the Cleveland organization. He is a former head coach of the Philadelphia Eagles.

"I am delighted with the job that Nick has done for us in the past two years," said Modell.

"After losing all the exhibition games and three of their first five regular season games, to still make the playoffs is quite an accomplishment and I think Nick should be voted coach of the year."

Baseball

SAN JUAN, P.R. — A committee headed by Pittsburgh Pirates star Roberto Clemente has collected some 22 tons of supplies and $50,000 to help aid the victims of Saturday's earthquake in Managua, Nicaragua, and will transport the supplies with the help of planes from the Puerto Rico National Guard and a commercial airline.

Football

Swimming

Hockey

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — Petr Adamik scored on a screen shot late in the third period Tuesday night to give Czechoslovakia a 3-2 win over a youthful United States team in the first round of the world cup of ice hockey.

Tennis

MELBOURNE, Australia — The casualties of top-seeded players mushroomed Wednesday when two more ranked competitors were bundled out of the Australian Open tennis championships at Kooyong.

Australian professional John Alexander was unexpectedly defeated by tenacious French lefthander Patrice Domingues in five gruelling sets, 6-7, 7-6, 3-6, 6-3, 11-9, and another Frenchman, Wonairo Godrella, defeated South Australian veteran Barry Phillips-Moore, 6-4, 7-6, 7-6.

Nicklaus To Receive Golf Honor Jan. 8

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Arnold Palmer, pro golf's No. 2 all-time money winner behind Jack Nicklaus, Tuesday entered the 47th annual Glen Campbell Los Angeles Open at the Riviera Country Club Jan. 4-7.

A PGA tour member since 1955, the Latrobe, Pa., veteran has won the Los Angeles Open three times—in 1963, 1966 and 1967. Palmer holds the tournament record of 268.

Entries closed Tuesday at 6 p.m. The field will include 55 of the top 60 tour money winners in 1972.

J.V. Basketball

Terra Linda High School's undefeated junior varsity basketball team won its 10th consecutive game yesterday, defeating Ells of Richmond, 63-41, as Steve Johnson scored 21 points and hauled down 12 rebounds. San Marin High's J.V.s defeated St. Elizabeth of Oakland, 50-46.

Celtics Defeat Knicks

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Boston Celtics and the New York Knicks disagree about Dave Cowens' status among National Basketball Association centers but it seems as if the Celtics have a pretty strong case after Tuesday night.

Cowens, the 6-foot-9 temperamental redhead from Florida State, scored a career-high 38 points and took down 20 rebounds Tuesday night as the Celtics downed the Knicks 115-106 to take a 2½-game lead over New York in the Atlantic Division.

Cowens hit 16 points during a second-quarter burst that saw the Celtics take the lead and then added 10 more during the fourth quarter as Boston blew open the game. John Havlicek added 31 points for the Celtics while Walt Frazier was high man for the Knicks with 29.

"Dave is the most versatile center in the league," said Tommy Heinsohn, the Celtics' coach, "and I've been saying that for three years now. Nobody believed me but I think I'm getting through to people now. He was just fantastic on our recent road trip out west."

In other NBA action, Seattle edged Golden State 97-95, Los Angeles crushed Portland 116-92, Houston stopped Phoenix 113-110, Chicago whipped Kansas City-Omaha 117-103, Cleveland romped past Atlanta 115-96, Detroit upended Milwaukee 112-105 and Baltimore thrashed Buffalo 121-104.

Gail Goodrich scored 25 points as the Lakers continued their mastery over Portland. The victory was Los Angeles' 14th without a loss against Portland since the club came into the league.

Rudy Tomjanovich's 31 points, including the go-ahead basket in the final minutes, led Houston over the Suns and Garfield Heard came off the bench to score 19 of his 25 points in the second half as Chicago beat the Kings.

Austin Carr and Len Wilkens combined for 50 points as Cleveland whipped the Hawks and Stu Lantz hit eight of Detroit's last 10 points as the Pistons upset the Bucks. Mike Riordan hit 17 of his 23 points in the first half to lead the Bullets over Buffalo.

Canadiens Boost Lead Over Bruins

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Montreal Canadiens increased their Eastern Division lead in the National Hockey League Tuesday night with a big assist going to the player who helped put them in the top spot.

Jacques Lemaire, the NHL's leading goal scorer this season, notched his 28th and 29th in the Canadiens' 4-1 victory over the St. Louis Blues. The triumph moved Montreal three points ahead of second place Boston which had the night off.

In the only other NHL action, Vancouver beat California 4-3 and Detroit tied Pittsburgh 1-1.

Lemaire's goals proved icing on the cake against the Blues since Montreal had already taken a 2-1 lead before he beat goalie Bob Johnson for the first time in the second period.

Guy LaPointe and Murray Wilson countered for Montreal in the opening session. Canadiens goalie Ken Dryden was foiled in his bid for his fourth shutout of the campaign when Phil Roberto tallied for St. Louis at 6:36 of the final period.

Detroit needed Nick Libett's goal with 6:22 left to play to gain its tie with Pittsburgh. Until Libett's tally, the Penguins were protecting a 1-0 lead fashioned on Al McDonough's 16th goal of the season which came only 22 seconds after the start of the game.

Archibald Keeps Scoring Lead

NEW YORK (UPI) — Despite his own predictions to the contrary a few weeks ago, Nate (Tiny) Archibald of Kansas City Omaha retained his National Basketball Association scoring lead according to statistics released Tuesday.

Top ten NBA scoring leaders:

BASKETBALL PROSPECTS

It Might Be Big Year For Novato

By LEW CODDINGTON

(Sixth in a series on Marin County Athletic League varsity basketball prospects.)

Last year, when Novato High School's basketball team had four underclassmen in its starting lineup, fans were saying, "wait 'til next year." Now, next year has arrived, and the Hornets expect to contend for the Marin County Athletic League championship.

The fans' hopes were dampened when the team embarked on a five-game losing streak which was ended only last Friday, and left Novato with a 5-6 record at the conclusion of non-league play.

"The problem has been that we haven't been shooting very well — 20 per cent from the field in some games," said coach Jim Carinica. "It's important for us to shoot effectively and limit our turnovers. We do everything else pretty well."

Last year, the Hornets looked to all-league forward Marty Moroski for scoring and leadership. This year, the burden is spread. In fact, Novato may have better balance than any team in the league, which pleases Carinica. "I'd rather have four people getting 10-11-12 points a game than have one man doing it all, because one man can have an off night," he said.

Much of the scoring and most of the rebounding will come from Willie Barnes, 6-5 junior center who leaps exceptionally well. He gets help underneath from 6-2 junior forward Curtis Saine, who inherited the graduated Moroski's spot in the lineup and has been improving game by game, in Carinica's eyes.

Lurking on the wings will be two 5-11 seniors, Joe Powell and Joe Robinson, the latter the team's best outside shooter. The guard corps is deep with 5-11 Tom Conklin and 5-6 Dave Brazell available.

For substitutes, Carinica usually tabs 5-10 Dan Del Rose, who can play guard or forward, and 5-10 junior Tom Bridges at forward.

Barnes, Powell, Robinson and Conklin started last year, while Del Rose saw quite a bit of action, giving the Hornets a unit unmatched in the league as far as playing time together is concerned.

"We have the material," Carinica said. "It's just a matter of consistent scoring. We've tried to stress the fast break all year, but I don't think we've gotten that together yet. It's going to help us if we do. We have a lot of team speed."

Speed, experience, balance and the advantage of having played together will be the strengths of a Novato team which expects to be in the race all the way.

Leisure Spending On The Upswing

For the first time in history Americans are spending more money on leisure pursuits than on national defense. Leisure spending is more than the outlay for new houses. It surpasses the total of all corporate profits and exceeds the total U.S. exports.

These facts, with figures to back them up, were brought out by Howard Larson, president of the Boating Industry Association, in a speech in Chicago earlier this winter.

Boating is a large part of leisure-time activities and in the past summer more than 20 per cent of the population — about 42 million people — participated and enjoyed boating in some form.

It goes very well with almost any other hobby or pastime you can think of.

Look at the many activities it complements so well: camping, swimming, fishing, hunting, bird watching, nature study, photography, and practically every other do-it-yourself hobby there is.

It's also one of the last areas of freedom and innovation left in our over-regulated, regimented lives. Some of the questions I've been asked spell this out:

Q. We have a beautiful retreat in the north woods — but the shore is pebbly and wears out the bottom of our boat. Any suggestions?

A. Lay an old auto tire at the water's edge — as a landing field. If you like, you can sink it into a depression in the stones so it's firmly anchored. Big truck tires are best — and you can use two or three.

Q. I'm taking an extensive trip south this winter. I want to fish wherever I can. Is it worthwhile taking my small outboard motor?

A. If it's a light fishing motor don't go without it. From Key West to Ensenada you can rent boats for a couple of bucks a day, but a motor can cost up to $25.

Q. I'm a duck hunter. Can I train a dog that's a great retriever to work from a boat?

A. Nail one inch strips to a two-foot length of plywood, about a foot wide, to make a "staircase" that you can hang over the side of the boat for the dog to scramble up. Give him a good fitting harness, too, so that someone on board can grab Rover and help him over the gunwale. You'll never lose a bird.

Q. Every picture I take from our boat shows a blur due to movement. Is there an answer?

A. First and foremost, try to take every picture as you are approaching or going away from your subject, rather than when you are passing it broadside. Use the fastest shutter speed you can with the exposure required, and try this: When you are about to snap the shutter, have someone close the throttle. As the boat slows you will feel no vibration.

Q. Is it possible to make your own water skis?

A. Very easily. Use five-eighths inch marine grade plywood. Copy the dimensions from a pair you like. The difficult part is the bend at the front. This is done by saw cuts through all but the bottom ply. Cover the skis with fiber glass and resin. This will hold the bent shape permanently.

Q. We are taking lessons in water ski jumping. Who started it?

A. The first jump on water skis was 25 feet made in 1928 by Dick Pope, who later ran the ski shows at Cypress Gardens, Fla. His son Dick Pope, Jr., is still an aquatic performer.

Browns' Skorich Gets New Contract

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

CLEVELAND — Cleveland Browns' head coach Nick Skorich, whose team made it to the American Football Conference playoffs despite losing all exhibition games and three out of its first five regular season contests, Tuesday was given a new three-year contract by owner Art Modell.

Terms of the new contract, which replaced an existing pact that had one more year to run, were not disclosed.

Skorich, who has been head coach since the retirement of Blanton Collier at the end of the 1970 season, led the Browns into the playoffs in 1971 and 1972.

This year the Browns lost the AFC Central Division championships to the Pittsburgh Steelers but made the playoffs as the "wild card" team with the best second place record.

Going against the undefeated Miami Dolphins, the Browns nearly pulled an upset until a last second interception preserved a 20-14 Miami victory Sunday.

This was Skorich's ninth season with the Cleveland organization. He is a former head coach of the Philadelphia Eagles.

"I am delighted with the job that Nick has done for us in the past two years," said Modell.

"After losing all the exhibition games and three of their first five regular season games, to still make the playoffs is quite an accomplishment and I think Nick should be voted coach of the year."

Baseball

SAN JUAN, P.R. — A committee headed by Pittsburgh Pirates star Roberto Clemente has collected some 22 tons of supplies and $50,000 to help aid the victims of Saturday's earthquake in Managua, Nicaragua, and will transport the supplies with the help of planes from the Puerto Rico National Guard and a commercial airline.

Football

Tennis

MELBOURNE, Australia — The casualties of top-seeded players mushroomed Wednesday when two more ranked competitors were bundled out of the Australian Open tennis championships at Kooyong.

Australian professional John Alexander was unexpectedly defeated by tenacious French lefthander Patrice Domingues in five gruelling sets, 6-7, 7-6, 3-6, 6-3, 11-9, and another Frenchman, Wonairo Godrella, defeated South Australian veteran Barry Phillips-Moore, 6-4, 7-6, 7-6.

J.V. Basketball

Terra Linda High School's undefeated junior varsity basketball team won its 10th consecutive game yesterday, defeating Ells of Richmond, 63-41, as Steve Johnson scored 21 points and hauled down 12 rebounds. San Marin High's J.V.s defeated St. Elizabeth of Oakland, 50-46.

Celtics Defeat Knicks

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Boston Celtics and the New York Knicks disagree about Dave Cowens' status among National Basketball Association centers but it seems as if the Celtics have a pretty strong case after Tuesday night.

Cowens, the 6-foot-9 temperamental redhead from Florida State, scored a career-high 38 points and took down 20 rebounds Tuesday night as the Celtics downed the Knicks 115-106 to take a 2½-game lead over New York in the Atlantic Division.

Cowens hit 16 points during a second-quarter burst that saw the Celtics take the lead and then added 10 more during the fourth quarter as Boston blew open the game. John Havlicek added 31 points for the Celtics while Walt Frazier was high man for the Knicks with 29.

"Dave is the most versatile center in the league," said Tommy Heinsohn, the Celtics' coach, "and I've been saying that for three years now. Nobody believed me but I think I'm getting through to people now. He was just fantastic on our recent road trip out west."

In other NBA action, Seattle edged Golden State 97-95, Los Angeles crushed Portland 116-92, Houston stopped Phoenix 113-110, Chicago whipped Kansas City-Omaha 117-103, Cleveland romped past Atlanta 115-96, Detroit upended Milwaukee 112-105 and Baltimore thrashed Buffalo 121-104.

Gail Goodrich scored 25 points as the Lakers continued their mastery over Portland. The victory was Los Angeles' 14th without a loss against Portland since the club came into the league.

Rudy Tomjanovich's 31 points, including the go-ahead basket in the final minutes, led Houston over the Suns and Garfield Heard came off the bench to score 19 of his 25 points in the second half as Chicago beat the Kings.

Austin Carr and Len Wilkens combined for 50 points as Cleveland whipped the Hawks and Stu Lantz hit eight of Detroit's last 10 points as the Pistons upset the Bucks. Mike Riordan hit 17 of his 23 points in the first half to lead the Bullets over Buffalo.

Canadiens Boost Lead Over Bruins

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Montreal Canadiens increased their Eastern Division lead in the National Hockey League Tuesday night with a big assist going to the player who helped put them in the top spot.

Jacques Lemaire, the NHL's leading goal scorer this season, notched his 28th and 29th in the Canadiens' 4-1 victory over the St. Louis Blues. The triumph moved Montreal three points ahead of second place Boston which had the night off.

In the only other NHL action, Vancouver beat California 4-3 and Detroit tied Pittsburgh 1-1.

Lemaire's goals proved icing on the cake against the Blues since Montreal had already taken a 2-1 lead before he beat goalie Bob Johnson for the first time in the second period.

Guy LaPointe and Murray Wilson countered for Montreal in the opening session. Canadiens goalie Ken Dryden was foiled in his bid for his fourth shutout of the campaign when Phil Roberto tallied for St. Louis at 6:36 of the final period.

Detroit needed Nick Libett's goal with 6:22 left to play to gain its tie with Pittsburgh. Until Libett's tally, the Penguins were protecting a 1-0 lead fashioned on Al McDonough's 16th goal of the season which came only 22 seconds after the start of the game.

Archibald Keeps Scoring Lead

NEW YORK (UPI) — Despite his own predictions to the contrary a few weeks ago, Nate (Tiny) Archibald of Kansas City Omaha retained his National Basketball Association scoring lead according to statistics released Tuesday.

Top ten NBA scoring leaders:

BASKETBALL PROSPECTS

It Might Be Big Year For Novato

By LEW CODDINGTON

(Sixth in a series on Marin County Athletic League varsity basketball prospects.)

Last year, when Novato High School's basketball team had four underclassmen in its starting lineup, fans were saying, "wait 'til next year." Now, next year has arrived, and the Hornets expect to contend for the Marin County Athletic League championship.

The fans' hopes were dampened when the team embarked on a five-game losing streak which was ended only last Friday, and left Novato with a 5-6 record at the conclusion of non-league play.

"The problem has been that we haven't been shooting very well — 20 per cent from the field in some games," said coach Jim Carinica. "It's important for us to shoot effectively and limit our turnovers. We do everything else pretty well."

Last year, the Hornets looked to all-league forward Marty Moroski for scoring and leadership. This year, the burden is spread. In fact, Novato may have better balance than any team in the league, which pleases Carinica. "I'd rather have four people getting 10-11-12 points a game than have one man doing it all, because one man can have an off night," he said.

Much of the scoring and most of the rebounding will come from Willie Barnes, 6-5 junior center who leaps exceptionally well. He gets help underneath from 6-2 junior forward Curtis Saine, who inherited the graduated Moroski's spot in the lineup and has been improving game by game, in Carinica's eyes.

Lurking on the wings will be two 5-11 seniors, Joe Powell and Joe Robinson, the latter the team's best outside shooter. The guard corps is deep with 5-11 Tom Conklin and 5-6 Dave Brazell available.

For substitutes, Carinica usually tabs 5-10 Dan Del Rose, who can play guard or forward, and 5-10 junior Tom Bridges at forward.

Barnes, Powell, Robinson and Conklin started last year, while Del Rose saw quite a bit of action, giving the Hornets a unit unmatched in the league as far as playing time together is concerned.

"We have the material," Carinica said. "It's just a matter of consistent scoring. We've tried to stress the fast break all year, but I don't think we've gotten that together yet. It's going to help us if we do. We have a lot of team speed."

Speed, experience, balance and the advantage of having played together will be the strengths of a Novato team which expects to be in the race all the way.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Market Not Really A Game

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I have been playing the market for six years now and losing every year. About a month ago I purchased 800 shares of Levitz Furniture (NYSE) at 25½ and 700 on margin at 26½. I would appreciate your advice on whether to hold or sell. — A.S.

A. Perhaps if you had "invested" six years ago rather than "playing the market" you would be in a better position today. In the last six years even the conservative Dow Industrial Average has moved up about 50 per cent, despite the sustained 1969-1970 bear market.

While you have committed a considerable amount of capital to Levitz, the shares merit retention. Earnings growth, which had been in the superior range of 57 per cent annually over the last five years, attracted substantial institutional interest in shares of this furniture warehouse retailer.

At last count, some 52 institutions still held more than 4 million shares, about one quarter of the outstanding stock. Adverse news has resulted in wholesale selling by the professionals and some fairly spectacular price gyrations for the shares.

Most recent in the bad news department were the poor operating results for the fiscal third quarter ended October and the subsequent slowdown in sales gains from November. The reduction in incremental sales gains, plus an increase in advertising expenses were factors in the third quarter profit margin squeeze.

Also important was the inordinate number of new stores. Levitz amortizes opening expenses for new units over the first year of the stores' operations, which reduces pre-tax margins per unit by about 2.5 per cent. Despite this handicap, nine months' earnings were up 42 per cent, a respectable rate of growth in anyone's book. Hold for gradual appreciation.

Loss Sales Send Stock Prices Down

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stock prices eased in moderately active trading on the New York Stock Exchange today, with year-end tax loss selling a factor.

Analysts noted only two sessions remain for tax loss selling purposes since the exchange will be closed Thursday in observance of the national day of mourning for former President Harry S Truman.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange declined in fairly active trading. Permaneer Corp. was the most active Amex issue, off ⅜ to 9 ¼ on 107,100 shares, including a block trade of 99,900 shares at 9.

New Line Of Wines Will Be Marketed

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — Fine Wines of America, a newly-formed company planning to produce and market a line of fine wines at medium prices, has established corporate offices here.

Herbert F. Tomasek, president, said yesterday John G. Tobias has been named vice president of marketing.

Tobias said marketing headquarters will be maintained at the San Francisco office. The firm maintains other offices in Fresno and Santa Barbara.

Tobias said the firm, early next year, will begin test marketing a totally new line of red, white and rose wines in selected West Coast urban areas. In 1974 the company's wines will be marketed nationally.

"Our fine wines will be prices compatible with the average family's food budget," Tobias said.

MARKET TO SHUT FOR TRUMAN RITE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Both the New York and American Stock exchanges will be closed all day tomorrow for the funeral of former President Harry S. Truman.

It is expected that most other domestic financial and commodity markets also will observe the national day of mourning.

Stans For Sports New Office, Warehouse Scheduled For Novato

Stan's For Sports new office and warehouse building will start going up next February in Novato at the corner of Ford Way and Hill Road, behind the Novato Ford agency.

The concrete structure with extensive landscaping will have two-story offices and a one-story warehouse totalling 50,000 square feet, more than an acre of floor space.

"We hope to be in the new building by July," said vice president George Tsegeletos. "It will be our main office and regional warehouse. Contractor is Al Villa of San Rafael, and the architect is Keith Olsen of Sausalito.

Stan's for Sports, headed by Stanley K. Goldsmith, is a rapidly expanding firm with stores in San Rafael, Mill Valley, Novato, Santa Rosa, Pleasant Hill, and San Jose, with two additional stores just acquired in Bakersfield and in Fresno. The Bakersfield and Fresno stores are the former Mid-Valley Sports stores.

Selmi

WILLIAM P. SELMI of Tiburon has been promoted to assistant vice president of systems and planning in Crocker Bank's San Francisco data processing center.

A native San Franciscan, Selmi joined Crocker Bank in 1969 and has since served in various capacities with the San Francisco data processing center.

ALBERT'S TRANSMISSIONS at 933-B Francisco Boulevard in San Rafael plans to move next spring into a new building that will just about double its present space.

Owner Albert Tanner, who has operated the transmission service for seven years, plans to build a 7,000-square-foot tilt-up concrete building at 1249 Francisco Boulevard, near Sonny Zappetini's Sun Iron Works on the road to San Quentin Point.

Tanner said the new building will provide more space and far better access.

ABRAHAM B. SELBY of San Rafael has been appointed assistant vice president at the San Francisco home office of Fireman's Fund American Insurance Companies. He is special assistant to the senior vice president in charge of nationwide administration.

Selby joined Fireman's Fund as a senior auto-casualty underwriter in 1956, and in 1960 was named premium audit manager for the traffic department in San Francisco. He became administrative manager for the San Francisco branch office in 1964 and in 1971 was appointed to the present position in the nationwide administration department.

EDGAR T. LINDNER Jr. of Mill Valley has been promoted to assistant vice president, commercial loan department of the Bank of California.

Lindner joined the bank in 1967 and was promoted to commercial loan officer in 1971. A native of San Francisco, he graduated from the University of Oregon in 1966 with a degree in finance.

JIM CORBET'S Home Craftsman's Store at 1155 Magnolia Avenue in Larkspur has been appointed an authorized dealer of the re-introduced Shopsmith home workshop as well as Shopsmith and Sawsmith accessories.

The announcement came from Shopsmith Inc. of Tipp City, Ohio, organized early this year to revive the Shopsmith line which was discontinued several years ago.

Jim Corbet said that the new Mark V Shopsmith offers the home craftsman the versatility of a table saw, vertical and horizontal drill press, disk sander, and lathe in a single unit.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Market Not Really A Game

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I have been playing the market for six years now and losing every year. About a month ago I purchased 800 shares of Levitz Furniture (NYSE) at 25½ and 700 on margin at 26½. I would appreciate your advice on whether to hold or sell. — A.S.

A. Perhaps if you had "invested" six years ago rather than "playing the market" you would be in a better position today. In the last six years even the conservative Dow Industrial Average has moved up about 50 per cent, despite the sustained 1969-1970 bear market.

While you have committed a considerable amount of capital to Levitz, the shares merit retention. Earnings growth, which had been in the superior range of 57 per cent annually over the last five years, attracted substantial institutional interest in shares of this furniture warehouse retailer.

At last count, some 52 institutions still held more than 4 million shares, about one quarter of the outstanding stock. Adverse news has resulted in wholesale selling by the professionals and some fairly spectacular price gyrations for the shares.

Most recent in the bad news department were the poor operating results for the fiscal third quarter ended October and the subsequent slowdown in sales gains from November. The reduction in incremental sales gains, plus an increase in advertising expenses were factors in the third quarter profit margin squeeze.

Also important was the inordinate number of new stores. Levitz amortizes opening expenses for new units over the first year of the stores' operations, which reduces pre-tax margins per unit by about 2.5 per cent. Despite this handicap, nine months' earnings were up 42 per cent, a respectable rate of growth in anyone's book. Hold for gradual appreciation.

LINING IT UP

An employee at the Burlington Northern's Plum Creek Lumber Co. at Columbia Falls, Mont., looks on as dinosaur-like teeth clamp on a 16-foot log to start it through the mill. Demand for lumber has soared on the strength of a record national rate a boom in construction.

Loss Sales Send Stock Prices Down

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stock prices eased in moderately active trading on the New York Stock Exchange today, with year-end tax loss selling a factor.

Analysts noted only two sessions remain for tax loss selling purposes since the exchange will be closed Thursday in observance of the national day of mourning for former President Harry S Truman.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange declined in fairly active trading. Permaneer Corp. was the most active Amex issue, off ⅜ to 9 ¼ on 107,100 shares, including a block trade of 99,900 shares at 9.

New Line Of Wines Will Be Marketed

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — Fine Wines of America, a newly-formed company planning to produce and market a line of fine wines at medium prices, has established corporate offices here.

Herbert F. Tomasek, president, said yesterday John G. Tobias has been named vice president of marketing.

Tobias said marketing headquarters will be maintained at the San Francisco office. The firm maintains other offices in Fresno and Santa Barbara.

Tobias said the firm, early next year, will begin test marketing a totally new line of red, white and rose wines in selected West Coast urban areas. In 1974 the company's wines will be marketed nationally.

"Our fine wines will be prices compatible with the average family's food budget," Tobias said.

MARKET TO SHUT FOR TRUMAN RITE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Both the New York and American Stock exchanges will be closed all day tomorrow for the funeral of former President Harry S. Truman.

It is expected that most other domestic financial and commodity markets also will observe the national day of mourning.

Bus-Truck Crash Kills 19 Persons

FORT SUMNER, N.M. (UPI) — A loaded cattle truck jackknifed on a narrow bridge in a desolate area Tuesday night and collided with a chartered bus carrying 35 Texas teenagers and their chaperons to a Baptist church retreat. Nineteen persons were killed.

The collision was so violent the bus and truck looked like they "just melted together," said Capt. A. C. Jones of the New Mexico State Police. There was no fire.

Nearly all the seats in the bus were ripped loose and thrown forward, and the body of the bus was separated from the frame.

"There were four or five people up on the road," said Harvey Stidham of the Gold Star Ambulance Co. of nearby Clovis, who arrived after police pulled the dead and injured from the bus. "We went down in the ditch and found some more. There were 14 to 20 people lying down there."

The bus was the second of two heading from Austin to a three-day retreat in the mountainous ski country. The first bus crossed the bridge seconds before the crash involving a cattle truck driven by Ervy Wilmeth of Wilmeth Cattle Co. in Clovis. About half of the 40 cattle on the truck were killed in the collision or injured so badly they were shot.

"There are 16 bodies in the mortuary here," said de Baca County Coroner Dr. Roland Crane.

Three more unidentified bodies were taken to Clovis, N.M.

Treatment of the injured was hampered by the remoteness of the crash scene, almost an hour's drive to major hospital facilities in Clovis. An Air Force surgeon was flown by helicopter to the wreckage from Kirtland Air Force Base.

John Roberts, who drove the first bus safely across the bridge, said he looked in his mirror in time to see the following lights of the second bus disappear and the truck jackknife.

"Everything was normal and then the lights went out," he said.

The parents and relatives of the youth group gathered at the Woodlawn Baptisthurch in Austin and learned of the deaths of 16 of the teen-agers just after midnight.

"These, as far as we can determine, are not alive," said Rev. James Abington as he read the list of confirmed dead.

U.S. Trade Balance Worsens

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. trade balance took a sharp turn for the worse in November, the Commerce Department said Wednesday, but the composite index of economic indicators carried more optimistic news.

Pushed by record imports, the trade deficit increased by a seasonally adjusted $559.2 million last month, the most since a $590.3 million deficit in June. The trade deficit is the amount that imports exceed exports.

The department also said that the composite index, considered a good measure of what lies ahead for the economy, moved ahead by 1.9 per cent in November, the biggest jump since the 2.2 per cent August rise.

Six of the eight indicators available moved favorably and only two declined.

Despite occasional fluctuations, the index has been trending up for two years. Assistant Commerce Secretary Harold C. Passer noted that in the past, the index has leveled out after about 18 months.

Passer said the continued rise "reinforces the generally accepted view will continue to expand rapidly in 1973."

The trade report showed a seasonally adjusted import level of $5.02 billion, up from last month's previous record high $4.78 billion. Exports, at $4.47 billion, were the second highest on record, bettered only by the $4.51 billion of September 1971.

A trade deficit means that the value of imported goods is greater than the value of products a country exports. The United States enjoyed trade surpluses, where exports exceed imports, from 1893 to 1970. In 1971, the U.S. trade balance moved into deficit by $2 billion, and for the first 11 months of this year the trade ledger is in the red by $5.8 billion.

The two biggest increases among the components of the leading indicators were common stock prices and industrial materials prices.

Others moving up in November were new orders for durable goods, length of the average work week and the price-labor cost ratio. Initial claims for unemployment insurance declined, considered a good sign. Contracts and orders for plant and equipment and building permits were off for the month.

In November, the index was at 150.4 compared with 147.6 in October and 113.6 in October, 1970, the beginning of the current expansion.

Very Little Found From Sunken Ship

JUNEAU, Alaska (UPI) —An oil slick, four capsized lifeboats and debris are all searchers have found of the 13,000-ton Pacrover, which vanished in the stormy north Pacific earlier this week.

Drug Theft From Police Headquarters Is Probed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Police Commissioner Patrick Murphy and two inspectors have been ordered to show cause why a grand jury probing narcotics thefts from police headquarters should not have access to their evidence.

The jury began hearing testimony Tuesday into the disappearance from the police property clerk's office of at least 300 pounds of heroin and cocaine, including more than 80 pounds of heroin seized in the famous 1962 "French Connection" case.

Gene L. Grupposo, one of three police department personel subpoenaed by the grand jury, testified.

Two others—Assistant Chief Inspector John Guido and Inspector Howard A. Metzdorff — did not answer their subpoenas.

Manhattan Supreme Court Judge Sidney Fine ordered Murphy, Guido and Medzdorff to appear in court Thursday to answer the order.

Fine's decision was seen as a victory for the city's five district attorneys in a jurisdictional dispute with special state prosecutor Maurice Nadjari.

Thursday Mail Holiday Slated

WASHINGTON (UPI) —In observance of a national day of mourning for former President Harry S Truman, all post offices will be closed and general mail delivery will be suspended Thursday.

Postmaster General E.T. Klassen said Tuesday there would be special delivery in some areas and mail pickups from collection boxes on curtailed schedules.

President Nixon announced earlier Tuesday that all government offices will be closed Thursday.

RED BARON, BEWARE!

Five-year-old Jeffrey Hobbs of 35 Ayala Court, San Rafael, gives the thumbs-up sign as his father, Richard J. Hobbs, spins the propeller of a model German Fokker D-VII he built for his son for Christmas. Hobbs, a San Rafael garage owner, built the plane — which sports a 10-foot wingspan and a motor-driven prop — in his spare time over the last two months because young Jeffrey "wanted an airplane for Christmas." The airplane, which Hobbs claims will fly "if pushed off a hill," is constructed of wooden ribs, steel tubing and canvas covering. The craft has been dubbed "Michelle" for Jeffrey's 5-year-old girlfriend.

McCown's Surprise Replacement Bared

Bielser Named Manager In Wake Of Resignation

By NELS JOHNSON

In a surprise move, the San Rafael City Council last night announced the resignation of City Mgr. James H. McCown and declared he will be replaced Monday by Asst. City Mgr. William J. Bielser.

The action came after a three-hour closed session in city hall called to consider a proposal by McCown that he step down as city manager to return to his previous position as city finance director.

The council rejected the proposal as financially impossible.

Both McCown, who was appointed city manager in July, 1969, and Bielser, appointed as McCown's assistant last December, declined to elaborate on the matter.

The 60-year-old McCown said only that he was leaving the city with "no regrets" and had "no plans for the future" as he removed a plaque from his office wall and straightened his desk following the session last night.

The 30-year-old Bielser, named acting city manager "for an indefinite period," was told by the council to begin advertising for an assistant.

The council — in the absence of colleague Lawrence E. Mulryan — hiked Bielser's present salary of $18,800 annually to $22,000 McCown received $25,200 as city manager.

McCown's two-page proposal, which he had declined to make public, was released last night by the council. In the document, McCown urged city fathers to name him finance director, a post he held from April, 1968 until being appointed city manager. McCown requested his pay be set at $1,525 per month and his duties include fiscal work in connection with revenue sharing funds, the city's Redevelopment Agency and the emergency services program.

WILLIAM J. BIELSER
Named acting city manager

"If my reassignment is approved, the present combined office of treasurer-director of finance should be dissolved and separate offices of treasurer and finance be restored," he said. Treasurer duties should be expanded to include business license inspections, now carried out by the police department at a cost of $6,200, McCown said.

McCown proposed that John B. Averett, the city's finance director and city treasurer, be given only treasurer responsibilities and that he retain his present salary of $1,628 per month. Under the proposal, the increased cost to the city would be McCown's proposed salary, or $1,525 per month, Averett said today.

McCown said he was offering to return to finance duties because of an increased workload in the city manager's department, but Mayor C. Paul Bettini hinted health reasons also figured in the proposal.

"During the three years and eight months I have occupied the manager's position, the workload has been continuous and building," McCown wrote. "The taking of normal leave has been almost an impossibility and sick leave hazardous at best."

McCown said he had accummulated about 45 days each of ordinary leave and sick leave, and requested he be given two months leave before being returned to the finance post. The council said that an employee "loses everything" upon resignation, but declared McCown

Thousands Pay Honor To Truman

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (UPI) — The body of Harry S Truman was carried today in a slow, solemn procession past his home on Delaware Street to the Truman Library where the 33rd U. S. President will lie in state. Thousands of Americans, ordinary and important, lined the streets to honor and mourn him.

Common folk from the Missouri farmlands where he was reared gathered on a crisp, clear day to grieve the passing of the tough little "Man of Independence." Truman's body will lie in state, in a permanently sealed casket draped with an American flag, for 21 ½ hours until Thursday's plain, private funeral.

Americans mourned him in the simple, quiet way he wanted. The motorcade left the Carson Funeral Home and moved slowly over the one and a half miles to the library.

Three thousand military troops stood at attention along the 15-block route in the bright sunshine.

President Nixon and his wife Pat flew to Independence to lay a wreath at the Truman Library in the afternoon and pay their respects to the family. The Nixons planned to return to Washington four hours later and will not attend the funeral on Thursday.

The Washington memorial service for Truman will be held at the Washington Cathedral Jan. 5.

Truman, whose momentous decisions during and after World War II shaped the destiny of his country, died Tuesday at the age of 88 after a three-week fight against age and disease.

Truman will be buried with the momentos he loved best — his Grand Master of the Mason Lodge pin in his lapel, his blue, purple and white Masonic apron around his waist and his 33rd degree Scottish Rite ring.

The ceremonies were cut to three days to ease the strain on Mrs. Truman.

"Mrs. Truman is 87 years old, and the only reason to shorten it was to try to lessen the impact of his death on her as much as possible," said Randall Jessee, a family spokesman.

The military announced today the only tentative pageantry for Thursday's funeral —a 21-gun salute and a fly-over by 21 Air Force planes.

But only about 30 of the 57 aging men who served under "Captain Harry" in Battery D in World War I will attend the last rites.

"The rest don't get around quite like they used to," said Eddie Meisburger, a retired newsman who is secretary-treasurer of the Battery D Association.

And General of the Army Omar N. Bradley, another tough Missourian and himself frail at 79, was among those close to Truman who could not attend. Doctors advised Bradley not to fly to Independence from his home in California because he suffered a recent heart ailment.

"The world is a better place for his having lived in it," said the man who served under President Truman as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Nixon hailed Truman as a man of "vision and guts." He declared a 30-day period of mourning with flags on all government buildings flying at half staff. And he proclaimed Thursday as a national day of mourning. There will be no mail delivery that day and both the New York and American stock exchanges will be closed.

Former President Lyndon B. Johnson, his wife Lady Bird, and their daughters and their husbands, also announced plans to fly to Independence this afternoon. Johnson remembered Truman as a man "who was never flinching in the face of crucial national choices."

Truman said the toughest choice he made as President

U.S. Gives Report On First Week Of Raids

SAIGON (UPI) — The U.S. Command, in the first detailed report of the air war over North Vietnam, said today "more than 1,000" tactical fighter-bomber strikes and 147 B52 missions were flown during the week of Dec. 18-25, and listed 72 military targets hit in this biggest bombing campaign of the war.

The nine-page report fell far short of describing the magnitude of the raids, some of which the Command said struck as close as one mile from the center of Hanoi. The report did not include the massive bombing that resumed after a 36-hour Christmas halt.

Communist reports from Hanoi said the raids continued today. The Communist reports said the bombs cut a swath of destruction through Hanoi itself and that tens of thousands of refugees were fleeing the city. A Polish report said bombs fell one kilometer (.6 of a mile) from the center of Hanoi today, and a Swedish report said the city shook as if an earthquake had hit.

"During the period 18 December to 25 December 1972, U.S. Air Force, U.S. Navy and U.S. Marine Corps aircrews flew more than 1,000 tactical strikes and the U.S. Air Force flew 147 B52 missions against military targets in North Vietnam," the Command said.

Asked to define a tactical strike, the Command spokesman said it was a "scheduled flight of one aircraft against a targeted installation." Asked to define a B52 mission he described it as a mission "by one or more aircraft."

Before today's report the command described the current series of raids as the heaviest of the war. During the period starting Dec. 18, 18 American planes were reported shot down, including 11 B52s. At least 58 Americans were killed or listed as missing.

The Command today reported another B52 and seven fighter-bombers downed. The Communists claimed eight more B52s shot down and said this brought to 61 the number of U.S. planes downed with about 100 Americans captured.

Joint Ridge Plan Upsets Larkspur

The Larkspur Planning Commission expressed concern last night that the so-called "three cities plan" for preserving Northridge open space differed in some respects from the city's own plan. (See another Larkspur Planning Commission story, page 3.)

The upshot was a unanimous vote of the three commissioners present — Otto Hoefler, Benton A. Sifford Jr. and Charles H. Curley — to approve only those parts of the new plan that conform to the city's which was adopted last June.

The new plan — paid for by the cities of Mill Valley, Corte Madera and Larkspur, the county and the Marin Conservation League — was described at last night's public hearing before the commission by Brian G. Wittenkeller, the county planning consultant.

Apart from differences over some areas earmarked for open space, the meeting was highlighted by recommendation of ways to acquire land by giving developers higher density allowance elsewhere in exchange, and even by permitting some controlled cluster development in the Northridge open space area.

The latter suggestion startled commissioners, who were told by Wittenkeller that such a solution is needed because it is inconceivable that all 1,347 acres on the ridges above the three cities can be bought outright by them. The cost would be prohibitive he said.

"Carefully conceived and planned cluster developments" could be built, he said.

Commissioners Hoefler and Sifford expressed disbelief that the concept of preserving open space and permitting development were compatible.

Sifford said this violated both his own understanding and the intent of the Larkspur plan which envisioned the city's share of the ridgelands as a conservation area devoid of development.

He said that if the city were to adopt the new plan most people would assume that the land was frozen in its present state, but that Wittenkeller appeared to be proposing something quite different.

Larkspur's planning director, Arthur N. Stout, countered that unless the city could buy the land outright, it would have to "use other techniques."

Wittenkeller said that such planned unit development was not being proposed for any specific locales in the Northridge, that development would be "by special considerations in certain areas."

Another method of acquiring open space the professional planners advised, would be by granting developers higher density on property elsewhere in the communities in exchange for dedication of land owned by the developer in the Northridge.

A principal difference, pointed out by Sifford, was the

State, County Offices To Close For Truman

Federal and state offices will be closed tomorrow in memory of former President Harry S. Truman, but local government agencies had mixed decisions on whether to close.

County offices will close, but the board of supervisors will meet at 9 a.m. as scheduled.

County Administrator John F. Barrows noted that under the state's Government Code and the county's collective bargaining agreement with its employees, when the governor declares a state holiday it applies to the county as well.

Courts also will be closed in Marin.

In Sonoma, however, county offices and courts will be open as usual.

City halls will remain open in San Rafael and Belvedere.

They will be closed in Fairfax, Tiburon, Rohnert Park, Larkspur. Corte Madera Regional Library will be closed, while the Larkspur Library will be open.

Other city halls still were undecided late this morning.

Fairfax, San Rafael, San Anselmo and county schools offices will be closed.

Banks will remain open, unless instructed otherwise by the federal reserve system.

Also there will be no mail service.

Marin Leads State In Average Income For '70

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Marin again led all California counties in average income reported and state income taxes paid last year for calendar year 1970, the state Franchise Tax Board reported yesterday.

The average adjusted gross income reported on Marin County residents' tax returns was $14,054 and the tax per return was $431, the franchise board said.

Contra Costa was second in income per return at $13,027 but only eighth in taxes paid, at $296.

Statewide, the adjusted gross income — computed before certain deductions but after certain others are figured — increased from $61 billion to $63 billion, while the state income taxes revenue increased from $1.09 billion to $1.21 billion.

The state board said the average income report showed an increase of $414 or 4 per cent in 1970, but the amount of taxes paid increased from $225 to $280, or 9.8 per cent over the figure for 1969. A board spokesman noted that taxpayers were granted a one-time, 10 per cent credit on their taxes in 1969.

CAREER EDUCATION

Marin Goal Is Marketable Job Skill For All Graduates

By PAT PERRY
(Second of two articles)

The ultimate goal of career education in Marin County is for every high school graduate to possess a marketable job skill. Despite a very long way to go to reach that goal, much is being done.

Traditional vocational training classes continue in high schools and the College of Marin, with heavy emphasis on office and automotive skills. Programs such as the vocational nursing and dental assisting courses at the college continue popular.

The county schools' office is expanding its Regional Occupation Program. Currently it offers, to any student or adult in Marin, free training ranging from cosmetology to restaurant food preparation.

Each high school district, as well as the Marin Community College District, runs a Work Education Experience Program (WEEP), under which students get credit while doing a paid job - although it's not necessarily in a job they intend to follow upon graduation. More than 600 College of Marin students are enrolled in WEEP.

The newest addition is the career exploratory work experience program (presumably CEWEP). This program enables students to sample jobs they fancy, without actually performing paid work. They get school credit.

A prime example is the Law Enforcement Exploratory Work Experience program run by the Corte Madera Police Department. It's known as LEEP (For some reason career education is big on acronyms).

Police Officer Andre Horn runs this Junior Cadet program, which is so popular with high school students that candidates compete for selection. The eight young men and one girl go to the Corte Madera police station on Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons, wearing an informal uniform of blue shirts, dark trousers or skirt.

"Officers come in and give

A CRASH VICTIM — A body lies in the snow outside the wreckage of a chartered Uruguayan plane that crashed in the Andes on Oct. 13, 120 miles from Santiago, Chile. Sixteen members of the Christian Brothers Rugby Team of Montevideo survived. Charges of cannibalism in order to survive have been denied by relatives and officials.

(UPI Telephoto)

Cannibalism Charges Denied In Surviving Airline Crash

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — Relatives and officials denied allegations today that 16 persons who survived for 10 weeks after an airplane crash in the Andes did so by eating the flesh of their dead friends.

The survivors themselves said nothing.

But a diplomat said the 16 Uruguayans who survived 70 days after the crash of a Uruguayan air force F27 turboprop Oct. 13 would issue a statement after they return Saturday or Sunday to Montevideo.

Until then, said Uruguayan charge d'affaires Cesar Charlone, the survivors, all members of the Christian Brothers Rugby team of Montevideo, will remain in isolation in their hotel rooms.

Allegations of cannibalism began circulating shortly after the dramatic news last weekend that the 16 survived the crash high on an icy Andes slope.

Then the chief of the rescue squad which first reached the site of the crash said Tuesday he found evidence of cannibalism in and around the wreckage of the plane, located on a 13,500-foot slope of Tinguiririca volcano about 120 miles from Santiago.

The newspaper La Segunda reported details of the case Tuesday under a headline reading: "May God forgive them. Justifiable cannibalism."

But a government spokesman, Arsenio Poupin, said the reports lacked "serious foundation" and some relatives of survivors branded the reports lies.

"The foulest lie I have ever heard in my life," said Mrs. Domitila Paez, whose son Carlos was among the survivors. "Someone is trying to make filth out of the greatest miracle in history."

Other parents wept when they heard the reports.

Survivors refused earlier to discuss how they lived since the plane carried only enough food for the survivors for four days at most. "It was a dreadful experience," one said. "That is all I will say."

But Guillermo Silva, chief of the Andean rescue squad, said a three-man patrol from his organization found "chopped-up pieces of human remains" at the crash site.

Silva said the patrol found the remains during the 48 hours it stayed with the survivors to supervise the rescue and said a complete report was handed over to Chilean and Argentine authorities.

Rescuers went to the site after two survivors reached civilization last Friday and led rescuers back to help their colleagues.

La Segunda said the rescue squad report included the following:

"In order to survive...the injured men aboard the Uruguayan airplane had to eat the flesh of their companions."

It said only six bodies were found intact by rescuers. It also said rescuers found human remains hanging from the outside of the fuselage and piles of bones inside the wreckage.

It said a medical student, using razor blades he guarded in a box, cut up and rationed out parts of the bodies.

Navy Purchases $1.7 Million Block Of Stock

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Navy has bought $1.7 million in stock of an ailing defense plant on Long Island, The New York Times said today.

The Times said the Navy purchased all 17,414 shares of preferred stock in the Gap Instrument Corp. as a means of helping the company through a period of heavy cost overruns.

The purchase, The Times said, makes the Defense Department the largest single stockholder in the company.

The Defense Department purchase, The Times said, is for nonvoting, nonconvertible shares that pay no dividend, and is to be redeemed beginning in 1976, but only out of the company's after-tax profits. But, The Times said, the company has not shown a profit in the last four years, and in 1968 showed a profit of only $10,700.

The arrangement is believed to mark the first time that the Department of Defense has purchased stock in a private corporation, The Times said.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

12th B52 Downed

BANGKOK (UPI) —American officials said today a B52 bomber crashed near the huge U Tapao air base early today after sustaining damage during a mission over Vietnam. He said four crewmen were killed and two injured.

The spokesman did not say whether the mission was over North or South Vietnam.

It was the 12th B52 reported downed by hostile fire since the resumption of full-scale bombing 10 days ago.

First reports said the crash occurred apparently while the plane was trying to land.

Raids Over Syria

TEL AVIV (UPI) —Israel announced its warplanes hit two frontier Syrian army positions and an Arab guerrilla base 25 miles inside Syria today in retaliation for two recent guerrilla attacks from there.

It was the first air force raid into Syria since Nov. 21 when a similar strike touched off the heaviest fighting between the two countries since the beginning of the mid-1970 Middle East cease-fire.

This time, an announcement said, all of the raiding aircraft returned safely, their pilots reporting "good hits" on their targets.

Manager Kidnaped

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Vicente Russo, Argentine production manager of Standard Electric, an ITT affiliate, was kidnaped today by an armed group, police said.

Police said witnesses told them the kidnapers blocked Russo's chauffeur-driven car with a pick-up truck, then forced the executive into another car.

The chauffeur also was abducted, police said. Witnesses said about 12 men participated in the abduction.

The kidnap took place near Russo's home in Beccar, a suburb about 10 miles north of downtown.

Trial Set In Robbery Try

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner ordered Michael Lyn Tankersly, 25, of Santa Rosa, to stand trial Feb. 20.

He was arrested Nov. 30 after occupants of the home he invaded wrested Tankersly's gun from him and clouted him on the head, inflicting wounds for which he was treated at a local hospital.

Boots Drug Case

BOSTON (UPI) —A federal judge Tuesday released two men convicted of distributing a hallucinogenic drug because, he said, they would not have been prosecuted if they were executives, tax evaders or violators of political campaign contribution laws.

"If you were that kind of person, this office of the U.S. Attorney would not have you on its list for prosecution," U.S. District Judge Charles E. Wyzanski said. "But this office had chosen to put you on its list and I remove you from it."

Mark Boasberg, 22, Cambridge, and Richard Hamm, 21, Stoneham, pleaded guilty to distributing a drug called MDA. Wyzanski first gave them one day's probation, then eliminated the probation period and ordered the conviction set aside.

"Isn't it perfectly plain that the criminal law is not the way to deal with this problem?" Wyzanski said. The judge said 50 per cent of the criminal cases in federal courts in Massachusetts had to do with drug law violations "as if we were back in the days of prohibition."

Park Sworn In

SEOUL (UPI) —President Park Chung-hee assumed office for another six years today under a constitution changed to allow his re-election with stronger powers than any of his predecessors.

The 54-year-old former army general took the oath of office before about 3,000 persons, thus returning the country to full constitutional rule. It was ruled by Park by decree after his declaration of nationwide martial law in October.

Under a ew constitution, Park was allowed to seek a new term, extend it from four to six years and take emergency action whenever he wants to impose almost complete control over South Korea.

Cease-Fire Ends

BELFAST (UPI) —A three-day Christmas cease-fire by extremists in Northern Ireland ended yesterday with bullets and bombs that left eight persons wounded. British army spokesmen said violence "on all sides" resumed.

The holiday lull in the bloodshed ended when gunmen in a passing car sprayed bullets at a group of men standing outside a bookie's shop in a Roman Catholic area of Belfast. Two men were wounded.

A series of bombing and shooting attacks in Belfast and elsewhere followed and British troops clashed with gunmen several times in the city. Troops said they wounded one gunman.

POW Writes Bombs Halt Activities

NEW YORK (UPI) —The resumed bombing attacks on North Vietnam hae disrupted the cycle of volleyball, card games and Bible-reading for prisoners of war in Hanoi, according to the text of a letter that was read over Radio Havana yesterday.

A spokesman for the Committee of Liaison with Families of Prisoners of War and Missing in Action said the letter, read on a Vietnamese program that was broadast by Cuban radio, came from Air Force Capt. Jerome Donald Heeren, 27, Brooking, S.D., whose plane was shot down in September.

"Our daily routine here has stopped abruptly since the bombing of Hanoi was resumed on Monday night," said the letter that was read by Nina Kimche, a member of the Committee of Liaison.

"I can tell you by being on the receiving end of the attack that it's eye-watering.

"Don't know how much real danger we're in as we have about as much protection in this camp as the people of Hanoi have. It appears to me that we are being treated as well as possible under the circumstances."

In Eden Prairie, Minn., where Heeren's family lives, his sister, Gwen Rosenow, said it was the third message that has arrived from her brother.

She said she found the bombing of Hanoi to be disturbing but worthwhile "if it will bring them to the tables."

The American government has denied bombing the POW camps but warned the North Vietnamese last week to keep the camps away from military targets.

"...Believe it or not I finally finished reading the New Testament," said the letter read by Mrs. Kimche. "I am now working on the Old.

"We have a lot of spare time and reading has been one of my usual activities. We also play cards, hearts and gin mostly. I am learning to play chess. We play volleyball once a week and I have been lifting weights sporadically..."

Service Board's Meet Delayed

The meeting of the Bel Marin Keys Community Service Board, scheduled for tomorrow, has been postponed until 8 p.m. next Wednesday at the Pavilion, according to secretary Betty Zoeller.

The main item on the agenda was signing the contract for construction of the locks, but it will not be ready by Thursday, she said. Duncan-Harrelson of Oakland was the low bidder with a bid of $689,400.

France Enters Talks Picture

PARIS (UPI) — France took diplomatic action today to unsnarl the Vietnam peace talks but the North Vietnamese refused even to meet the Americans to discuss technical points of the stalled draft cease -fire accord. A Communist spokesman cited "the most barbarous air attacks" against the North.

A U. S. delegation spokesman said the Communist rejection was of an American proposal that a new experts meeting be held today. He said the offer came at the last technical session Saturday which the Communist representatives cut short after delivering a protest against the U. S. bombing.

"The (North Vietnamese) side cannot participate in the meeting of representatives and experts that the U. S. has proposed on December 27, 1972, and is obliged to postpone the meeting until another date," the Communist rejection note said.

"Up to the present time, the United States has continued to carry out most barbarous air attacks against the capital city of Hanoi, the port city of Haiphong and several other populated areas all over North Vietnam."

"As has been pointed out by the (North Vietnamese) side, when the situation existing before December 18, 1972, has been restored, the meetings of representatives and experts will be resumed."

The United States resumed heavy air attacks over North Vietnam on Dec.18 after peace negotiations between White House aide Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho collapsed.

French Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann, in an apparent effort to get the Vietnam peace negotiations going again, had a long talk today with U. S. charge d'Affaires Jack Kubisch.

Kubisch — heading the embassy until the arrival of new Ambassador John N. Irwin — met with Schumann for 75 minutes in the Minister's Quaid'Orsay office.

Comedian's Wife Asks Dissolution

INDIO, Calif. (UPI) — Barbara Marx has filed for dissolution of her marriage to Zeppo Marx, the one-time straight man of the Marx Brothers comedy team.

The divorce proceedings were filed in this desert city Tuesday, five weeks after the couple separated. Zeppo, 71, and his wife were married in Las Vegas, Nev., in 1959.

Foster Care Aid Increased

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Legislation boosting the state's contribution to county-financed foster care programs from $80 to $120 per month per child has been signed into law by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Reagan said yesterday the legislation by Assemblywoman Yvonne Brathwaite, D-Los Angeles, would help ease local property taxes by transferring an estimated $7.5 million a year from local taxes to the state.

Reagan said the Brathwaite bill would be technically erased when the school finance-tax shift bill he sponsored with Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti backed takes effect June 1, 1973. But Reagan said his administration would push for fresh legislation to continue the benefits.

Larkspur Planners Adopt Strict Color Regulations

Single-family homeowners in Larkspur will still be able to paint their houses bright purple if they want to, but owners of apartments, stores, townhouses, offices, and public buildings may have to stick to "soft and muted colors in the earthtone shades."

The color regulations were contained in a new architectural supervision ordinance before the Larkspur Planning Commission last night.

The ordinance requires environmental and design review for practically all development and alterations, except single family houses, within the city.

Even existing buildings coming up for repainting, will have to get their colors approved by city planning staff if they're not earth-toned. And on the list of colors "ordinarily not considered appropriate" are metaliic finishes and bright tones of blue, yellow orange, violet, magenta, and green.

Materials and colors must be in earthtone colors, stated the ordinance, defining them as reddish-brown, brown, tan, ochre, amber, gold, sand, green, white and gray.

The strict new ordinance is part of the commission's decision to abolish its Architectural Design Review Committee, and delegate most of its previous work to the city planning staff.

For major new developments, it requires five aerial photographs showing "views of the property from the four major quadrants of the compass and one plan view of the property."

The only building and alterations exempt from review will be single-family houses and duplexes on public streets, or "trivial work."

The commission made minor alterations in the wording of the long ordinance, and instructed planning director Arthur N. Stout to get it cleared by the city attorney, and obtain proper definition of "townhouse" before recommending its adoption to the city council at the commission's Jan. 9 meeting.

The commission also instructed Stout, chairman Otto Hoefler and a city councilman to be appointed, to meet with an unnamed planning consultant for an interview for the contract to prepare $12,000 worth of general plans for the city.

Hershey Granted Price Increase

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Hershey Food Corp. has won permission to increase the prices of its chocolate candy bars.

The Price Commission ruled Tuesday Hershey could up the price of its milk chocolate bar 9.72 per cent and its chocolate bar with almonds 9.17 per cent. The firm has the option of either raising the price of the candy bars or reducing their size.

Hershey also was given permission to raise the prices of 12 other products.

Meeting Postponed In Honor Of Truman

I-J Special Report

OAKLAND — The Regional Water Quality Control Board's monthly meeting tomorrow in Hayward has been postponed until sometime early next month because of the closing of state offices in memory of former President Harry S Truman.

The board was scheduled to review sewage projects seeking state and federal grants. The date of the January meeting will be announced.

Former Marinite Stabbed To Death

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Eugino T. (Gino) Fagnani, longtime former San Rafael resident, was one of two persons stabbed to death last night in a San Francisco apartment house, according to San Francisco police.

Fagnani, 58, was manager of the building where the killings took place and two other persons were wounded, investigators reported.

Patrolman Jerry Golz said an apartment tenant called Fagnani to help evict a neighbor, James E. Walters, 31, from a party the tenant was giving. A few minutes later, Golz said, Walter reappeared at the party and fatally stabbed a guest, John More, who answered Walters's knock at the door.

Two other guests suffered hand and arm cuts in wresting a butcher knife away from Walters, Golz said.

Fagnani was found fatally wounded on a landing of a nearby staircase, police said. Walters was booked on suspicion of murder.

Fagnani was born in San Rafael, and was a veteran of Army service in World War II. He was a member of the Knights of Columbus and the Disabled American Veterans.

A graduate of St. Raphael School and San Rafael High School, Fagnani was associated with Marin County banks for many years before moving to San Francisco two years ago.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Caesar Fagnani of San Rafael; three daughters, Mrs. Ray Sadduth of Germany, Jean Fagnani of Stockton, and Joan Fagnani of South Dakota; a brother, Carlo Fagnani of Sonora, and three sisters, Mrs. Walter Gooch of Fairfield, Mrs. Rita Burger of San Rafael and Mrs. Arthur Broadway of Montague, Siskyou County.

A Mass of the Resurrection will be offered at 9 a.m. Friday in Mission San Rafael, followed by burial in Mount Olivet Cemetery. The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow in Keaton's Chapel, San Rafael.

inclusion of all of Big King and Little King mountains, right down to the edge of Magnolia Avenue. Little King and saddle between the mountains were not part of the Larkspur plan.

Wittenkeller said it had been included to provide complete separation of Larkspur and Kentfield.

The inclusion of Little King was protested by attorney Wallace Myers, acting for the Tiscornia Estate's executrix, Alice B. Vincilione. He said she wants and is entitled to lower the mountain by 30 feet and use the fill for development of Magnolia Avenue flatlands. Some 600 acres are involved, he said.

He reminded commissioners that within Marin County there are 53,000 acres of open sapce at Point Reyes National Seashore, 40,000 acres in the new Golden Gate Recreational Area and 16,000 acres on Marin Municipal Water District land.

"Just how much land do you need to look at?" he asked.

Myers said buying all the land in the Northridge plan would cost at least $3 million, "and it seems to me it most certainly would not be good for the people of Marin to own all the land or you won't have a substantial tax base at all."

Russ Lauterwasser told the commission he owns 15 acres of land named in the plan, and couldn't understand its inclusion in a ridge plan since its elevation was about 25 feet. He also asked when property owners could expect compensation, since their land was frozen.

Stout said by adopting the Northridge open space plan the city wasn't freezing the land, but merely endorsing the concept. Until zoning is adopted, development is permissible, he said.

Not so, cried attorney Myers, waving a copy of the Government Code in the air, and citing a section which said no building permits or subdivision maps may be approved unless they conform with a city's adopted open space plan. "If you adopt this open space plan you're freezing it," he claimed.

In the end the three commissioners voted to adopt only those areas of the proposed plan that are common to the city's open space plan.

They decided to set up a joint meeting later in the month with the city council the park and recreation commission, Wittenkeller and the consultants Abergast and Newton, "to resolve the discrepancies in the two plans."

They also decided to get the city attorney's opinion on whether they would effectively be freezing all land contained in Northridge by adopting the plan.

was sending U.S. troops to Korea in a "police action" that kept Communist soldiers from taking over territory south of the 38th parallel. He said that decision overshadowed all others, including his order to drop the atomic bomb on Japan.

The atomic bomb order, Truman said, "was purely a military matter that saved thousands of American lives. No other course was conceivable."

Other momentous decisions Truman made during his two terms, 1945-1953, included:

—The go-ahead for development of the hydrogen bomb.

—The Berlin airlift to foil Russia's blockade of the isolated city.

—The "Truman Doctrine" to keep Russia out of southern Europe.

—The creation of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

A Thief Takes Christmas Gifts

mate of the tonnage of bombs dropped since the Command did not specify how many "more than 1,000" tactical missions were flown or exactly how many B52 strikes there were. The fighter-bombers can carry about six tons of bombs each and the B52s, which usually strike in groups of three, 30 tons each. The North Vietnamese delegation to the Paris talks said 40,000 tons of bombs were dropped last week, but there was no way to check this either.

The U.S. Command spokesman said the 72 targets listed were not the only ones hit and he refused to say if any civilian facilities had been struck. The command in the past has said no civilian facilities were targeted. The list of targets included every major airport in the Hanoi-Haiphong area except Gia Lam, Hanoi's civilian facility, and Communist reports said it too was hit. The country's four largest thermal power plants were also on the list.

The missions listed in the command report did not include fighters flying cover for the bombers and missile-firing planes which try to knock out Communist antiaircraft fire.

Reports from Communist and neutral news agencies based in the North Vietnamese capital spoke of widespread devastation in bomb strikes in and around Hanoi Tuesday night and today. One report said U.S. warplanes blasted Hanoi's international airport Tuesday night, demolishing civilian homes near it and leaving the area "looking like en earthquake had struck it."

The Command said U.S. warplanes pounded the North for the second consecutive day today following a 36-hour Christmas bombing pause and reports from Guam and Thailand indicated there would be more strikes tonight.

The U.S. Command spokesmen said today warplanes aimed only at military targets or facilities supporting North Vietnam's military effort. The report listed no damage to civilian facilities.

12 Graduate From Academy

Officers and their departments include Glenn A. Accornero and Mark B. Ihde, Belvedere; Keith B. Gundersen, Larkspur; Ugo F. Innocenti, Novato; Lawrence E. Woodall, San Anselmo; Michael G. Bunker, Gary F. Frugoli and Gerald D. Hasser, San Rafael; Ronald L. Reier, Tiburon; Donald M. Price, Wayne G. Parker and William A. Lane, Petaluma.

Gallinas Valley Moratorium Plea Scheduled

The Marin County Board of Supervisors, meeting tomorrow at 9 a.m. at Civic Center, will consider a request from a citizens' planning committee that a six-month building moratorium be placed over the Las Gallinas Valley.

The request, submitted by the Las Gallinas Valley Master Plan Committee, claims the group needs time to "research the needs and goals of the population living within this watershed area."

Construction of single-family homes would be exempted under the moratorium, which requires four favorable votes. Requests for moratoriums have been turned down in the past.

Tomorrow's session is slated to go only until 11:30 a.m. when the board will adjourn for a luncheon party of county officials honoring outgoing Supervisor Louis H. Baar.

Heliport Office Is Burglarized

The office of San Francisco Oakland Helicopter Airlines in the Richardson Bay heliport was burglarized of $150 in8cash and airline tickets during the night.

Marin sheriff's deputies said entrance to the building, at 240 Redwood Highway north of Sausalito, was gained by kicking in a front door leading to the office. Metal cabinets were pried open, deputies reported.

The burglary occurred between 10:30 p.m. yesterday and 6 a.m. today.

OBITUARIES

Builder John E. Kenney Dies In Oakland At 67

John Edward Kenney, whose contracting company built some 5,000 homes throughout the Bay Area, died yesterday in an Oakland hospital after a long illness. He was 67.

A native of Montana, he was graduated in 1927 from Stanford University with a degree in business administration. For the next three years he was head swimming coach at Oregon State University.

Kenney then joined the Federal Housing Administration, and helped set up its first offices on the West Coast.

He lived in San Anselmo during World War II, then moved to Oakland after the war to open his contracting business.

Kenney built San Rafael Meadows in the early 1950s, then launched 15 years of building homes in Terra Linda.

His most recent Marin proposal is for 2,300 units of townhouses and two and three-story condominiums on 700 acres at Black Point.

Kenney also was a limited partner in the Oakland Raiders, and a former president of the Associated Home Builders of the Greater East Bay. He was a member of the Sequoia Country Club in the East Bay and a contributor to various projects at Stanford Medical School.

He is survived by his wife, Lillian; two sons, Jack Kenney of Las Vegas and Gerald Kenney of Piedmont; two grandchildren, two brothers, Frank Kenney of Detroit, Mich., and James Kenney of Silverton, Ore.; a sister, Lucille Griffith of Los Angeles, and two grandchildren.

Funeral will be at 1 p.m. on Friday in the Albert Brown Mortuary, Oakland. Entombment will be in Mountain View Mausoleum, Oakland. His family asked that memorial contributions go to the Memorial Fund at Stanford University, 301 Encina Hall, Stanford, Calif. 94305.

FRANCES HOWARD

Private funeral for Frances B. Howard of Stinson Beach was held today in Mill Valley.

Mrs. Howard, 90, died Saturday in a local hospital after a long illness.

A native of Sonora, Tuolumne County, she had moved from San Francisco to Marin nine years ago and resided on Las Baulinas Avenue.

Mrs. Howard is survived by two daughters, Florence Chessman of Stinson Beach and Belle Stanley of Dallas, Tex.; two sisters, Eugenia Kerker of Martinez and Sister Rita Dolores of the College of Notre Dame in Indiana and one grandchild.

BLANCHE EVANS

Funeral for Blanche I. Evans, mother of San Rafael advertising firm executive Robert T. Evans, will be held at 11:30 a.m. tomorrow in St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Oakland.

Mrs. Evans died Monday in a Contra Costa County hospital after a brief illness. She was 88.

She was born in San Francisco, and in recent years made her home in Lafayette.

She also is survived by another son, Jack W. Evans of Lafayette, and six grandchildren.

Friends may call at Hull's Walnut Creek Chapel, Walnut Creek, until 10:45 a.m. tomorrow. Burial will be in Cypress Lawn Cemetery, Colma.

MRS. PETHERICK

A memorial service for Georgina Petherick, long-time Sausalito resident, will be held at 10 a.m. Friday at Christ Episcopal Church in Sausalito.

Mrs. Petherick, 95, died Sunday in a local hospital after a short illness.

A native of San Francisco, she had lived in Sausalito 70 years, residing at 40 Cooper Lane.

She was a member of the Sausalito Woman's Club and the Episcopal Church.

Mrs. Petherick leaves no survivors.

Contributions are preferred to Christ Episcopal Church.

HAROLD ZINNS

Funeral for Harold J. Zinns of 200 Bolinas Road, Fairfax, will be tomorrow at 10 a.m. at St. Boniface Church, Golden Gate Avenue in San Francisco, when a Requiem Mass will be offered.

Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery, Colma. Rosary services will be recited tonight at the memorial chapel of Carew and English, Masonic and Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco.

Zinns, died at Marin General Hospital on Monday, shortly after collapsing at his home. He was 74.

A native of San Francisco, he had lived in Marin County for six years.

For the last seven years he had been office manager for the W. E. Joost Company in San Rafael.

He is survived by his wife, Virginia, of the family home in Fairfax, by two daughters, Virginia Marie Zinns of San Francisco and Nancy Ann Zinns of Oakland, by two brothers, Lucius A. Zinns of San Francisco, and Franklin J. Zinns of Oakland, and by two sisters, Enid Zinns of Oakland and Beatrice Kast of San Francisco.

JOHN SAMMON

John F. Sammon, father of Margaret Boucher of Novato, died yesterday in a San Francisco hospital after a brief illness. He was 86.

A retired clothing salesman, Sammon had lived in San Francisco since 1942. He was a native of Ireland.

He also is survived by two brothers, Thomas Sammon of San Francisco and Morris Sammon of Boyes Hot Springs, and one granddaughter.

Mass of the Resurrection will be offered at 10 a.m. tomorrow in St. Brigid's Church, San Francisco, followed by burial in Holy Cross Cemetery, Colma. The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. today at Keaton's Chapel of Marin, Novato.

CECIL CANNON

Cecil F. (Red) Cannon, longtime San Rafael tavern owner, died yesterday in a local hospital after a lengthy illness. He was 72.

A native of Pomeroy, Wash., he moved to California in 1918, and to Marin County 40 years ago. He lived at 45 Grove Lane, San Anselmo. For the past 20 years, he operated Dave's Tavern on B Street in San Rafael. He was a member of Bartenders Union Local 126 in San Rafael.

He is survived by two daughters, Patricia Bamberg of San Jose and Nadine Beem of Crescent City, six grandchildren, and five great-grandchildren.

Mass of the Resurrection will be celebrated at 10 a.m. Friday in St. Anselm's Church, San Anselmo, followed by burial in Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael.

The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the Harry M. Williams Mortuary, San Rafael.

MRS. CARBONE

Aurelia Carbone, a resident of San Rafael for more than 30 years, died yesterday in a local hospital after a brief illness. She was 86.

Mrs. Carbone was a native of Portofino, Italy. For the past three years she had made her home with a son, Roy Carbone, at 137 Holmes Street.

She also is survived by another son, Charles Carbone of Denver, Colo., two daughters, Cleo Paddock of San Diego and Elaine Regalia of Orland, Glenn County; a sister, Giustina Costa of San Francisco, 18 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

A Mass of the Resurrection will be offered at 10 a.m. Friday in Blessed Sacrament Church, Santa Venetia, followed by burial in Mount Olivet Cemetery. The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the Chapel of the Hills, San Anselmo.

The family prefers memorial gifts to the Marin Catholic High School or Blessed Sacrament School.

FRANCIS LOUGEE

Memorial service for Francis (Frank) E. Lougee of Tiburon, an advertising and banking executive, will be at 11:30 a.m. tomorrow in the Chapel of Grace, Grace Cathedral, San Francisco.

Lougee, 49, died Monday in San Francisco after a brief illness. He resided at 21 North Terrace.

A graduate of Lafayette College in Easton, Pa., he was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon and a cofounder of a campus literary magazine. He attended the University of Pennsylvania Graduate School of Arts and Sciences for two years.

During World War II, Lougee served in the Army Medical Corps and as a lieutenant in the infantry.

He was a member of St. Stephen's Parish in Belvedere.

He started his career in Philadelphia with an advertising agency, then moved to Marin to join a San Francisco agency. In 1962, he became vice president of marketing and public relation for Wells Fargo Bank, where he helped develop the stage coach checks. He was named Advertising Man of the Year in 1967 by the San Francisco Advertising Club.

Since leaving the bank, he was a partner in the marketing consulting firm of Lougee, Thornton and Associates and president of Communications in Finance, Inc.

Lougee is survived by his wife, the former Loraine Granicher of San Francisco; three sons, Wayne, Donald and Robert, all of San Francisco, and his mother, Mrs. Louis L. Lougee of Livermore.

His family asked donations to a favorite charity.

Board Sets Hearing On Financing

The San Rafael Board of Education, concerned about the effects of current state legislation on school financing, last night set 10 a.m. Jan. 10 in the San Rafael High School auditorium for a public hearing with state officials on the matter.

At issue is state Senate Bill 90, which increases sales tax while eliminating most special education taxes, according to Supt. John F. Plank.

Plank said the bill also places a lid on income a school district may spend per pupil. Under the measure, the city's elementary school district will be limited to per-pupil expenses of $1,158 and the high school district to per-pupil expenses of $1,258 next year, or about a 6 per cent increase over expenses allowed this year, Plank said.

Board President Lawrence I. Kramer said today he viewed the measure with concern, adding that the board "would be even more concerned if we could understand it."

Kramer said that though the high school district might receive up to $300,000 more in revenue next year from the state, and the elementary district about $80,000 less than this year, the elimination of special education taxes will probably offset the net gain.

The San Rafael Board of Education also:

MEETING — Said some district officials will meet with officials from other school districts in Sacramento on Jan. 10 to discuss makeup of school boards when one board controls two districts of varying populace.

CHILDHOOD — Said it will study state guidelines on early childhood education.

NEW COURSES — Approved new courses in the high school district: archaeology, North American Indian cultures, and legal, medical and office typewriting.

FRINGE BENEFITS — Tabled a proposal for a new board policy on fringe benefits for part-time employees.

TRUCKS — Declared three trucks as excess equipment and offered them for sale.

CLOSED SESSION — Took no action in a closed session on a new principal for Coleman School. Principal Edwina Codoni has announced she will retire in June.

PERSONNEL — Took the following personnel actions: Appointed Alice Freitas and Matthew Berger as instructional aides at $2.72 per hour; Julian Clark as a bus driver at $3.40 per hour; Jack Hokanson, custodian promotion, $681 per month; John O'Shaughnessy, custodian promotion, $648 per month; Edward Tait, maintenance man, $715 per month and Ahti Tuohino, maintenance supervisor, $14,652 annually.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 7:30 p.m. Jan. 9.

Boy Is Arrested After Overdose

A 16-year-old San Rafael boy was arrested last night after he overdosed on narcotics he allegedly stole during the Christmas weekend from a Larkspur pharmacy.

The burglary of the narcotics and $326 from the Marin Center Pharmacy, 1321 South Eliseo Drive, was discovered when the pharmacy opened yesterday morning.

Both the narcotics and cash were recovered by sheriff's deputies when they arrested the boy at his home, Larkspur police reported. They said the boy apparently was alone when he broke into the pharmacy.

The boy's name was withheld on a standing order by Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson.

Parking Lot Switch For Ferry Approved

The Golden Gate Bridge District, which sank more than $40,000 into its first Sausalito parking lot for ferry commuters, will move its lot one block south on Monday.

The Sausalito City Council objected earlier this month that the district was shifting the lot without first seeking city approval, but the staffs of the city and district apparently worked out their differences.

The city's primary objection was to the traffic problem posed if commuters used the Easterby Street access to the new lot. District officials, however, agreed to direct traffic via Harbor Drive — the same route used for the existing lot.

The new lot, leased from the Army Corps of Engineers, will have room for 155 cars, up 30 from the capacity of the existing lot. The district will pay the Army $250 a month for the lot, pending negotiations on a final rental figure, with a maximum of $833 a month.

The district has budgeted $12,000 to upgrade the new lot.

The present lot has been leased for the past 29 months from Donlon J. Arques, who was paid $15,433 in rent and $4,727 for property taxes. In addition, he will keep $20,000 in improvements, which included clearing the site and paving and fencing it.

The district decided to move its lot when Arques hiked the rent in September from $4,400 a year plus taxes (about $2,000 a year) to $14,400 a year, including taxes.

The Army lease can be canceled on 30 days notice.

New Policy On Sampling Of Blood

Marin Hospital District directors last night agreed to admit county laboratory technicians to Marin General Hospital to take blood alcohol samples from patients injured in traffic accidents if law enforcement agencies request the tests.

Ray K. Bollinger, hospital administrator, said the approval was subject to its attorney's opinion, to its insurance carrier's approval, and to an indemnification and hold-harmless agreement with the county.

According to Dr. Donovan O. Cooke, head of the county health care services, the blood alcohol samples were previously drawn by Marin Medical Laboratory staff at the hospital. Under the new agreement technicians under contract to the county will be on call to police, highway patrol and sheriff's officers.

Actual testing of the blood alcohol samples will be done by the county's new crime lab, said Dr. Cooke.

The Marin Hospital District board also:

GIFTS — Heard that a donation of $23,393.16 by the Schultz Foundation had primarily been used to purchase sophisticated equipment for the coronary care unit, helping complete the concept of combining acute and intermediate care.

LEASE — Signed a contract with the county for lease of the ground floor and Unit B of the Community Mental Health Center; the cost of $80,064 a year covers maintenance, housekeeping, light, gas, heat and janitorial services.

REMODELLING — Approved remodelling the waiting and storage addition to the radiology department to cost about $12,000, and enlarging the third floor nursing station for around $4,000.

STAFF — Reappointed Dr. William L. Clark of Mill Valley as hospital chief of staff, and Dr. Martin Albion of Greenbrae as assistant chief of staff, both for a two year period.

ELECTION — Reelected George H. Folsom of Sausalito as president; Thomas K. Proctor of Belvedere, vice president, and Marion C. Ibach, secretary for the coming year.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to its next meeting on Jan. 30 at 7 p.m. at the hospital.

Thieves Smash Window, Take Camera, Lenses

Fast-workirg burglars smashed a Novito store window early yesterday, and escaped with $4,415 worth of cameras and lenses, Novato police reported today.

Officers said they responded at 2 a.m. in less than two minutes to a burglar alarm at the New Novato Camera Store, 1301 Grant Avenue, but the thieves had already fled after cleaning out showcases. A plate glass window was smashed with a two-by-four plank to gain entry.

'Sounding Board' Topic Is Set

Whether the theory of divine creation should be kept out of California science textbooks will be discusssd tomorrow at 9 a.m. on the KTIM "Marin Sounding Board" program.

Speaking will be Dr. Gordon R. Chan, biologist at College of Marin; Very Rev. C. Julian Bartlett, dean of Grace Cathedral; Alice M. Vipiano, San Rafael resident and mother of two school-age children, and Rev. James Boswell Pastor of Christian Disciple Church of Carmichael.

Questions may be phoned in during tomorrow's brpadcast. The program, moderated by Kitty Oppenheimer, will be rebroadcast by taperecording, Sunday at 10 a.m.

Resignation Of Health Director Brings Protests By Scientists

WASHINGTON (UPI) — About 1,000 government scientists have sent a letter to President Nixon in protest of "the unprecedented, forced resignation" of Dr. Robert Q. Marston as director of the National Institutes of Health (NIH), a spokesman said Wednesday.

"As physicians and scientists at NIH we deeply regret the unprecedented forced resignation on Dec. 8, 1972, of the director of NIH," said the letter from the NIH Inter-assembly Council of the Assemblies of Scientists. "This is the first time in the history of the NIH that its director has been made to resign shortly after a presidential election."

Associates said Marston wanted to remain on the job as chief of the largest biomedical research center in the world.

Marston, like several thousand other top government officials, submitted a requested pro forma resignation to the White House after the Nov. 7 election to give Nixon an opportunity to reorganize the bureaucracy during his second term. Marston was told earlier this month that his resignation would be accepted.

NIH has a $2.1 billion annual budget for research grants and fellowships and health manpower education.

"We know the President is going to call the shots and it is not to our benefit to antagonize him and it wouldn't be to the benefit of health either," Dr. Robert Adelstein, a spokesman, said in a telephone interview. "This is a respectful thing to bring our concern to his attention more than anything else."

Adelstein, a research section chief with the National Heart and Lung Institute, said about 1,000 scientists from most of the 10 NIH institutes are represented by the Inter-Assembly Council.

"It is not fair to say all the scientists here are up in arms but I think a lot of them are upset by what was done," Adelstein said.

The NIH medical researchers, like some private medical groups, are worried that Marston's successor will be primarily a manager without either the interests of basic research or the support of national health organizations.

"We express our strong hope that his successor will be chosen not only for his skills as an administrator but for his stature in the fields of basic and clinical research," the letter said.

Marston, whose successor has not been named, has agreed to remain at NIH "in one capacity or another" at least until next summer.

Other top health officials in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) who have resigned since Nixon's victory include Dr. Merlin K. DuVal, assistant secretary for health; Dr. Vernon E. Wilson, administrator of the Health Services and Mental Health Administration, and Surgeon General Jesse L. Steinfeld.

School Bus Keys Reported Stolen

A prowler took a set of school bus ignition and door keys from a parked Novato School District bus sometime between Friday and yesterday, Novato police reported today.

The keys had been left in the bus's glove compartment, at the district parking lot on Olive Avenue.

Sacramento Fire Could Be Arson

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —Investigators include arson as one of the possible causes of a fire which destroyed the headquarters of the California National Guard.

The blaze also caused "extensive" damage to the $10 million headquarters building of the Department of Motor Vehicles, which housed the guard and the state Military Department.

Maj. Gen. Glenn C. Ames, guard commander, said Tuesday that the National Guard for several years "has lived continuously in an atmosphere of threat to its armories and other installations."

GEOFFREY C. JONES
"His gallantry in action was in keeping with the highest traditions of the military service."

MEDAL WINNER

Bravery Of Marin Soldier Described

A Terra Linda High School graduate — presently visiting his and his wife's families in Marin — has returned to Marin with a hatful of medals won in Vietnam, including the Silver Star, the nation's second highest award for valor.

The medals, recently received by Army Sp/5 Geoffrey C. Jones, were in recognition of his combat role as a helicopter crew chief during his tour of duty in Vietnam from April 1970 to February 1971.

The citation accompanying the Silver Star describes his "gallantry . . . in conflict with an armed hostile force" Jan. 16 and 17 in 1971.

"Jones distinguished himself by exceptionally valorous actions in sustained air and ground combat during a two-day tactical operation in an area of much enemy activity.

"As his aircraft came to high hover over the pickup site, he was struck in the arms and on his protective chest plate by enemy machine gun bullets. Despite his painful wounds, he nevertheless continued to fire on the enemy positions with his machine gun right up to the moment his ship crashed.

"Wounded and injured in the crash, he courageously fought his way through enemy groundfire toward the Allied position. Although again wounded by enemy machine gun fire, he continued to fight his way forward and finally reached the friendly position.

"Although wounded twice, he helped defend the Allied position throughout the afternoon and night and into the early morning hours of the next day. Under constant threat of being overrun by the numerically superior enemy forces he fought valiantly and endured the pain from his wounds until relief arrived."

Jones also received the Air Medal "for meritorious achievement . . . in aerial support of combat ground forces" during "more than 25 aerial missions over hostile territory."

He was awarded the Army Commendation Medal for meritorious service during his tour of duty in Vietnam and the Purple Heart for the wounds he suffered there.

Fully recovered, Jones is presently stationed at Fort Carson, Colo.

He and his wife, the former Christine Stallone, have been visiting their parents in San Rafael and Terra Linda, Mr. and Mrs. James E. Jones of 380 Channing Way and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Stallone of 432 Montecillo Road. They return to Colorado tomorrow, with their 8-month-old son, Chad.

Jones who has served in the Army since graduating from Terra Linda High five years ago, expects his present tour of duty to end in October of 1974, at which time he and his wife plan to return to settle once more in Marin.

House Of Cans Idea Patented

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Maybe you've seen that television commercial where a group of young men are trying to build a house but are too busy drinking beer to care about the walls collapsing.

Alvin Miller, a University of Arizona professor of architecture, has a better idea—using the beer cans themselves to build walls and even low-cost homes.

Miller said he has designed a housing shelter for four persons using beer cans which could cost as little as $3,500. He said his design, soon to be patented, calls for stacking the cans into a mold which is then covered with a mixture of cement and fiberglass.

New Naval Chief

TOKYO (UPI) —Rear Adm. William Haley Rogers, will succeed Rear Adm. Julian T. Burke Jr., as commander of the U.S. naval forces in Japan on Jan. 9, a Navy spokesman announced Tuesday.

Environmentalist Group Takes Behr's Staff Head

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — The top staff man for Marin's state senator has resigned to take a newly created position as executive director of the Planning and Conservation League, a statewide federation of organizations promoting environmental legislation.

William H. Press will take his new post next week. His replacement as area coordinator for Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, has not been announced.

Press, 32, managed Behr's 1970 election campaign and has since headed his staff.

He is a graduate of the University of Niagara, N.Y., and has a master's degree in theology from the University of Fibourg, Switzerland.

Press and his wife, Carol, and son, Mark, 2, live in Sacramento.

Communities of whale lice, some half an inch long, cling to the strange calluslike growths that bulge from the heads of right whales, the National Geographic Society says.

Drill Instructor Burns Recruit

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — A drill instructor at the Marine Corps "boot camp" here was relieved of his duties after he allegedly poured scalding water on the back of a recruit, seri ing him to the hospital.

A spokesman at the Mari Corps Recruit Depot said P Sebastian Herrera Jr., 20, S Diego, was in satisfactory co dition at the depot dispensary

The instructor was not iden fied and details of the incide were not released.

CAREER EDUCATION

Job Skill For All Is The Goal

them class lectures on anything relating to law enforcement," explained Officer Horn, pointing to a blackboard on which Police Chief David L. McIntosh had explained the workings of the U.S. Supreme Court, complete with notations on the most liberal and most conservative judges.

"They learn desk procedures, answer phones, take complaints, dispatch officers, run the teletype," said Horn, "and ride along with officers in patrol cars."

"Basically they are required to know the codes and what to do in an emergency situation . . . and in this area we really emphasize the fact that everything they do is confidential."

The students love the program, and many go on to the College of Marin's police science courses - and continue in its police cadet program. Police like the program, too, because it changes students' attitudes about police, and they find the sentiments rub off on other students.

In fact, it is in this very area of cooperation and real assistance between the world of work and the world of school that the best hope for the future is thought to lie. Every educator involved is delighted and overwhelmed at the support emerging from industry.

Labor leaders, corporations, banks, doctors and dentists and just about anyone who is involved in employment, enters the picture. Many come together through the Marin County Industry Education Council. Others work through the individual high school districts and their career guidance programs.

"If the community doesn't get involved we won't have any career education," said Marcia Greil, county schools career counselor.

"The community is getting involved and bringing know-how and common sense to the education field which is often accused of being out of touch.

"For instance, before the Regional Occupation Program sets up a new course, a job market survey is conducted. All the related businesses in the Bay Area are canvassed. Questions include how many people they employ, their rate of turnover, and whether they would employ specially trained personnel - that's how some of the new classes for 1973 came about . . . the surveys indicated loads of jobs available in the area for trained boat and motorcycle repairmen, and for auto air conditioning mechanics.

This cooperation isn't limited to private concerns. The state runs a program with Tamalpais High School District students working on Angel Island as trainee rangers. WEEP students at College of Marin work at San Quentin prison. The county helps out with diverse skills - some students do their exploratory work program observing in the public defender's office, for example.

There are career guidance centers at all three of the Tamalpais High School District's schools, complete offices with up-to-date information and counselling on jobs that students can visit whenever they want. In fact, the district's career education program will get national attention in February in a presentation at the American Personnel and Guidance Association convention.

In his proposal to the national group, Robert Maher, work experience teacher at Drake High School, wrote: "Many of our college graduates are educated but are no better prepared to face the realities of life than they were when they left high school . . ."

Listing the ways in which Marin is facing the problem, Maher explained: "It was clear to those of us in Marin County that educators, businessmen and government had a responsibility to provide the type of career education which would permit our citizens to live more effectively within our society.

"It was our job, working together, to find the best way to creating an effective and meaningful system - not by superimposing new and costly structures on top of existing ones - but rather by integerating this particular part of the educational process into our present system."

Educators are trying to make sure that duplication and overlap don't occur. In fact, the Regional Occupation Program can't offer courses that the high schools or College of Marin already provides.

However, some observers have the impression that integrating career education into the present system may tend to multiply the costly duplication of services and facilities which exists ad infinitum in Marin County. Thus, each high school and the College of Marin possesses expensively equipped vocational training facilities, from metal shop to typewriters to sewing machines. It is to be hoped they are all used to capacity.

To the uninvolved, it might make better sense for one high school to concentrate on data processing, for instance, while another specialized in automotive engineering and yet another in the health care field.

Yet, given the rivalry between high school districts that undoubtedly exists, there is no way this relinquishment of programs is likely to happen in the foreseeable future. This is understandable since the school districts are tied to attendance boundaries and local taxes.

Bette Wallace, a Tamalpais High School District trustee and member of the Industry Education Council, paid a visit this summer to the Skyline Center in Dallas, Texas, a $21 million showplace that serves as a career education center for the entire city.

She concluded that Marin County doesn't need, and can't afford, that kind of facility yet. "But what I would really like to see is a very specialized career development center to help develop programs and bring resource people from the community in," she said. "This planning center would work right from the ninth grade to adult education."

The center she envisages would cater to 300-400 students, and expand the on-site training that presently is represented in embryo form by would-be neuro-surgeons working in the delivery room at Marin General Hospital.

CONSTRUCTION — Inspecting townhouses under construction in Corte Madera are Bob Foulton, Mike Herman, Ted Authauger and Chet Gibson, Redwood High School seniors enrolled in the construction industry exploratory work experience program — they aren't allowed to perform any actual work, since educators and employers alike agree that "it isn't right for a kid to do productive work for no pay" but they've observed all facets of the industry, guided in their learning by union officials.

Thousands Of Workers Evacuated From Hanoi

SAIGON (UPI) —Diplomats who know Hanoi said today that U.S. bombing brought new austerity to the North Vietnam capital and the evacuation of all citizens considered nonessential to the war effort.

They said many diplomatic missions in Hanoi plan to reduce their personnel if American bombing continues beyond Jan. 1.

School children and the elderly were evacuated from Hanoi when President Nixon renewed the bombing campaign last April 6, the diplomats said.

Thousands more non-essential workers left last week when Nixon ordered B52 bombers to strike targets in and around the city, leaving only the most needed workers and servicemen in a city which once boasted a population exceeding one million.

But the diplomats denied reports by some American sources in Saigon that Hanoi authorities had ordered the complete evacuation of the city.

"I don't think they would ever do that," one diplomat said.

"In the first place, they need many people to support the war effort in factories and so on," he said. "In the second place, it would cause tremendous morale problems among the population to learn that the capital had been totally evacuated."

The diplomats who discussed the situation in Hanoi are members of governments with missions in Hanoi. In at least one case, they were in direct contact with the North Vietnamese capital as recently as Christmas Day.

The diplomats said that Christmas in Hanoi had little of the gaiety of past years. Although Nixon at the last moment stopped the bombing for 36 hours, he did not make news of the halt public.

What do doctors recommend for patients in pain?

Doctors all over the country dispense over 50,000,000 of these tablets to their patients each year.

There are many medications a physician or dentist can prescribe for pain. Some are narcotic, many are available only on prescription. But there is one pain reliever, available without prescription, doctors dispense again and again . . . Anacin.

Each year, doctors give up to 50,000,000 Anacin tablets to their patients in pain. If doctors think enough about Anacin to dispense all these tablets, what better recommendation can you ask when you are in pain?

You see, Anacin contains more of the pain reliever doctors recommend most than any other leading tablet.

Headache and dental pain is relieved incredibly fast; minor pains of arthritis are dependably eased for hours; even the aches and pains of colds and flu respond to Anacin. So the tension and depression that can be caused by such pain will be relieved too. And millions take Anacin without stomach upset.

When you're in pain, why don't you follow the practice of so many doctors and take the tablet a doctor might give you in his own office. Take Anacin®.

LOOTERS OUT — A man carries articles from a damaged store (back right) in the Mercado Central section of Managua as other people look for anything of value in the ruined central market section. Meanwhile, bodies are being burned to halt spread of disease in the earthquake-ravished city.

(UPI Telephoto)

Bodies Are Burned On Site To Check Disease In Managua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) —Demolition crews using dynamite and bulldozers leveled a major section of this city, entombing unnumbered earthquake victims while Red Cross squads searched out and burned on site the scattered bodies of the other unknown dead today.

The government reversed policy and began feeding the living in what was left of the other parts of downtown Managua in an effort to stem widespread looting. Troops assigned to guard the city have abandoned their effort to control it.

A government spokesman said at least 3,000 persons perished in the earthquake last Saturday, but said a final official death toll was impossible because of the number of bodies burned in the ruins of Managua.

Some experts said the final toll might reach 6,000.

An eight-by-forty block district was declared a "contaminated area" Tuesday. Officials prepared to follow the demolition job by spreading lime thoughout the area to lessen the danger of disease from decomposing bodies.

The army began setting up 19 distribution stations today to distribute five-pound packages of rice, beans, sugar, powdered milk and clean water for 107,000 persons who refuse to abandon their homes after Saturday's disaster. The city's pre-quake population was 400,000.

"We must feed those who are still here," military strongman Gen. Anastasio Somoza said Tuesday night in relaxing earlier government reluctance to hand out food and to hasten evacuation of the city.

Nearly three-quarters of Managua's population had fled to nearby cities of Masaya, Leon, Granada and others by late Tuesday night.

Fires, burning sporadically since last Saturday, consumed three blocks of rubble Tuesday night, sending a yellow glow into the sky. The flames accomplished a measure of the demolition job that lies ahead and firemen did not attempt to put them out.

"We have eight 'rescue squads' combing the city," said a spokesman for the Nicaraguan Red Cross. "There is no way to bury the bodies in their condition. They are simply set on fire with gasoline or kerosene."

Relief help poured in from around the world in the form of food, clothing, medical supplies and money. Red Cross officials said the aid would stem looting.

"The people are simply hungry," said Ralph Mitchell of the American Red Cross in Atlanta. "They're stealing the food because they are hungry and General Somoza hopes to curb this with the food packages."

Doctors at field hospitals supplied by the United States and Cuba and a complete children's hospital from Chile continued massive inoculations to prevent possible outbreaks of disease from the bodies.

Passage Of Investment Law Assured

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — President Luis Echeverria's long-awaited foreign investment law calling for Mexican majority ownership was in Congress today and almost sure to pass both houses quickly.

The law calls for 51 per cent Mexican ownership as a general rule. Exceptions will be made only by a special commission composed of seven cabinet members.

A top government spokesman today told UPI: "This is a moderate law. It isn't against foreign investments. It merely defines the rules of the game."

A prominent American businessman based in Mexico said: "The campaign about foreign investments hasn't hurt us here yet. But it might easily scare off future investors."

The proposal was formally introduced by Echeverria Tuesday. It had been talked about since last fall, and was expected to meet little resistence in Congress. Echeverria's revolutionary institutional party controls every Senate seat and a heavy majority in the Chamber of Deputies.

In a detailed introduction, Echeverria said "Every nation has a right to freely use its own natural resources, to determine the shape of its own economic structure, and to subject the foreigners who realize economic activities in its territories to its own laws."

He said the new law will welcome foreign money that contributes to Mexican development.

"It does not imply an isolationist attitude," he said.

The law itself, when passed, will establish a foreign investments commission made up of seven cabinet members.

SST Witnesses Send Their Regrets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Administration witnesses scheduled to testify on possible resumption of the supersonic transport (SST) project backed out at the last minute, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said today.

Proxmire, who helped in killing the $4 billion SST program in the last Congress, announced the cancellations as a congressional subcommittee began hearings to probe reports the Nixon administration might seek to revive it.

"What is the administration trying to hide?" Proxmire asked. "If nothing is planned, why don't they come forward and say so?"

Proxmire said Secor D. Browne, chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board, reported he had "a long-standing family commitment" and would not be able to appear at today's hearings before the Joint Economic's Priorities and Economy in Government subcommittee.

Proxmire said Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe and federal Administrator John H. Shaffer agreed to send representatives, then sent word their agencies were "in transition" and could not send anyone. Both men are leaving their posts.

Proxmire said he was disappointed that two aircraft manufacturers and two airlines that could figure in any possible revival of the SST program had refused to testify at the hearings —identifying them as the Boeing Co., McDonnell Douglas Corp., United Air Lines and Pan American World Airways.

Boeing had the original contract to build the heavily government funded SST. But when Congress killed the program, Boeing disbanded its SST work force and the government sold its mockup of the 1,880 mile-an-hour passenger jetliner to a businessman who plans to use it as part of a private museum.

There were rumors during the presidential campaign that the administration would try to revive the program —to get the United States into competition with a comparable British-French aircraft now being test-flown and scheduled for commercial service in 1975.

"We have no program to revive the SST, and we have submitted nothing on the SST to the Office of Management and Budget," Volpe said, adding it would "requre a Hurculean effort" to take any action this year.

Car Theft Case To Superior Court

Arnold Dean Ash, 19, of Rohnert Park, yesterday was bound over to Marin Superior Court to answer a charge of attempted car theft in Novato on Nov. 21.

After a preliminary hearing, Municipal Judge Robert A. Smallman ordered Ash to appear in superior court Jan. 10.

The Auto Impact

SAN JUAN (UPI) —Little more than 20 years ago Puerto Rico had 61,000 registered motor vehicles. By the end of fiscal year 1971 motor vehicle registration had increased more than 10 times—up to 687,000 cars and trucks, according to the Puerto Rico planning board.

OLIVER L. HARLE
Cites low income housing need

Planning Candidate Airs Views

(One of several stories on the qualifications and background of candidates for a vacant seat on the San Anselmo Planning Commission.)

Oliver L. Harle, president of the Wade Thomas School Parents Club, has applied for appointment to the San Anselmo Planning Commission seat vacated by the resignation of Allen J. Creighton.

The council plans to fill the seat Jan. 9. Harle, housewife Mary Sue Hulpke and financial consultant Thomas R. Biesheuvel are seeking appointment to the post.

Harle, who is seeking appointment because of his interest "in housing and planning problems," said the major issue facing the city today is the dilemma of "reconciling the needs of lower income people with protection of the property interests.

"We have to deal with the conflict between the desires of people who hold or occupy single family residential property with the needs of people not able to afford that type of housing," he said.

Harle, a member of the city's general plan committee on housing, said nonconforming uses, or second lots on parcels zoned single family, "should be allowed on a use permit basis without upsetting existing zoning.

Second units that provide decent and safe housing and qualify under health and safety criteria, respect the privacy of neighboring property, and don't add to parking, traffic or overall density problems should be allowed, he said. "I want to maintain the living quality of the town the way it is, recognizing there will be some adjustment in land use and density."

Harle said "room must be made" for moderate and low income residents, but that he is not promoting "widespread development" in the city. "There's just no room left to build here," he said.

He said he supported the city's building and zoning moratorium, saying the city needs about "six months to look into our land use and open space situation." He opposes, however, the county general plan's proposal to widen city thoroughfares.

"I don't like planning by circumstance," he said. "Widening thoroughfares would be inviting future needs. The traffic situation at present just doesn't justify it."

He applauded the Ross Valley Sanitary District's plan to stagger the undergrounding of a sewer pipe through downtown San Anselmo and added "the sewer situation and the plumbing in San Anselmo is atrocious."

Harle, 51, is a graduate of the University of Texas, where he received a bachelor's degree in chemistry, and of the University of California at Berkeley, where he received a doctorate in chemistry.

He is a research chemist for Chevron Co. in Richmond.

He lives with his wife, Nancy, at 21 Echo Court. The couple has a son and a daughter.

A Bombing Protest

DACCA, Bangladesh (UPI) — Students protesting the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam set fire to the United States Information Service (USIS) office and library in Rajshahi, a Dacca newspaper said today.

New Narcotic Classifications

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has signed legislation establishing five classifications for narcotics and restricted dangerous drugs.

The measure by Assemblyman William Campbell, R-Hacienda Heights, also regulates the five restricted substances on sale and use. Reagan's office said yesterday the bill brings California statutes into conformity with the federal Uniform Control Substances Act of 1970.

Existing offenses and penalties relating to narcotics and dangerous drugs are not affected.

Campbell's bill is AB 192.

Man Pleads Guilty To Burglary Charges

Steven John Pappas, 21, of San Francisco, has been ordered to serve 60 days in Marin County Jail and placed on five years probation after pleading guilty to two counts of burglary.

A third burglary count was dismissed on motion of the district attorney after Pappas changed his earlier plea of innocent.

Pappas and two other men were arrested Aug. 23 by San Anselmo police, who said the trio teamed up to trick shopkeepers into leaving cash registers unattended so one of them could steal the money.

John R. Arbuckle, 22, of no known address, failed to keep an Oct. 17 trial date on the charges and is the target of a bench warrant. Charges were dismissed against the third defendant, Andrew Joseph Carrino, 28, of San Rafael.

Superior Court Judge Samuel W. Gardiner ordered Pappas's sentence on the burglary counts to run concurrently with jail time he is serving for an armed robbery in Larkspur committed in April.

Uniform Vote Schedule Asked

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Board of Supervisors has asked Congress to establish a voting schedule that would force all polling places in America to close at the same moment.

The action was aimed at preventing the wave of election results that start coming in hours before the voting has ended on the West Coast. The officials said the early returns tend to discourage westerners from making the effort to vote.

The supervisors also asked Congress to enact legislation that would put a halt to early broadcast predictions on the outcomes of elections.

BAUBLES OF cherry tomatoes and Idaho potatoes turn crown roast of pork into a special feast.

ROAST PORK

Crowning Touch For Gala Dinner

When friends are invited to share a special meal, you want the best of everything. Fragrant greens, glowing candles, shining silver and china are the mood setters. But, above all, the food should be your very best, elegant and impressive, a feast for the eye as well as the palate.

Special meals don't have to involve a lot of elaborate preparation. Often the simplest foods, well-prepared and presented are your best solution. And, there's nothing more elegant than a perfectly cooked cut of meat garnished with colorful, tender vegetables.

A savory sausage-stuffed crown roast of pork is a splendid main dish on its own any time. But, when decorated with "baubles" of brilliant red cherry tomatoes and pan-roasted potatoes, the result is a festive spectacular of flavor and appeal.

When your best china and crystal are in order, only the finest ingredients will do. This means fresh, choice meat, firm, red cherry tomatoes and Idaho potatoes.

To prepare the potato baubles, choose medium-sized potatoes. Parboil them quickly and scoop out the "baubles" with a melon baller. Popped into the roasting pan to brown, these savory potatoes are a tasty accompaniment for the garlic sauteed cherry tomatoes.

When you're ready to serve, place a potato bauble on each "point" of the crown roast. Spoon the remaining potato and tomato "baubles" around the roast.

CHRISTMAS BAUBLE CROWN ROAST

Pork Roast:
- 1 crown roast of pork (about 5 pounds)
- 2½ pounds ground pork trimmings & sausage meat
- ½ cup bread crumbs
- ¼ cup chopped onions
- 2 tablespoons red wine
- ¼ teaspoon savory
- ¼ teaspoon paprika
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper

Potato Baubles:
- 8 Idaho potatoes, peeled

Tomato Baubles:
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 1 box cherry tomatoes
- ¼ cup minced parsley
- 3 green onions, chopped
- 1 clove garlic, pressed

Have your butcher grind the trimmings from your roast and add enough bulk sausage to make two and a half pounds. Combine the sausage with the other ingredients and fill the center of the roast. Protect the bone ends with foil and roast in a 350 degree F. oven, allowing 30 to 45 minutes per pound.

Parboil the potatoes for 15 minutes. Drain and cut into balls with a melon baller. Place balls in roasting pan with meat during the last 15 minutes of cooking, rolling them in the meat's drippings occasionally.

Melt the butter in a frying pan, add the tomatoes, parsley, onion and garlic and saute over low heat for about three minutes or until tomatoes are warmed through.

To serve the roast, remove the foil from the bones and top each bone with a potato. Surround the roast with tomatoes and remaining potatoes.

Makes eight servings.

Papayas Ideal For Holidays

In days gone by, fresh fruit was so rare in winter months that it was a treat reserved for the Christmas stocking of only the best-behaved children.

Thanks to jet-age transportation, we enjoy the same sunny-flavored papayas eaten in Hawaii. Since they are not a tree-ripened fruit, papayas can be shipped to the mainland while still green. They ripen to a bright golden-orange color when left on the counter, then hold beautifully in the refrigerator for several days.

The papaya is one of the island's most versatile fruits. Its delicious flavor and smooth texture make a delightful change of pace from typical winter fruits. Whether served as a tempting addition to meats, salads and desserts or on their own with a squeeze of lime, Hawaiian papayas add color and zest to any meal.

The papaya's seed cavity is perfect for filling with many different foods. For instance, use a whole papaya (after scooping out the seeds) as a mold for tangy tomato aspic. Chilled and quartered and topped with a crab dressing, aspic-filled papayas become a most festive appetizer for a holiday dinner party. This dish makes a little crab go a long way. And, since it's very low in calories, it's ideal for the main course of a luncheon any time.

Shrimp cocktail gets a tropical treatment when papaya halves become containers for the heady dipping sauce. After the shrimp is gone, the papaya flesh is deliciously accented by the remaining sauce. A combination that's long been a favorite in the islands, it's surprisingly good. When simple shrimp cocktail is on your menu, "stretch" the more expensive shrimp by mixing equal quantities of papaya and shrimp or create papaya and shrimp kabobs to serve as tempting dippers for the sauce.

Papayas are perfect for unharried hostessing. Because they don't darken when sliced like other soft fruits, you can prepare these tempting appetizers well in advance of your gala dinner.

PAPAYA ASPIC WITH CRAB DRESSING

3 Hawaiian papayas, not too ripe

Tomato Aspic
- 1 large can tomatoes (1 pound, 13 ounces - or approx. 3½ cups)
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon paprika
- 1½ teaspoons sugar
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 green onion, chopped
- 1 large rib celery, chopped
- 1 bay leaf
- ¼ teaspoon curry powder
- 2 tablespoons gelatin
- ½ cup water

Crab Dressing
- 1 cup mayonnaise
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice
- ¼ teaspoon dill weed
- ¼ teaspoon onion salt
- ¼ cup ketchup
- 1 can (8 ounces) crab meat

Combine the aspic ingredients, except gelatin and water, in a saucepan and simmer for 30 minutes. Strain. Soak the gelatin in cold water. Dissolve it in the strained hot liquid. Add enough water to make four cups liquid. Chill the aspic, stirring now and then until syrupy.

Cut a slice from the bottom end of each papaya and reserve. Using a spoon or a chopstick, loosen and remove all seeds from inside. Support papayas in glasses or mugs and fill with syrupy aspic. Replace bottoms and refrigerate overnight. To serve, cut each papaya into fourths lengthwise and serve with Crab Dressing. To make the Crab Dressing, combine the mayonnaise and seasonings. Then fold in the crab. Chill.

Makes 12 servings.

PAPAYA SHRIMP COCKTAIL
- 2 Hawaiian papayas
- 1 pound jumbo prawns
- 1 quart water
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 2 peppercorns
- 1 small onion, sliced

Cocktail Sauce
- ¾ cup ketchup
- ¼ cup chili sauce
- 1 tablespoon wine vinegar
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 4 drops Tabasco
- 1 tablespoon horseradish
- 1 tablespoon minced green onion
- ¼ cup finely chopped celery
- 1 teaspoon Worchestershire sauce
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon minced parsley

Shell and devein prawns leaving the last section of shell and tail intact. In a large saucepan bring the water to a boil, add the other ingredients except the prawns and boil.

Add the prawns and simmer very gently, uncovered, until pink and tender — two to five minutes. Drain and refrigerate.

Combine all of the cocktail sauce ingredients and mix together well. Chill. When ready to serve, halve and seed papayas and fill each hollow with cocktail sauce. Arrange the cooked prawns around them. The papaya meat can be eaten with the remaining cocktail sauce when you have finished the prawns.

Makes four servings.

Tasty, But Simple Party Treats

Looking for an hors d'oeuvres to serve for a New Year's Eve party? These, which are uncomplicated, are suggested by Diane MacMillan, who hosts KTIM's "Kitchen Time in Marin."

SHRIMP STUFFED OLIVES

Drain one can of small shrimps. Marinate them in a well-seasoned French dressing for several hours. Drain well. Place a shrimp in the cavity of each large pitted ripe olive. Chill. Serve on toothpicks.

CHEESE AND BEER SPREAD

Grate one pound sharp cheddar cheese. Blend in one-eighth pound softened butter, a dash of Tabasco and one-quarter cup of beer (room temperature) or just enough beer to reach the desired spreading consistency. This spread is also good with a variation of port, rum or cognac used in place of the beer. Spread on crackers or toast rounds.

ROQUEFORT AND BEER SPREAD

Mash one pound Roquefort or Blue Cheese with one-quarter pound of softened butter and blend in one-quarter cup (room temperature) beer. Spread on crackers.

PUFFED PARMESAN ROUNDS

Cut and toast 16 rounds of bread, on top of each place a thin slice of cucumber, and on top of that place a paper thin slice of onion. Combine two-thirds cup of mayonnaise with one-third cup of parmesan cheese. Divide over the top of the onion slices — place under the broiler approximately three inches from the heating unit and broil just until the cheese puffs and browns. Watch carefully. Serve immediately.

BACON WRAPPED TIDBITS

Almost anything can be wrapped in bacon and turn out successfully for an hors d'oeuvre. First lightly broil one side of the slices of bacon. Drain on paper towels. Wrap around: waterchestnuts; marinated mushrooms; marinated chicken livers; pimiento stuffed olives; cocktail onions; canned oysters; smoked clams, or pineapple chunks. The choice is yours. Wrap the partially broiled bacon (cut into appropriate size pieces) around your choice tidbit, secure with a toothpick. Place on a shallow pan and broil just until the bacon is nicely browned and crisp. Serve hot.

Special For Twelfth Day Of Christmas

On the Twelfth Day of Christmas, Jan. 6, many foods are traditionally served. Tipsy parson or trifle, as it is sometimes known, is a delicious finale for this festive season.

Prepare one quart of boiled custard sauce either from a packaged mix or your own favorite recipe. Cool. Cut a 10-inch angel food cake into three crosswise slices.

Place the bottom layer in an attractive glass bowl or large compote. Sprinkle slivered almonds generously over the layer and douse well with sherry wine (about one-third cup).

Spoon one-third of the custard sauce over this and repeat layers of cake, almonds, sherry and custard. Pour any extra custard into the center of the bake. Cover with one cup cream, whipped stiffly and sweetened lightly. Chill all thoroughly for several hours before serving.

New Battleground—Orange Juice

By DAVID HOLMSTROM
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

SAN FRANCISCO — Unless you squeezed it yourself, your glass of orange juice at breakfast — no matter how much it tastes and looks like orange juice — may not be pure orange juice. In fact, it may contain very little orange juice at all.

A "great beverage fight," a national tug of war over the amount of orange juice in "orange juice drinks" has been under way since the early 1960s. The chief adversaries are the orange juice trade associations from Florida and California.

Caught in the middle is the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, the agency charged with creating and maintaining food standards.

At stake is the shape and direction of a $1 billion industry, $800 million of which is in frozen fuit juices alone. Also at stake is the consumer's diet — and his or her gullibility.

ORANGE JUICE standards are also a classic example of standards designed to protect consumers but which many find confusing.

Currently there are no standards for "diluted" orange beverages. But there are proposed standards for "orange juice drink blend, orange juice drink containing a certain percentage of orange juice, orange drink with a percentage of orange juice, or orange flavored drink with a percentage of orange juice."

When a consumer's hand reaches out in the supermarket for a can of frozen orange juice, or a bottle of orange colored liquid that looks like orange juice, or a can with a label that claim "40 per cent more orange juice than any other leading canned orange drink", the consumer should know exactly what he is getting for his money, consumer advocates say.

Currently the consumer is getting a bewildering array of so-called orange juice products, a few claiming to be "100 per cent orange juice." Although there are standards for single strength orange juice (pure orange juice) they are complex and involve numerous qualifications and definitions which carry the product further and further away from the orange that drips from a squeezed orange.

A spokesman for the FDA in Washington said it could be "as long as two years" before the FDA decides what the diluted standards will be. The original proposals were issued in 1968.

A spokesman for the National Juice Products Association (NJPA) in Tampa, Fla., said the main issue was regional competition.

"The characteristic of a Florida orange is such that you can simply pasteurize it and put it in a bottle," he said. "But California oranges contain more acid."

A California company created an "orange juice blend" of California and Florida oranges with some sugar, water, fruit solids and other ingredients, he said.

"They even declared on the label that it contained 70 per cent orange juice," he went on. "It became quite popular. Florida became irritated because it couldn't compete. When it came time to standardize the product, Florida wanted it outlawed."

BOBBY F. MCKOWN, an official of the Florida Canners Association in Winter Haven, said, "We are opposed to an orange juice blend. If it is a blend of orange juice and water and other ingredients then it is an orange drink and should be called a drink."

He cited a survey in which consumers bought the blend thinking they were buying "orange juice." We feel that all product names should be truthful and not misleading," he said.

As is customary, the proposed standards were first published in the Federal Register, in 1968 followed by a public hearing. To date there has been so much dispute over the standards that they remain as proposals and not standards.

At one point the FDA received over 260 comments, including many from consumers and consumer organizations. The majority of the consumers wanted the percentage of orange juice in the "blend" clearly displayed on the label and disagreed with the FDA proposal that the label need only declare a range of percentages of orange juice in the product. Most wanted the product labeled "diluted orange juice drink."

Why is it taking the FDA so long to establish standards? FDA officials in Washington would not answer directly, but asserted that most of their time and effort is aimed at the regulation and inspection of "dangers to health" such as the nature and quality of drugs.

Second on the priority list is sanitation or the "defect level in food." Third is "economic cheats" such as poor quality in orange juice or misleading claims about orange juice.

An FDA official in Los Angeles said that inspecting and analyzing citrus fruit drinks was "less than 1 per cent of my operation." In San Francisco, an official said in three years he had never analyzed an orange juice product to determine if it was what it claimed to be.

"THE MAJORITY of the industry is complying with the law of the land," said Benjamin Gutterman, assistant director for coordination of that FDA's Office of Product Technology. "The consumer can have faith in that."

Because orange juice is a standarized food — meaning that its ingredients are so well known that they do not need to be on the label — there is plenty of opportunity for all degrees of dilution by manufacturers and processors, consumers say.

The frozen juice industry revenues rose from $716 million in 1970 to $808 million in 1971. Quick Frozen Foods magazine asserts that this jump is partly the result of "a mammoth new market, the federally subsidized school lunch and school breakfast programs" using frozen concentrated orange juice.

Moreoever there is congressional interest in making full disclosure of ingredients on standardized foods as well as nonstandardized products.

From A Pie Baker To Restaurant Owner

(Christian Science Monitor photo)

By JANET CHRISTENSEN
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

CHRISTIANSTED, Virgin Islands — It has been a long road from washing dishes in a Coxsackie, N.Y., establishment to masterminding the classy Comanche Restaurant on St. Croix in the Virgin Islands, and Dick Boehm is happy the trip is over.

Dick is highly successful in his business venture, but he believes it is the location that is the frosting on the cake.

"We don't ever want to leave. The climate's great, and I've really liked it since the first day we got off the plane. It's a great thing to be surrounded by beauty all the time," said Mary Boehm, Dick's English-born wife and partner in the restaurant operation.

Dick's circuitous route to a career in the tropical paradise really began at age 15 in Coxsackie, where his father is an apple farmer. "I got a job as a dishwasher, but two weeks later the pie baker got sick," Dick said with a grin. "Then I worked my way through college as a cook at summer resorts."

After majoring in English at New York State University in Albany, Dick studied a year at Cornell University's School of Hotel Administration. He also car-hopped in New Orleans, worked at the Ahwahnee Hotel in Yosemite National Park, and taught English in Honolulu.

"THEN I took a trip around the world and eventually went back to New York City, where I taught school and opened a catering business on 53rd Street, called Pantry East," said Dick.

Though his clientele included several celebrtiies, the business of delivering hot dishes in congested Manhattan traffic was not without its aggravations. So Dick and his bride of a year jumped at the chance to leave for the island of St. Martin in the West Indies to help open Alexis Lichine's restaurant, Jo-he Madame.

"It sounds fabulous, but it wasn't so great," Dick said.

After a year, he took a job as chef at St. Croix By the Sea, and later as chef at Grapetree Bay Hotel, also on St. Croix.

"I was actually fired from both jobs," he grinned.

Six years ago Dick and Mary took over the Comanche Restaurant in Christiansted, adjoining the Comanche Club Hotel. The restaurant, established some 17 years earlier, has flourished in their capable hands after an inauspicious past.

"The place wasn't popular," Dick said, "but the first year I brought it out of the red. There's no secret about it, I just started serving good food. We've never advertised."

DICK TRAINED his own chef, Maynard Austin, a "down islander" from Nevis in the Lesser Antilles, who was a dishwasher when Dick cooked at St. Croix By the Sea. There are also two second cooks, a relief cook, and a pantryman.

"I still like to go out in the kitchen, too. I like food, and I like to experiment," Dick said.

His extensive luncheon and dinner menus, which he changes twice a year, include a mixture of continental dishes and Crucian (of St. Croix) specialties native to the island.

"Creole sauce is probably one of the more interesting Crucian items. It's used in a conch creole with rice or with other fish," Dick said.

"The best fish of the Caribbean is dolphin and red snapper, and kingfish is the most popular with the natives.

"Other Crucian dishes include fungi, a cornmeal-based, polenta-like mixture; kalaloo, a native green; goatwater, a thin goat stew; salt fish; and chicken rice.

"We also serve roast pork with a Crucian potato stuffing —mashed white potatoes with raisins, tomato paste, hot pepper, onion, and green pepper. And another Crucian dish is a hot, spicy stew with beef and dumplings — they're like lead," he grinned.

CREOLE SAUCE

4 tomatoes, seeded and coarsely chopped
3 onions, coarsely chopped
3 peppers, coarsely chopped
½ pound butter
Salt, pepper and Tabasco to taste
½ teaspoon thyme
2 tablespoons tomato paste
2 tablespoons flour
2½ cups milk, or combination of milk and shrimp stock
1 pound combination of cooked shrimp, lobster, and crabmeat
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon plum jam or chopped chutney
Cooked rice and sambals

Steam vegetables in butter until tendercrisp. Add seasonings. Add tomato paste and swirl in pan until sauce thickens and is smooth. Shake pan in a circular motion until sauce gets thick and homogeneous. Serve immediately. Makes eight servings. This sauce may be served with many types of fish and is also very good with poached shrimp over rice.

LOBSTER, SHRIMP AND CRAB SINGAPORE CURRY

¼ pound butter
5 onions, chopped
2 cloves garlic
⅛ teaspoon cumin seed
2 teaspoons powdered ginger
dash cayenne pepper
2 teaspoons salt
2 tablespoons curry powder
2 tomatoes, chopped

In butter, saute onions and garlic 10 minutes. Add seasonings and tomatoes; cover and cook over low heat, stirring occasionally for 10 minutes. Add flour and cook for two minutes. Add milk and bring to a boil. Add seafood, lemon juice, and jam; heat until warm. Correct and balance seasoning; curry should be lightly sweet-sour.

Serve over rice and with sambals such as mango chutney, sliced fresh pineapple, large pieces of crisp bacon, chopped onion in sour cream, toasted almonds, raisins, grapefruit and orange sections, chopped dill pickle, and pimento. Makes six servings.

Some Tips On Cooking Of Rice

The rice you purchase is American-grown, milled and processed. This rice is ready to cook when you open the package, having been carefully milled and packaged to assure you that is clean and wholesome.

Best results for cooking rice are obtained when these tips are followed:

1. First, read the directions on the rice package.
2. Measure all ingredients.
3. Cooking utensil to be used should have tight fitting lid or use aluminum foil to cover.
4. The rice is at its best when steamed. Bring ingredients to a boil, stir, cover, turn heat to simmer and use the cooking time recommended on the package.
5. After rice is cooked, remove lid, toss rice with a fork and place in a serving dish. (This will help to separate the grains and prevent packing in bottom of pan. It also prevents over-cooking.)
6. One tablespoon butter or margarine added to mixture before cooking will add flavor and helps to separate grains.

Rice grown in the United States is one of the easiest foods to prepare when these simple rules are followed.

Rice Dish With Tomato And Cheese

Here's a nutritious rice dish — brown rice mixed with eggs and seasonings and then topped with cheese and tomato slices before baking. Good with hamburgers or sausage.

TOMATO AND CHEESE BAKE

3 cups hot, cooked brown rice
4½ tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon garlic salt
Pepper to taste
6 slices process cheese
6 tomato slices
1 teaspoon Italian seasonings
Additional salt and pepper

Combine rice, two tablespoons butter, eggs, and seasonings. Spoon into a buttered shallow baking dish. Arrange cheese slices over rice. Top each with a slice of tomato, brush with remaining butter, and sprinkle with Italian seasonings and additional salt and pepper. Bake at 400 degrees for eight to 10 minutes. Makes six servings.

Break Meal Monotony

NUTTY BROWN RICE

1 cup uncooked brown rice
1 cup chopped green onions with tops
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 cups chicken broth
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup chopped nuts

Saute rice and onions in butter until golden. Stir in broth and salt. Bring to a boil; stir once. Cover and simmer 45 minutes or until rice is tender and liquid absorbed. Add nuts and toss lightly. Makes six to eight servings.

A Singer Turned Pianist Gives Recital For Friends

By BETTY FROST

"I had not touched the piano in about 35 years," Mrs. Pearl Ladd Arnold of Sausalito said.

Yet, on Dec. 16 she gave a recital performing the first and second movements of the Beethoven Concerto, number one, for 40 guests. The program was in celebration of Mrs. Arnold's 90th birthday.

"I thought I would surprise them all," Mrs. Arnold said.

She began working on the "surprise" last March, soon after she had met pianist Leonard Jared of Tiburon.

"I knew he was a very great artist when he played for me, and I asked him if he would accept me as a student," she said.

Months of hard work followed. Of her teacher the Sausalito woman said, "He is the stingiest person I know with his praise."

FILLING THE ROOM with music, Mrs. Pearl Ladd Arnold of Sausalito, demonstrates the technique which brought her acclaim last week when she gave a piano recital in San Rafael for 40 guests. The concert was in celebration of the woman's 90th birthday.

HER EXTRAORDINARY performance was held at the B-J Studio in San Rafael, and attended by friends from the world of music, some of whom came from out of the state to attend.

"It was the most wonderful birthday I ever had," the noneganarian exclaimed. And, despite arthritis in her hands, which makes it necessary for her to do warming up exercise before playing, she said "I wouldn't dream of stopping now. I get lost in the beautiful music."

Jared, who accompanied her on a second piano, said, "She didn't make any mistakes, but I was so nervous I missed a few notes."

Although this is "Laddy's" first time around as a pianist, she had a distinguished singing career. In 1908 she made her debut in light opera at a performance at El Comedia in Madrid, attended by King Alfonso XIII and Queen Victoria Eugenia of Spain. She is proud of having been the first person to sing light opera in Spain.

Pearl Ladd was born in San Francisco on Dec. 14, 1882. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Ladd. Her father was the proprietor of Ladd's Gun Store, located on Kearney Street. Her father, she recalls, was a great sportsman.

HER EARLY education was in San Francisco, where she attended Denman Grammar School and the Convent of the Sacred Heart.

She studied the piano as a child, but "gave it up for singing. The music master used to rap my knuckles," she said.

She left San Francisco in 1902 for Europe, intending to stay for two years. She did not return to California for 15 years. In Paris she studied voice with Jacques Bouhy for four years. Bouhy is credited with having created the part of the Toreador in the opera, "Carmen." Miss Ladd was trained in opera, and appeared as Musetta in "La Boheme" and Micaela in "Carmen."

The quality of her soprano voice was ideal for starring roles in light opera, and in this field she had great success.

She was in Le Havre, France, for Easter vacation when news of the disastrous San Francisco earthquake of 1906 was received. She was staying at Le Havre en pension with a friend. This friend kept from her the news of the San Francisco holocaust for several days, hoping to get word of the Ladd family to reassure Pearl. However, Miss Ladd saw a magazine showing San Francisco's California Street, and the Crocker residence, which the California girl recognized. She still thinks with great affection of the friend who tried to protect her from the bad news.

AFTER THE earthquake her parents moved to the home in Sausalito where Mrs. Arnold moved permanently in 1940 and where she lives today.

She bagan her career in Paris in 1906 where she gave a concert. Later that year she went to London where she gave some concerts. After her Spanish debut in light opera, she returned to London and appeared in musical comedies.

In 1911, she was an understudy in the "Chocolate Soldier." She took over the starring role of Nadina in an emergency and played it continuously for two-and-a-half years, touring all over England.

In London she was engaged to play the female leads in Gilbert and Sullivan operas for a tour of South Africa, New Zealand and Australia. In this company she met her husband, the late George Villiers Arnold, who had a great baritone voice. They were married in New Zealand in 1916. Arnold's father, also in the theater, had been a character actor in Joseph Jefferson's theatrical company, which brought "Rip Van Winkle" to the United States in the 1850's and toured America.

Miss Ladd was such a success in Australia that she stayed there for about eight years. She and her husband formed their own repertory company and toured Australia and New Zealand and appeared in concert in Honolulu.

HER ROLE as Nadina in the Chocolate Soldier kept Pearl Ladd on tour for over two years from 1911 to 1913. She made her singing debut in 1908 before the King and Queen of Spain in Madrid. Now 90 years old the former singer is studying music again.

In 1921 her husband died during a flu epidemic in Australia. Mrs. Arnold came back to San Francisco, "not caring if I lived or died." She stayed with her mother in the house in Sausalito. After a time she got restless, and went to New York City with her mother. She had been offered a role in the "Merry Widow" operetta. However, at the time of her stay, there was a strike in New York theaters and her funds rapidly dissipated. She had an offer to resume her career in London.

MRS. ARNOLD'S mother argued against going to England. She also knew that her daughter was very fond of the family's Sausalito residence. A bargain was made. If Pearl would return to California the mother would leave her the Marin home.

"So, I gave up my career for this property," Mrs. Arnold said, sitting in the living room, where a picture window commands a clear view down Raccoon Strait.

"There is a destiny that shapes our ends," she quoted from Shakespeare.

Before coming to Sausalito permanently 32 years ago, Mrs. Arnold lived in San Francisco, and often sang at St. Mary's Cathedral. She is proud that she composed the music to the prayer, "Hail Mary," which she has sung many times.

Music will continue to fill her life in the next year. She also expects to travel in the spring, to Europe, Egypt, South Africa. "I want to cover all the territory I have seen in the past and see the changes," she said, "travel is my bug."

AND BROKEN THEM

Man Has Always Made Resolutions

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—Mankind has been making resolutions for centuries. Also breaking them.

As early as 194 B.C., Plautus was writing, "'He means well' is useless unless he does well."

In 1640, George Herbert wrote, "The resolved mind hath no cares."

In 1875, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow said, "Resolve and thou art free."

Which brings up the closing hours of 1972 and the opening of another year—the traditional time for trying to make oneself over or at least improve oneself in some way with reassessment and a list of New Year's resolutions.

AS FOR MINE, I kept every one, not only from 1972 but for several years past. I've just been recycling them each year. At present, the 1972 list is in a file on the den desk. The file's marked "pending" and among other things pending are those resolutions.

First resolution for 1973. Clear out the pending file.

I asked some of my associates in the office about their resolutions. One of them said she first would simply try to straighten out her desk sufficiently to find last year's.

Another said his only resolution so far was "to live out the old year joyously." He headed resolutely for a bar, leaving behind a sheet of paper in his typewriter that started, "Dear Mom."

Still another co-worker, bitter about the renewed bombing of North Vietnam and our continuing loss of aircraft and crews said, "I resolve not to listen to my government's telling me how we're winding down the war."

Behavioral scientists tell us we make resolutions because inwardly we know there's always room for improvement and setting aims down on paper helps enforce the promise to keep them.

We break them because to err is human and because ingrained habits are difficult to change.

IN THE INTERESTS, though, of offering some encouragement to myself and perhaps to you, I've made up a suggested list. You take it from there.

LOVE. In capital letters. There is too little of it around and little danger of our overindulging in this area.

Help others. In today's busy world, many of us find excuses for not realizing that we are all a piece of mankind and should in some way serve. Volunteer for a charity, a hospital, for Recording for the Blind, to read at an old folks' home. The areas for service are boundless and you can make the time. Remember the saying, "If you want something done, ask a busy person to do it."

Quit procrastinating. Get the onerous chores out of the way and leisure then is a pleasure instead of something to haunt you.

Practice my religion more physically too. The effort some Sundays of dressing and going to church seems too much. But a friend of mine who makes that effort at least each Sunday says the spiritual lift she gets lasts her through the week.

And let's face it. A lot of us should for health's as well as appearance's sake lose some weight in 1973. I put this one down just after inveriewing a nun who'd lost 76 pounds in 15 months and had gone from a size 44 to a size 10 or 12. That's resolution for you!

Charlotte Carter New Mrs. Peter W. Weikel

Charlotte Marie Carter of San Rafael became the bride of Peter Wiley Weikel of Petaluma in a ceremony at St. Isabella's Church in Terra Linda on Dec. 17.

For the afternoon nuptials Charlotte was attended by Jeanette Marie Asselin of Novato as maid of honor and her sisters, Mrs. Sue Haley of Concord, Abi Carter and Emily Carter, both of San Rafael.

Bob Fracchia of Terra Linda performed best man's duties. Guests were seated by the bridegroom's two brothers, Curtis Weikel of San Bruno and Chris Weikel of Easton, Pa., and the bride's brother, Ken Carter of San Rafael.

Charlotte is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Carter of San Rafael, and she is the granddaughter of Mrs. Paul D. Cleary and Mrs. Jess Pearl, both of Petaluma.

She is a Terra Linda High School graduate, attended the College of Marin and is employed by the Bank of America in San Francisco.

Peter's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Weikel of Petaluma, and Carolyn Soho of Redding is his sister. He is the grandson of Mrs. Wiley Metcalf of Hornick, Iowa.

Now employed by the Sears store at Northgate Mall, Peter is a graduate of Terra Linda High School and he attended California State University, San Francisco.

Carpentry Course Is Completed

The Bolinas Women's Carpentry Collective has completed the first course of instruction, begun in September. A new course will begin in April, with the funding of $900 granted by Community Action Marin insuring continued instruction to the low income women seeking to learn the carpentry trade.

On permanent loan from Frank Cerda of Inverness are big power tools, such as table saws, a band saw, a drill press and a jointer. Cerda, trained as a carpenter, has encouraged the woman in their wish to acquire carpentry skills.

Lucia Rose of Bolinas is the coordinator and the workshop is located in a garage near her home. A Saturday class will begin on Jan. 13. This will allow a different group of women, not available during the week, to familiarize themselves with tools and tool use. Home repairs will be emphasized in these classes.

WHILE THEY have sophisticated tools available, the real need is for more hand tools, according to Mrs. Rose.

There is a great esprit de corps among the 12 women, aged 20 to 40, who are the mainstay of the collective. One of their first projects was to build the foundation for a house in Bolinas. They also do shingling.

"In fact," Mrs. Rose said, "getting jobs is no problem. "We have made bunk beds, cabinets, a writing desk, special doors on order and have put in shelving and molding. What we need is more instruction."

Carpenters in the community assist with instruction on a volunteer basis.

"It felt good when I first picked up a hammer and learned to use it," Mrs. Rose said.

Acquiring these traditionally male skills is partly motivated by women's liberation thinking and partly by the frustrations of not being able to handle simple repairs and construction without asking for help, the coordinator said.

Marion Rowe Is New Mrs. Lion

The Independent-Journal erred Saturday in the headline of a story announcing the marriage of Marian Ralston Rowe of Dallas, Tex., and Garrett Ernest Lion of Sausalito on Friday in Dallas.

The bride's last name was given incorrectly as Howe.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Little Matchmaker: Just Keep Nose Out Of Your Son's Affairs

DEAR HELEN:

I don't want to be a nosy mother, but my son needs a push.

He is 25, dating a 20-year-old girl I've never met. However, friends tell me she is a good, church-going, moral, well brought-up girl. She's pretty too, as he has a picture of her in his room. From what I hear they're so much alike in habits and ideals that it's uncanny.

But — my son was deeply hurt three years ago and I think he is afraid of getting serious, though he has dated this girl for about six months. He hasn't brought her home to meet us, so he probably hasn't told her how he feels, and she may figure it's "just friends" so slip away from him. Girls like her are few and far between — and my son isn't getting any younger.

I think he would like to say, "Let's get married," and do just that in a couple of weeks. Financially, he's able, but a girl wants a big wedding, and he should give her notice. I can't understand why he doesn't bring her home and get everything settled.

Like I say, I'm not a nosy mother, but shouldn't I have a talk with him? — MRS. C.M.

DEAR MRS. M:

Back up to "I'm not a nosy mother," add a big, fat exclamation point, and cut the "buts."

A 25-year-old son needs a mother's "push" toward matrimony like he needed her taking him to the barbershop at age 14. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I like mimeographed family letters for Christmas cards, provided they're interesting and fun to read. But when they're received during the holiday rush, they're seldom appreciated.

Therefore, we send our Christmas letters out after New Year's. It works great! By then we have heard from all our friends, so we can tack on really personal answers at the bottom. Also, we have all the new addresses. Colored paper, with matching ink, incidentally, livens up any correspondence.

As for gifts: we do our gift giving throughout the year — and that goes for birthdays, too. Whenever we find something just right for a friend or relative, we buy it and send it quickly, with a note saying this is "Your special gift and we couldn't wait for the special day." How much nicer it is to get a surprise present when it can be savored all by itself.

Christmas we reserve for children — and for pleasant, relaxed family gatherings, unburdened with thoughts of those mountainous bills for adult gifts.

Thanks for letting me share my Christmas ideas with you. — ALICE M.

DEAR HELEN:

Here's an idea for low-budget gifts that really mean something. Our daughter lost her part-time job this fall. She loves to give, but said it wouldn't be right if her parents paid her bills (though she's only 16). So she made up fancy little I.O.U. notes, decorated with humorous drawings, and placed them in envelopes on the tree. Her married sister and brother and their spouses each received "ten hours baby-sitting, but not during finals week." The older children got "one trip to the beach, big picnic, payable July 14." She made the younger ones stuffed animals and dolls. And for us, her parents, she had the greatest gift of all: "365 days of love and appreciation for two super-good guys, plus two car-wash-and-wax jobs, and one day scrubbing down the kitchen cupboards." — NICE, HUH?

DEAR NICE:

The nicest! You've got a great daughter there. — H.

This column is dedicated to family living so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. She will also welcome your own amusing experiences. Write to Helen Bottel care of the Independent-Journal.

Meat Storage Made Better

A major meat specialty processor has done something to make "convenience packages" more convenient.

It's produced a rigid package consisting of a plastic "tub" in which the meat is contained and a snap-on plastic lid for reclosing. When the lid is snapped back on, the package becomes a refrigerator container for unused slices of meat. No need to use foil or other covering.

Another quality is the freshness date printed on the package, as a guide to the length of time the meat inside will remain at peak freshness and flavor.

Keppel-Wlodarczyk Vows Are Exchanged

An afternoon wedding Dec. 16 at St. Eugene's Cathedral in Santa Rosa was the setting for the wedding of Bonnie Katherine Keppel and Michael Robert Wlodarczyk.

Bonnie, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Erven Keppel of Rohnert Park, chose Judy Baranzini of Cotati as her maid of honor. Diane Short of Novato and the bridegroom's sisters Kris of Santa Rosa and Mrs. John Casto of Rohnert Park were bridesmaids.

Bonnie was graduated from Rancho Cotate High School in Rohnert Park. She is employed in the Sonoma County District Attorney's Office. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Starz of Lake City, Minn.

Michael is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Wlodarczyk of Rohnert Park. Steve Cincersa of Rohnert Park was his best man. His brother, Scott; the bride's brother, Edward of Fort Riley, Kan.; and John Casto of Rohnert Park, were ushers.

The bridegroom is also a graduate of Rancho Cotate High School and attends Santa Rosa Junior College. He has two other brothers: Steve of Tulsa, Okla., and Pat of Rohnert Park. He is the grandson of Stanley Ryzanca of Munising, Mich., and Mrs. Mary Wlodarczyk of Holland, Mich.

The couple will visit Southern California and Mexico on their wedding trip before making their home in Santa Rosa.

Vows Exchanged At St. Hilary's Church

St. Hilary's Church in Tiburon was the setting for the marriage of Theresa Klune McLean and Frederick T. Dietrich Jr. at 7 p.m. on Dec. 16.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Wilson McLean of Sonoma. Frederick T. Dietrich of Mill Valley is the bridegroom's father.

Maid of honor was Pamela Walker of Laguna Beach.

George Bont O'Neill of San Rafael was the best man. The ushers were Christian P. Dietrich and William E. Dietrich, of Mill Valley, the bridegroom's brothers, and Carl Erwin Paine of Mill Valley.

The couple was escorted from the church by a kilted Scottish bagpiper, playing. This is a tradition of the bride's parents, originally from Scotland.

The reception was given at the Sausalito Yacht Club.

Theresa is a graduate of St. Bernardine's High School in San Bernardino, and of the University of San Francisco. She did graduate studies at the University of California at Berkeley.

The bridegroom is a graduate of the San Rafael Military Academy and of the University of San Francisco. He received the master's degree in labor relations from Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y.

After a wedding trip to Heavenly Valley, Lake Tahoe, the couple will live in Mill Valley.

Time To Plan For Birthday Bash

NEW YORK (UPI) — A woman who's been staging historical celebrations for 45 years says it's high time the nation got started on plans for its 200th birthday party.

Mrs. Adele Gutman Nathan would like especially to see the planners stage one giant bash in Washington, D.C., July 4, 1976, marking the bicentennial celebration of the signing of the Declaration of Independence in 1776.

She already recommends the site—the National Capitol which "is just naturally one huge outdoor stage. Either the front or back of the building is adaptatable, she said, but she likes the back because the rolling land behind would enable "millions to see the presentation."

To those who say, "But Washington wasn't even the capital then, why Washington?", she answers, "We're celebrating an ideal...the ideal of creating a perfect government.

"AND I can't see our government not having a national observance of its bicentennial."

Which puts her at odds with the National Council of the Arts. Jean Dalrymple, the theatrical impresario, is a council member and said that at a recent all-day session of the group in Washington the conclusion seemed to be that observances would have to be local or state, that no single extravaganza seemed possible nationally.

So far, Mrs. Nathan said, several states have celebrations in the planning stage and she's certain there will be others set for Philadelphia (where the Continental Congress in 1776 adopted the Declaration of Independence), Valley Forge, Boston and other centers typifying the emergence of our nation.

Mrs. Nathan said that in addition every school, church and synagogue, every patriotic society, is "bound to have" an observance.

She would like to see celebrations "take some of the things set down in the Declaration and stress them" rather than have "shooting wars" recreated.

"LIKE 'ALL men are created equal,'" she continued. "Well, we haven't made it yet, but maybe we can.

"I'd like to see the bicentennial dramatized in good taste. People won't accept anything shoddy."

She summarizes the one major consideration in any plans—"Cut the cost according to the cloth. In other words, find out something that'll fit your means...not something that calls for the Metropolitan Opera and the budget of 'My Fair Lady'".

Mrs. Nathan has just had published a "how to" book called "How to Plan and Conduct a Bicentennial Celebration" (Stackpole Books, Harrisburg, Pa.). It's a step-by-step guide for schools, clubs, community groups and all on how to dramatize America's 200th birthday in vignettes, parades, happenings and pageants.

Mrs. Nathan, Baltimore-born, began her career as a newswoman, first in Washington and Baltimore, then as a roving foreign correspondent for the then United Press, now United Press International.

SHE'D DONE some theater directing when she was asked to help with a dramatic portion of the Jewish Tercentenary in Trenton, N.J. Then the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad asked her to help with its centennial celebration in 1927.

A whole new career had opened for Mrs. Nathan. Her credits include the 175th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, the Railroad Show in Chicago in 1949-50, numerous industry celebrations, the 100th anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg, and celebration of Lincoln's Gettysburg Address centennial.

She's won numerous awards for her works. And along the way, she's written 14 books ("I think that's the right number), three of them about Lincoln.

"You know what happens," she said. "You do all that mass of research for an observance and then don't want the notes to go to waste. So you put it all down between covers."

JUDGES LIKE PROGRAM

Foundation Helps Felons With Desire To Improve

By LARRY MOWELL

SAN FRANCISCO — How to give society its "eye for an eye" and still turn criminals from felonies to jobs has long been a thorny problem for Marin judges, but an unconventional San Francisco clan apparently is offering a solution.

Increasingly, Marin judges are resolving the seemingly paradoxical goals of punishment and rehabilitation by sending problem criminals on the verge of prison to the Delancey Street Foundation instead.

Judges like the two-year-old foundation because it keeps a criminal off the streets for a minimum of 18 months — six months longer than the maximum legal jail sentence — while offering hope of rehabilitation. Superior Court Judge Samuel W. Gardiner has called it the best program available.

It is too early to gauge success, since few have completed the program, but probation officers readily endorse it and are trying to place more in the presently crowded program.

The subject of all the good words is a conglomeration of contradictions, a "puritanical commune" in the words of one resident.

Based in San Francisco, the facility is named after a New York City street where immigrants started on the road to success.

The 170 participants, with records of poverty, joblessness and antisocial behavior, live in a 28-room mansion which once housed high Egyptian government officials. Bills of $20,000 to $25,000 a month are paid without help from any kind of grant in an age when almost every help agency survives on outside assistance.

A "people-helping" group, it is "in profound disagreement with almost everyone in the people-helping business," founder John Maher told the Independent-Journal.

"Hopeless dingbats" and "selfish cripples" go through a program of shaved heads and candlelight dinners, floor scrubbing and social outings, cramped quarters in a wealthy neighborhood, encounter sessions and image changing.

All the unlikely ingredients are blended in an effort to turn misfits around, teach them to work for success, be honest and live by some code of ethics, according to Maher.

Maher, a tough-talking self-admitted former con man from New York, founded the house two years ago with $100 after spending years in Synanon.

He said it is no more similar to Synanon than one religion is to another.

First step in a long process for a prospective Delancey Street participant is a jail interview during which he is given a bleak picture of the voluntary program. "We want to scare off the guys who don't mean serious business," Maher said.

Otherwise, the entrance requirements are meager. Said Maher, "I'll take anybody in here: Communists, Black Muslims, Nazis, convicts. A man comes dressed like Napoleon. Fine. Once he comes inside the door, he don't dress like Napoleon no more."

Once in, the welcome is rude and testing. Men and women are garbed much like prisoners in denims or khakis and men must have their heads shaved for several reasons.

It is a first step toward a new image, it shows they are sincere and it helps keep them from leaving. "The first week or so, they don't want to stay, but they can't go hustling with a bald head," said Joanne Mancuso, a former drug user living in the house.

Despite the shaving, one in four gives up and leaves, but no one who has stayed six months has left the voluntary program, Maher said.

New arrivals are not allowed out of the house without a long-time resident, but the only restraint is their probation, Maher said.

Since most are on probation (half would have been in prison if not sent to Delancey Street), leaving means jail when caught, Maher said.

New arrivals spend the first two months doing menial jobs in the mansion, then are shifted to hard labor, like construction and furniture moving in foundation-run companies.

"That is the one thing these guys need. They have to sweat off some of this guilt they have stored up," Miss Mancuso said.

Maher's almost fanatical belief in the rehabilitative value of hard work and in man's ability to work out his own problems is his handling of the ex-drug users who make up half the house's population.

The addicts receive no methadone and other pacifiers. "I just tell them, 'Stop.' Nobody has ever told them, 'Stop.' This is a radical approach. We are not in the business of handing out patent medicine psychic remedies," Maher said.

Rules of the house are few — no violence of threats, no alcohol or drugs and triweekly participation in a massive encounter session called a circus. So far the rules haven't been broken, Maher and Miss Mancuso said.

"Not one of our people has ever been arrested while here, not even a police complaint," Maher said.

One of the techniques for reducing agresssion and solving problems is the encounter session involving up to 200 persons. "We all meet in a room and settle our beefs so the steam can get off," Maher said.

If the rules are followed and good work habits are developed, the next step is schooling or vocational training. "You can't leave an environment like this knowing nothing," Miss Mancuso said.

Maher was more direct: "I demand that young people go to school. Otherwise I won't do bsuiness with them." They have to continue to work for the privilege of schooling, he said.

One resident of the house is enrolled in the San Francisco Conservatory of Music; a second attends the private Drew School, compliments of house members who painted the school in exchange for her tuition.

"We just transmute labor into capital," Maher said to explain the way the house pays its way.

Some clothing and food is donated, but the foundation earns money from a moving business, a construction school, an auto repair shop and a flower business. Some residents also serve as movie extras.

Still more cash comes from professional people who live in the house and donate their salaries. No one at the house is salaried. "We learned that from the Catholic Church," Maher said.

But sink-scrubbing, floor-sweeping, car-fixing and soul-searching sessions are only half the program. A combination of movie and humor seems to give the house a bright side.

Living in a building owned by Egypt ("They weren't overjoyed with the image, but they had already accepted my check," Maher said), the group gleefully celebrates Jewish holidays.

The Egyptians unsuccessfully sued to throw Delancey Street out, but neighbors, give or take a few "nouveau riche cranks," according to Maher, have not complained.

Other publicized shenanigans of the house have been annual journeys to the San Francisco Jail on St. Valentine's Day to give flowers to women prisoners, a trip to San Quentin in limousines to pick up a parolee and an offer to the state to buy the prison and pay for it by charging admission to tourists who want to see the gas chamber.

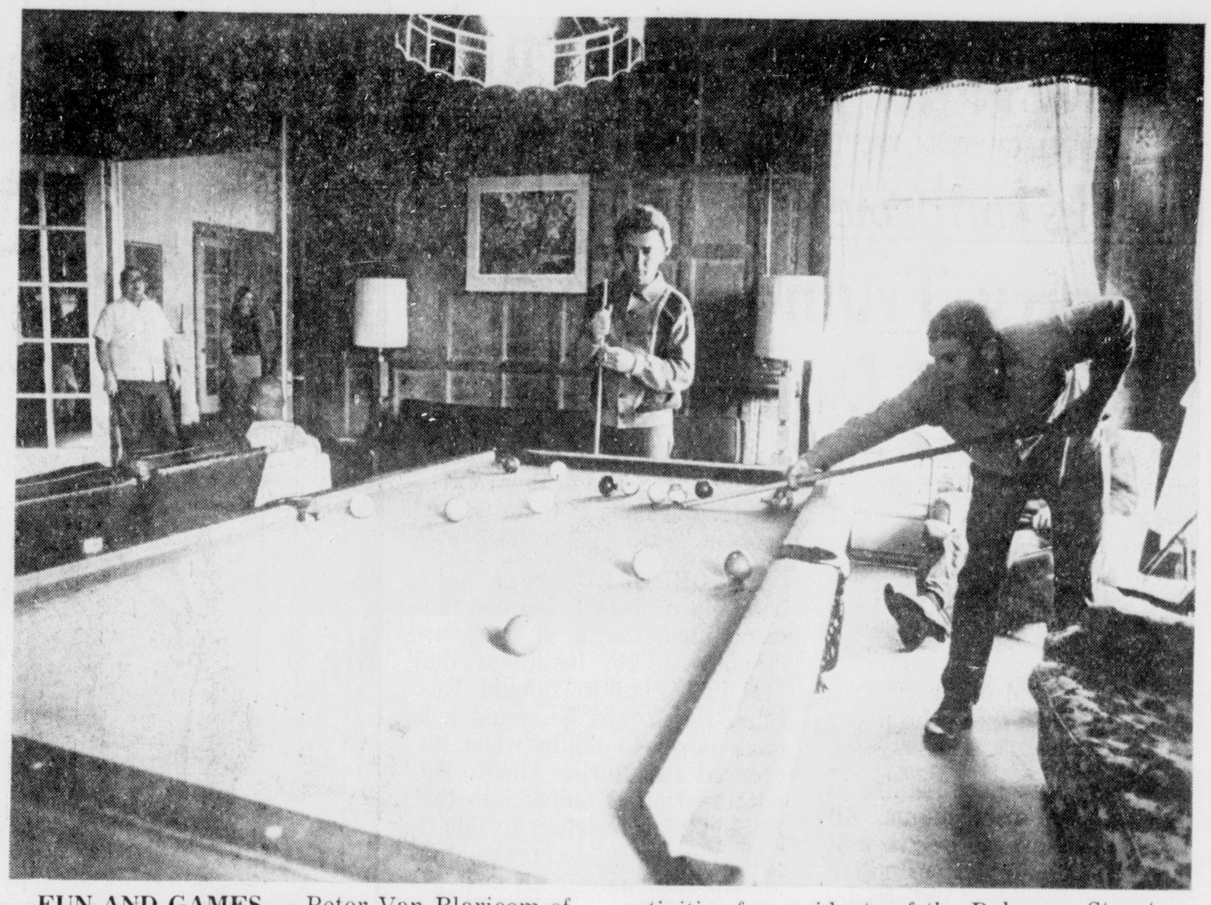
But the basic premise of Delancey Street is that other programs for helping the poor and the socially outcast are failures. Paying off people with handouts and methadone isn't a solution, Maher claimed.

"The very idea that those guys died for in Valley Forge has been lost in these payments to the poor," he said.

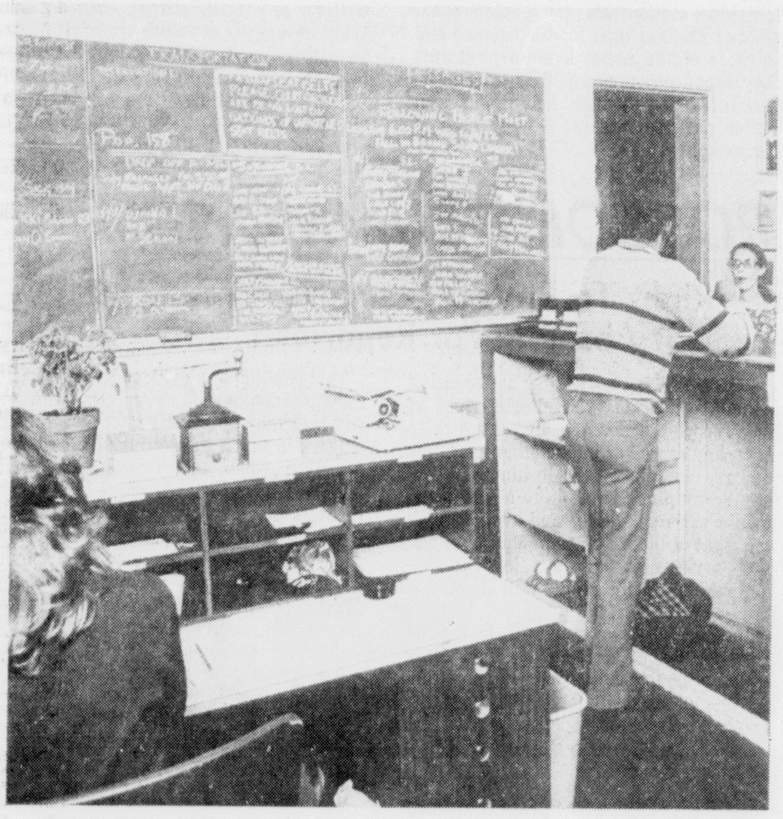
Handouts are not a part of the Delancey Street effort. "These guys are making it on their own," Maher said.

Maher likened the foundation to a Scotch clan, a loosely knit association providing a job and a large number of supporting friends.

Only one thing is asked in return. "Anybody I help today, I will expect to help somebody else someday," Maher said.



FUN AND GAMES — Peter Van Blaricom of Vallejo and Dane Ryan of Las Vegas compete in a game of pool, one of many afterwork activities for residents of the Delancey Street Foundation.



ASSIGNMENT CENTER — Three Delancey Street Foundation residents work at the front desk where everyone signs in and out and checks on the day's chores. Other nerve centers in the 28-room mansion include a business office, which runs all the companies of the foundation, and a procurement office, which manages the flow of food and clothing.

LEARNING TO WORK — Miguel Rodriquez of Point Reyes Station folds laundry during his initiation into Delancey Street Foundation. Shaved heads and household chores are the lot of each new resident, but after living in the house for a while, appearance becomes a matter of choice.

AUTO SHOP — Two Delancey Street Foundation residents tinker with the group's antique truck while a third makes a phone call. The old truck is a rolling reminder of Delancey's emphasis on the old-fashioned work ethic. The auto shop is one of several moneymaking operations supporting the group.

ART PIEROTTI

Over the years that Art Pierotti has been with Scripture Olds it has seemed to us that he knows almost everyone in Marin County.

Of course he has lived here all his life and has been selling Oldsmobiles here since 1951 but more important, he's a good guy to know, and the people who buy cars from him are not only customers to Art, they are his friends.

When you buy a car from Art he will do all he can to make sure that you are satisfied - even picking up and delivering your car when it needs servicing. That type of customer relationship has, over the years, kept Art in the top eschelon of Bay Area Olds salesmen.

The next time you're ready for another car call, or better yet, stop in and see Art Pierotti and let him show you the new Oldsmobiles.

You'll be receiving the assistance of a professional.

Harry Truman: He Did His Damndest

The stout heart finally gave up, but even in his last illness, Harry Truman proved a tough fighter to the end. His doctors were amazed at the vitality that kept him alive for weeks after all signs were against survival.

It was typical of Harry Truman. He was a man who never quit.

We may never see his like in the White House again. All politicians claim to be "men of the people." But Harry Truman really was a man of the people. His virtues were the solid virtues that the people admire; his failings, the human failings that the people understand.

WHEN FRANK D. Roosevelt tapped the senator from Missouri to be his third vice presidential running-mate, Truman felt deeply the responsibility that might be thrust upon him, for he knew the President, then winding up his third term, was in uncertain health. But he accepted the challenge, as he accepted all challenges. For Harry Truman never "copped out."

FDR did not take his vice presidents into his confidence. So when Roosevelt died on April 12, 1945 — with World War II at its climax — Truman faced the critical war-ending, peace-making decision period with little preparation. He fully realized this.

The humility that accompanied his bulldog tenaciousness was shown in his remark to reporters after he was sworn into office in a hasty ceremony following Roosevelt's death. "Pray for me!" he asked the newsmen.

But with the decision-making power thrust upon him, Harry Truman did not hesitate to make decisions. Some of them were great. Some of them were wrong. But none of them was a "copout."

HE ORDERED the atomic bombing of Japan —to end the war with a saving of lives, as he saw it. He instituted the Marshall Plan to rebuild Europe. He proved he would not back down to Stalin when he ordered the Berlin Airlift. He put the United States into the Korean War because he felt it was necessary to make the United Nations effective.

The motto of his presidency was on his White House desk: "The buck stops here." It epitomized the no-nonsense, down-to-earth integrity that endeared Harry Truman to the people, and that enabled him to snatch victory from predicted defeat in his 1948 presidential race against Thomas E. Dewey — a startling victory in an election in which early editions of the Chicago Tribune headlined a Dewey victory, to Truman's subsequent delight.

A scholar-historian writing of United States presidents recently predicted that Truman might be the last man without a college education to sit in the White House; he only finished high school.

He may also, as big spending and contrived publicity play larger and larger roles in our elections, be the last President who can truly be called "a man of the people."

LONG BEFORE he breathed his last on Tuesday morning, he had picked the epitaph he wanted. It was on a tombstone in a pioneer cemetery in Arizona: "Here lies Jack Williams. He done his damndest."

That was Harry Truman. He did his damndest.

'Slow' Police Response Actually Was Speedy

Relative to a letter written by S. Ruland that appeared in the Independent Journal on Dec. 19, complaining of slow response to emergency calls by the San Anselmo Police Department, please be advised of the following discrepancies in that letter.

The first alleged incident occurred on Thanksgiving morning, Nov. 23. Radio log and police report both show that two officers arrived five minutes after receiving the message. Locating the exact apartment was difficult as the complainant reported the disturbance was taking place in one of six apartments at 1355 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard. This case amounted to an argument between a husband and wife.

The second allegation occurred on Saturday, Dec. 9. It should be noted that this department was not directly contacted by anyone at the scene. Rather, this department was advised by county communications to follow up an ambulance call at 1355 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard. This request was made at 5:37 p.m., and the officer arrived at 5:39 p.m., a matter of two minutes. This was involving a lady who had fallen and was injured.

It is most unfortunate that your newspaper does not have a policy to check on facts before publishing such as injurious letter.

City Backs Developer Against Conservationist

A few months ago, this subscriber wrote about the condemnation of the Will Lieb's land on Hill Road by the City of Novato to aid and assist an Oakland developer so he could build 92 apartments on the old Louis Nave place adjacant to Mr. Lieb's chicken ranch.

Ready for Chapter 2?

Now, the Oakland developer is busy tearing out trees, among them, a bull pine growing at the entrance of Will Lieb's ranch. Justification: "Not enough room to allow heavy equipment onto the project."

The Novato Planning Department says the tree is to remain. The Novato public works director sent the project superintendent a letter to wit: remove the tree. The city manager "backs up" the public works director. The city attorney, Clark Palmer, is receiving "pressure" from the law firm of the Oakland developer, so he wants the city to act against Will Lieb and get this "straightened out."

Will Lieb has appealed to the "conservation-minded city councilman" but, after three or more 'phone calls, the "representative of the people" states: "Settle the law suit and we can save the tree". Legal blackmail is now being applied to a citizen and taxpayer who was born in Novato on the ranch he is trying to defend . . .

Solution: At this point, the citizens of Novato have but two ways to correct this type of problem:

#1: Dis-incorporate the City of Novato; thus, eliminate the city hall crowd.

#2: Request the resignation of the city manager, Charles Brown; the resignation of the city attorney, Clark Palmer, and the resignation of the city public works director, Cliff Temps.

Which solution do you support?

NOW Newsletter Not Advertising Organ

I was quite shocked and more than a little annoyed at a paragraph in Mary Leydecker's column of 18 Dec. referring to the Marin NOW Newsletter as an "advertising media for lesbians." Ms. (Mrs.-editor) Leydecker was in error, which she admitted to in a subsequent call to her desk. She agreed to a retraction statement in the 19 Dc. issue of the I-J. A rather vague statement did appear on the 20th, however where was it located? At the bottom of an insert advertising supplement, a throwaway sheet in many Marin households. This is hardly a satisfactory retraction.

If an I-J writer is allowed to prominently print snide, high school gossip column remarks, factually in error and not correct these in an equally prominent place, your paper is sinking to even newer lows in its quality of news and comment.

To set the record straight, the Marin NOW Newsletter accepts no advertising of any kind and I can think of no feminist publication in Marin County which is an "advertising media for lesbians", so Ms. Leydecker is in error from every standpoint . . .

Plan Or No Plan, Costs Will Go Up

The Independent-Journal editorial of Dec. 11, on the countywide plan, "Where Will All The Money Come From?", is based on one false assumption. It gives the impression that there will be no cost to the taxpayers if the plan were not carried out. In fact, however, we will have to pay for needed governmental services whether the countywide plan is adopted or not. The question really is, whether we want to pay for a Marin which follows the goals of the present countywide plan, or a different plan, or no plan at all.

In some respects, Marin with a countywide plan may be less expensive than Marin without the plan. For example, the estimated capital cost over 18 years of the proposed transportation system would be $522 million. The estimated capital cost of the transportation system that would be required, if present trends continued without the plan, is $697 million.

The financing gaps, which exist between some of the plan's goals and the assumed revenue sources, are a cause for concern. That is why we have so clearly shown them. It means that we have to work hard to close these gaps, or if unsuccessful, to revise the goals of the plan in the future.

You further stated that the annual per capita cost from $355 to $363 was in addition to the present tax load. This is very misleading. Firstly, the annual cost is given in 1990 dollars. Expressed in 1972 dollars, the amount would be $226 to $235. . .

Nixon's Young Man Whitehead Inherits Agnew Censorship Role

WASHINGTON — At the White House, they explain their latest excursion against the First Amendment in almost patriotic terms: When Clay T. Whitehead speaks for the administration and hints at bringing the government even more directly into censorship of broadcast news, he is merely seeking to start a good old-fashioned American public debate.

That his carefully phrased remarks, certainly cleared by high political policymakers in the White House, are a clear menace to freedom of the press just insures that the debate will be healthy and direct. So let it begin.

WHITEHEAD, who is a bright young man out of MIT and Rand Corp., was chosen originally as director of the White House Office of Telecommunications Policy presumably because he is expert in systems engineering and other such technical disciplines. That no doubt is helpful in one of the important areas of communications controversy these days, cable television.

But what Whitehead increasingly has tried to do is apply federal government systems engineering, with a distinctly Nixon-Republican flair, to the content of news programs. He broke into the open first by deploring the central (for which read "liberal") production of news and public affairs programs on the Public Broadcasting Service, and since then a new chief of the corporation for public broadcasting has been named to put his views into policy.

Now he is after the Big Three private networks that feed news and news analysis into every home in the country.

He made a speech at Indianapolis calling for legislation to set two standards for television station license renewals from the Federal Communications Commission. Stations would have to show they had been attuned to the needs of their communities, and that they have afforded genuine opportunity for the airing of conflicting views on hot issues.

STANDING ALONE, his suggestions may seem reasonably innocuous, not out of line with existing provisions that stations can be challenged at license renewal time for alleged failure to serve the public. But Whitehead now wants the individual stations also to be held responsible at renewal time for the balance and fairness of the network news programs they broadcast — and if they want to be sure of renewal, they had damn well better put pressure on the networks to shape up.

Even going that far, his proposals might sound acceptable if drifting out of academe, or from some seminar of private broadcasters. What makes them totally unacceptable and deeply threatening is their source — the most censorship-prone and politically pugnacious White House since the television era dawned.

This is the outfit engaged in a niggling reprisal against the society reporter of the Washington Post because the Post was by White House standards too aggressive in its coverage of the Watergate affair. It is the one that turned Mr. Agnew loose on the networks and the press. It is the one whose former attorney general urged that newsmen be held vulnerable to subpoena to disclose their sources — and a subsequent court ruling to that effect has a series of reporters either in or threatened by jail.

Indeed, despite the cold and colorless sound of his credentials — MIT, Rand, systems engineering — it appears that Whitehead has the Agnew franchise for the time being. The White House declined to respond when asked whether he had inherited the Agnew speechwriter, too, but the stylistic evidence was strong, and it was the language surrounding his legislative proposals that raised hackles in the networks and newsrooms.

He put out unfounded innuendo about "ideological plugola" by newsmen who purportedly stress or suppress facts in line with their own prejudices. He called for management discipline of "so-called professionals who confuse sensationalism with sense and who dispense elitist gossip in the guise of news analysis."

TO WHICH the dedicated television fan may say, well, he's right, the networks are overloaded with guys who give us that old Eastern Establishment "booshwa" as if it were the gospel, any why shouldn't they be called to account for it?

And to which anyone sensitive to his basic freedoms must say in return, fine, let's you out there in televisionland call them to account, and let's insist that the industry police itself. But any American who respects his own judgment, and wants to exercise it on the events of the day rather than on propaganda certified by the federal government, will be a fool to let the systems engineers, ex-editorial writers or ex-advertising men in the White House get even one finger so much as one millimeter farther into the judging, balancing, approving or disapproving of broadcast news and comment in this country.

Right To Protect Sources Not Absolute For Reporter

WASHINGTON — I enter a dissenting opinion concerning the alleged right of any reporter under any circumstance to keep any source of information secret for any reason satisfactory to him.

It seems to me that quite a few in the media are overstating and overclaiming the right of unlimited confidentiality, and that trying to put into law an all-embracing shield may well hurt the press, not help it.

Surely something can be said for the right of the public to know sources of information in order to judge the credibility of published information, and the right of courts to subpoena any witness whose knowledge may be essential to a fair trial.

THE RIGHT of a free press is constitutionally guaranteed.

The right of a defendant to a fair trial is constitutionally guaranteed.

When the exercise of these rights comes into conflict, you are not going to find all widsom and all merit on one side.

This conflict was evident in the temporary decision of the Los Angeles Times to withhold the tapes of its interview with a witness in the Watergate trial. The issue dissolved when the Times was given approval by its source to yield the full tapes to the court.

The customary defense of the right of a reporter to shield his sources is that reporting sometimes uncovers wrongdoing by public officials and private citizens which might well remain uncovered unless the press could do its job. The press might well not be able to bring such information to light if it could not protect the anonymity of helpful sources.

That is a valid defense for confidentiality of sources. This kind of confidentiality is a valuable right and deserves to be secured.

BUT THE TWO reporters who are in jail today for refusing to testify in court were in no way engaged in reporting designed to perform any public service of any kind.

The "exclusive" by William Farr, then of the Los Angeles Herald Examiner, dealt with aspects of the Manson murder case leaked to him by lawyers in the case who had been ordered by Judge Charles Older to make public no information concerning the trial. Reporter Farr had been informed of this ruling by the court.

The New Republic, which is certainly not soft on civil rights, describes this reporter's story "as a seamy sensational account based on material obtained in contradiction to court order, where selling more newspapers was the only public service."

The other reporter in jail for contempt of court is Peter Bridge of the defunct Evening News of Newark, N.J., who put into print an unsubstantiated, unverified allegation from an unidentified source of a $10,000 bribe attempt to influence a Newark housing commissioner to vote for a particular executive director of the commission.

Mrs. Pearl Beatty under oath told quite a different story than Bridge reported and refuted two other versions attributed to her. Understandably the county prosecutor, after reading allegations which appeared to him unfounded but printed as if true, wanted to establish what was true and what was false.

He subpoenaed Bridge to testify. Bridge refused to testify. But why shouldn't he testify if he wanted to perform a public service?

THE RIGHT of a reporter to shield his confidential sources seems to me a valid and defensible right when it is being used to serve the public interest. When it is so used — and it was not so used in either of these two cases —it would be reasonable to expect the courts to respect that right.

If a judge disdains that right when it is reasonably exercised, then a newspaper and its reporter should fight it out in court — and be ready to take the consequences.

In my opinion the press does not need a special law to shield its sources when it is valid to do so.

SACRAMENTO SCENE

SB 90's Built-In Shortages May Rule Out Tax Cut

By RUS WALTON

The financial affairs of the state are, to put it mildly, slightly confused. If you ran a business in the same way, you'd be bankrupt in a year — or less.

On the one hand, there are those — mainly in the governor's staff and cabinet — who feel that the state is piling up a surplus at such a rate that a tax cut is in order.

That is why Governor Reagan announced recently that he would press for a cut in income taxes next year.

But others — in the controller's office and the legislative staff, and including Finance Director Verne Orr — say that future surpluses have already been committed to the other programs. There is, they say, no money for any tax reductions.

Further, they predict that the state may be forced to increase taxes within the next two or three years.

And they point to SB 90 — the so-called tax shift and education financing act — as the culprit: it will sop up any extra funds, and then some.

SO, THE SACRAMENTO stage is set. The houselights dim, and the players take their places. To cut or not to cut, that is the question. To tax, perchance to increase — aye, there's the rub!

Either way, it's your money and you might be interested in this bob-tailed projection of some state spending in the coming three years:

SB 90 has no impact on the current fiscal year, which ends June 30, 1973. The experts agree 1972-73 will end with a surplus of about $700 million. It is from that tidy pot of gold that Governor Reagan wants to cut your taxes.

SB 90 starts grinding away on July 1, 1973. And its on-going, built-in demands will cost the taxpayers at least $1 billion a year at the state level. Which is one reason finance director Verne Orr is predicting a $9.4 billion budget next year.

Geanted, about one-half of that increase, $550 million, will go to reimburse counties for revenue losses due to the increase in the homeowners' property tax exemptions. Another $560 million will go for increased state support of public schools.

The increased revenues from the hike in the sales tax and the bank and corporation tax will bring in about $670 million. Anticipated federal revenue sharing funds put another $215 million in the pot. But the pot will be something like $248 million short — and that shortage will be taken from "surplus" funds.

A SIMILAR SHORTAGE will occur in 1974-75.

Increased expenses because of SB 90 will total $1.27 billion that year. Increased revenues, including federal "sharing" funds, will come to about $1 billion. So, the state will have to toss $227 million into the pot and that, again, will come from the surplus.

In 1975-76, the deficit will be even larger: $1.4 billion. The "new" income will come to only $1.1 billion, leaving a shortage of $300 million.

All told, for those three years SB 90 will cost $825 million more than it takes in. The problem is there may not be that much money in the state's till to make up the difference.

Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post thinks the total surplus for those same three years may come to about $500 million. If, he says — if there are no other new programs or demands on the treasury.

Thus, it would seem that the built-in drain of SB 90 will not only gobble up all the surplus funds for the three years, 1973-76, it will require another $325 million. That extra $325 million must come either from new taxes or cuts in other state programs.

His first year in office, Governor Reagan was forced to raise taxes to pay for his predecessor's extravagances. The next man to take over the governor's office may find himself in the same position.

"Power and light company speaking. Just what is the nature of your complaint?"

Nostalgia plays an important role in our modern way of life. These days everybody is looking back on those days.

The trouble with nostalgia, there's no future in it.

Folks who don't like what they see in the crystal ball have taken to viewing life through the reverse end of the telescope.

Instead of looking on today as tomorrow's yesterday, think of it as being yesterday's tomorrow.

The lesson to remember about the good old days is that you can't take 'em with you.

Publicized Candidacies Increase Planning Commission Choices

If there is any lingering doubt that planning is a hot matter in Novato, the healthy turnout of candidates for appointment to the planning commission should dispel it.

Interest was expected to be spurred by the recent debates about the city's proposed new general plan, but the number of applicants, 10, was still a surprise.

Incidentally, the turnout of 10 applicants came shortly after the Independent-Journal had battled to make public the names of persons being considered for appointment to city commissions and committees.

At that time Mayor F. Wayne Sartain was hesitant, commenting that the publication of names might discourage some able persons from applying.

Apparently in the past, a would-be commissioner could submit his name, and if not chosen, wouldn't suffer embarrassment, loss of face or whatever through publicity.

One of the applicants, Col. John F. Taylor, said he believed the publicity and consequent interviews of candidates by the Independent-Journal were good.

"The more people you get interested, theoretically, the better choice you will have," he said.

THE CITY HAD many aplicants, not only for the planning commission, but also for the parks and recreation commission and several committees.

Under the city's current policy, the lists will be updated every six months to assure that those on the list are still interested in serving.

The procedure now, with publication of names, interviews by the council, and up-to-date lists, is certainly tidier than in the past.

In past years, the council would have a secret session for a few minutes or more and then come out and announce that so-and-so was appointed.

Members of the audience might or might not have known that so-and-so was being considered, but most likely didn't know who else might have been considered.

THE COUNCIL'S choices this time were George McDaniel, a veterinarian, and Robert Glascock, a construction superintendent for Condiotti Enterprises.

The appointment of Glascock, a representative of the building and construction industry, on the commission might raise a few eyebrows among environmentalists, but apparently councilmen believed it would provide some balance on the commission.

State Will Observe Day For Truman

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan has ordered all but the emergency functions of state government to shutdown Thursday for an "official day of mourning" for former President Harry S Truman.

In proclaiming the day of mourning, Reagan gave most state workers the day off Thursday. He said state offices would maintain work forces to meet emergency situations and to provide vitally necessary public services.

A spokesman for Reagan said the day of mourning would not be exactly like a state holiday because it was uncertain how many state employes would be needed on the job.

"I call upon all businesses and all citizens to join in the observance of this day which is being set aside to honor the memory of former President Truman," Reagan said Tuesday in a statement issued by his office.

Russian Wants To Go To France

MOSCOW (UPI) —Andrei D. Sinyavsky, a Russian author released from prison last year after serving five and a half years for alleged anti-Soviet activity, has applied to emigrate to France, dissident sources said Tuesday.

Sinyavsky, 46, made the application to the Soviet visa office. He has received no reply as yet, the sources said.

State Hierarchy Pretends Bagley Act Still Law

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

California's public education hierarchy seems intent on pretending that Proposition 21 did not pass and the Bagley Act is still on the lawbooks.

Proposition 21 did pass on Nov. 7, by an overwhelming margin. It was in two parts. The first part declares: "No public school student shall, because of his race, creed, or color, be assigned to or required to attend a particular school." The second part repeals the Bagley Act, which provided that school districts should make annual surveys of the racial balance in each school and each grade and prepare plans for eliminating imbalance where found.

Under the California Constitution, a ballot measure passed by the people becomes law immediately on certification of the election returns. So the Bagley Act no longer is in existence.

HOWEVER, at the California State Board of Education's December meeting, State Supt. Wilson C. Riles presented comments from the Department of Education's legal staff on "implications of Proposition 21."

The legal staff noted that three challenges of the proposition are in the courts: in Santa Barbara, San Bernardino and Sacramento counties. The staff then speculated that "an independent action could be filed against the State Board of Education to require them (sic) to adopt regulations under the Bagley Act."

Therefore, said Riles — on advice of his legal staff — the state board should either (1) continue to develop guidelines for implementing the Bagley Act, or (2) wait and see what happens in the courts.

THE BOARD DECIDED to continue to develop guidelines for implementing the non-existent act. On motion of Mark T. Gates Jr. of Los Angeles, it voted to have the committee that was appointed to work out the Bagley Act guidelines "continue development of regulations which would alleviate... ethnic, racial or economic conflict."

The committee members, accordingly, will travel around the state, running up bills, and chart proposed methods of alleviating "ethnic, racial or economic conflict" — all under authority of an act that has been repealed.

Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, author of the act, has himself entered the Santa Barbara case, filing an amicus curiae brief attacking the constitutionality of both Proposition 21 and the method by which it was qualified for the ballot. He claims it should have been a referendum instead of an initiative.

Given the usual court delays, the suit cannot be expected to reach the California Supreme Court in less than two years. If appeal is carried to the United States Supreme Court, it may be four or five years before the issue is decided.

IN THE MEANTIME, according to the resolution passed by the state board, the Bagley Act-authorized committee will go on spending money and making rules just as if the act were still law.

The legality of such expenses might be subject to question. The Department of Education's legal staff, however, did not speculate as to whether a taxpayer suit might be filed as result of such spending.

Newton L. Steward, president, 936 Manzanita Avenue, Eureka 95501; John R. Ford, vice president, 2534 Imperial Avenue, San Diego 92102; Mrs. Marion W. Sentencing Set On Armed Robbery

LeRoy Raymond Quintana, 29, of Novato, is to appear in Marin Superior Court Tuesday for sentencing on two counts of armed robbery.

He entered guilty pleas to the charges in an appearance before Judge Samuel W. Gardiner on Friday. Quintana was arrested Oct. 3 by San Rafael police. Officers reported three men complained that Quintana pointed a gun at them and demanded their wallets, at Third and Tamalpais streets.

Russia Still Dominant In Chess

By LARRY ELDRIDGE
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

Bobby Fischer's victory over Boris Spassky struck a big blow for western chess, but don't get the idea it ended Russia's overall domination of the game.

The Soviet Union still has more top players than the rest of the world put together, as it proved a couple of years ago by winning a match under such terms. Now in addition to this old guard, the Russians have come up with a 21-year-old sensation, Anatoly Karpov, the man they hope will win back the title for them in the not too distant future.

Americans got a first-hand look at this newest Soviet grandmaster during the international tournament recently in San Antonio, Tex., and he showed them plenty. There were chess luminaries present from all over the world, but Karpov still tied for first place with his countryman Tigran Petrosian, the former world champion, and Hungarian star Lajos Portisch.

Both Fischer and Spassky turned down invitations to play in the wake of their summer-long title struggle, but the new champion did show up on the final day and immediately became the main attraction. He was surprisingly gregarious, shaking hands, signing autographs, granting interviews, and showing none of the moody, petulant, arrogant image he conveyed during the match in Iceland.

Questions turned quickly to Fischer's immediate plans — especially the possibility of a title defense. Under the current international system, the next championship match isn't scheduled until 1975, but Fischer has indicated he wants to defend his title more frequently than that, and there's been a lot of talk about a rematch with Spassky, perhaps next year.

Money is always a big item with Fischer, however, and the 29-year old American made it clear that his price comes high nowadays. He doesn't like to mention specific figures, but he pointed out that professional golf tournaments offer first prizes of up to $50,000. Furthermore, he said, chess is more difficult than golf, and a chess tourney takes about a month compared to one weekend.

So how much should be put up for a chess event?

"You figure it out," he said.

Fischer said he still considered Spassky the best player around — present company excluded, of course. Asked about up-and-coming players who might be future challengers, he agreed there were a few around, but when he was pressed to identify them he laughed and said: "I don't want to encourage them."

Karpov's name naturally came up, but Fischer wasn't about to give the young Russian star any ego trip.

"I've hardly heard of him," Fischer deadpanned.

A better guess would be that Fischer is very much aware of everything Karpov has done, and is already studying his games in much the same way he pored over those of Petrosian, Spassky, and other prospective foes. But, as he said why encourage the competition?

Actually, few people had heard of Karpov until about a year ago, when he burst into international prominence with first place in the Alekhine Memorial Tournament in Moscow ahead of Spassky, Petrosian and many other big names. Now his followup in San Antonio demonstrates conclusively that the earlier triumph was no fluke.

Karpov won seven games, drew seven, and lost just one in the 16-player round robin competition. Portisch had the same score, while the notoriously cautious Petrosian played nine draws and six wins to come out with the same total of 10 and one-half points.

Petrosian and Karpov were tied for first place entering the last round, with Portisch half a point behind them. Both leaders had the white pieces, and thus the advantage of the first move. But by an apparent pre-arrangement they settled for quick draws, Petrosian playing only 10 moves against Duncan Suttles of Canada while Karpov made only nine against Henrique Mecking of Brazil.

Either of the Russians might have tried for victory and thus risk a defeat in hopes of winning the tournament outright, but they played it safe. Portisch then won his final game to catch up.

There were four Americans in the field, but not one could manage even a .500 performance. Donald Byrne's 10th place finish was the best U.S. showing, with Larry Evans coming in 11th, Anthony Saidy tied for 14th, and Kenneth Smith last.

Yes, Fischer may be the world champion, but except for him, it looks as though the U.S. still has quite a bit of catching up to do.

Louis Pasteur

The man who discovered that germs cause infectious disease was born on this date in France 150 years ago. Louis Pasteur is best known for the discovery of the process of pasteurization. In this process, milk is heated for a short time. This stops the growth of germs in the milk, A similar process was developed by Pasteur to insure purity in beer and wine. He is also credited with saving the silk industry in France, when he discovered the bacteria destroying the silk worm. In his later years, he worked to prevent several animal diseases, and developed a successful treatment for rabies.

DO YOU KNOW — Who discovered how to protect man from smallpox through vaccination?

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

It's international birthday time again! Can you guess where today's greats were born? Germany, France, or Canada?

1. LOUIS PASTEUR, professor of chemistry, lived from 1822 to 1895. Discoveries by this university researcher not only made possible the scientific processing of milk, beer, and wine but proved that people could be protected against disease by inoculation. He was born in —?

2. CYRUS EATON, wealthy American industrialist, is 89 today. This prominent Cleveland financier spends money financing "big think" seminars and also invests much of his time authoring books on philosophy, politics, and banking. He was born in —?

3. MARLENE DIETRICH, Hollywood film beauty, reaches 71 today. A legend in her own time, this dreamy-eyed actress and singer was America's heart-throb when Von Sternberg chose her to sing "falling in love again" in his 1930 film classic, "The Blue Angel." She was born in —?

4. JOHANNES KEPLER (1571-1630), a brilliant astronomer, helped our modern space program by his study of the stars. He completed the astronomical tables begun by Tyco Brahe to prove that God's plan for the universe was mathematical harmony. He thereby discovered three laws of planetary motion. His birthplace was —?

ANSWERS: 1 - Pasteur (France); 2 - Eaton (Canada); Dietrich (Germany); 4 - Kepler (Germany).

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

East Learns That High Cards Alone Won't Win The Big Hand

People sometimes thoughtlessly say that bridge is a game of high cards. If you're lucky enough to be dealt enough high cards, you'll win; otherwise, you'll lose. The fallacy in this kind of claim is shown in a hand played in the recent playoff to pick the North American team for the 1973 world championship.

EAST LUCKY?

Wasn't East lucky to be dealt those 21 points in high cards! What a winner he was sure to be! But let's see how Fate slipped East a Mickey.

New York expert Bill Grieve simply wasn't going to pass the South hand even though he was vulnerable and had heard East's opening bid of two notrump. He bid three clubs to start with, knowing that there would be further bidding.

A QUESTION

"Is that anything special?" West asked Grieve's partner. (So many club bids have a special meaning that you learn to take nothing for granted.) "I think it's for the majors," George Rapee answered. He dimly remembered a discussion five years earlier in which he and Grive had decided that clubs more than notrump should be for major suit takeout, or perhaps not. Five years is a long time to remember.

RIGHT HAND

If South wanted majors, Rapee has the right hand; so he jumped to four spades. Grieve had to bid five clubs, and now see how lucky East was. His opponents obviously didn't know what they were doing! "Double," he announced.

South won the opening lead with the ace of diamonds, cashed the ace of hearts and ruffed a heart in dummy. He ruffed a spade in his hand, and ruffed another low heart in dummy. When the king of hearts fell, it was all over. South drew trumps and claimed the rest, making his doubled game contract.

WHAT YOU MAKE

"You've simply proved that distribution is luckier than high cards," you may object. Not so. At the other table South passed with his fine distribution, and his opponents bid and made three no-trump. Luck is what you make it.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with two no-trump (22 to 24 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - J 8 6 5 3 2
♥ - 10
♦ - 10 7 3
♣ - 10 5 3.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three spades. You will probably get to four spades as a final contract. If you cannot make four spades, the consolation is that your partner might well have gone down if you had passed him at two no-trump.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Physicians Can Now Determine Congenital Defects In Fetus

Physicians now can determine whether a pregnant woman is carrying a fetus with congenital defects. During the 15th or 16th week of pregnancy, a small amount of amniotic fluid is removed from the bag of waters in the uterus for chromosomal analysis. Testing requires about 14 days.

The procedure is not recommended for the majority of pregnant women, but will help alleviate the anxiety of the small percentage of women most likely to give birth to babies with chromosomal aberrations that cause a variety of defects. If the test is positive, the family will be given the option for therapeutic abortion.

AMNIOTIC FLUID analysis or amniocentesis now is considered the best way to reduce the number of mongoloid births. The procedure is aimed mainly at pregnant women over 40 (some physicans say 35) years of age in whom the risk of having a mongoloid child is the greatest.

Statisticians tell us that although only 13.5 per cent of the babies are born to women over 35, these same women produce over 50 per cent of the mongoloids. The overall figure is one infant with a significant chromosomal abnormality in 200 live births. But in mothers 40 to 45 years of age, there is one mongoloid per 66 births, and one in 21 infants born to mothers 45 and older.

THE RISK attending amniotic fluid testing is not as great as giving birth to a mongoloid child. In a series of 155 amniotic fluid analyses by Dr. H.L. Nadler of Children's Memorial Hospital in Chicago, there were no immediate complications. Premature births occurred in seven. But significant chromosomal aberrations were noted in 85 of the 155 women.

These and other reports have led authorities to believe that at least one-quarter of all mongoloids expected to be born each year could be recognized early in pregnancy by this procedure. This would result in tremendous savings in the cost of custodial care and spare the parents many heartaches.

NIGHTMARES

Mrs. S. M. writes: My 18-year-old grandson has nightmares and often gets up, dresses, and goes outside for a while. Then he goes back to bed, fully dressed. He also moves things around the room without waking. A few nights ago he broke his heavy bed. He awoke on the floor, with a cut on his leg, and pain in the stomach. Can you give me some advice on this boy?

REPLY

He needs medical attention, as he may have epilepsy.

LAXATIVES

S. A. writes: Is it safe to take a mild laxative every day to reduce?

REPLY

It is safe, but rather silly. Laxatives remove waste material that is about to be eliminated under its own power. Stronger purges remove water — not fat. Why not eat more roughage that is low in calories and filling? It is more logical and will take the place of the laxative.

LEG FRACTURE

B. K. writes: Can a woman of 60 who broke a leg ever walk again?

REPLY

Yes — after the fracture is set and healing is complete. She may have a residual limp.

U.S. Protests Bomb Criticism

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The State Department has "protested strongly" Swedish Prime Minister Olaf Palme's criticism of American bombing of North Vietnam and has decided to keep the U.S. charge d'affaires to Stockholm, John Guthrie, in Washington for the time being.

Guthrie is in Washington. A State Department spokesman said: "He will not return, at least for the time being."

The spokesman said Guthrie's remaining here was related to the U.S. government's reaction to a statement by Palme that the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam was an outrage to be compared with Nazi massacres of World War II.

Seven Hurt In Fire At Hotel

OAKLAND (UPI) — A three-alarm fire forced the evacuation of 101 persons Tuesday night from the five-story San Pablo Hotel.

Seven persons were hospitalized for smoke inhalation, hysteria and slight burns. There were no serious injuries.

Assistant Chief Clyde Langlois estimated damage to the wood and stucco building at 20th Street and San Pablo Avenue at approximately $80,000.

The College Yearbooks Dying Off

PALO ALTO (BW) — Time has begun to catch up with the college yearbooks — Tomes of campus trivia, gossip and athletic lore. Like homecomings, proms and Greek life in general, yearbooks are becoming a dying breed, reports California Business, financial weekly of the west.

Their editors, much like the publishers of the expiring Life and the already dead Look and Saturday Evening Post, cite rising costs, heavy debt and a rapidly changing and unpredictable audience as the cause.

Stanford University's 76-year-old "Quad" failed last year because of financial problems and "general student apathy." The 500-page hardcover book, which sold for $10, was nearly $12,000 in debt when it folded.

Yearbook sales at the Palo Alto school faced heavy sales resistance as the result of "changing campus mores," says a Stanford official.

The University of Oregon's "Oregana," first published in 1910, "died a very easy death" four years ago, says a campus representative.

She blamed general student disinterest that led to declining subscriptions for killing off the $10 hardcover book.

Roy Paul Nelson, professor of journalism and 1947 editor of the "Oregana," is more specific: "Students no longer feel part of a close-knit organization. It's not like in the old days when everyone knew everyone.

"When I was editor we played up the fraternities and sororities," he says. "Now, most of them are dead. It was the Greek houses that generated the most interest and revenue for the publication."

Another factor Nelson believes contributed to the problem was overly zealous editors. "The editors became more and more dissatisfied with editing — moving more and more towards a magazine and cause-oriented format.

"That wasn't what the people wanted. The kids weren't interested in seeing how creative the editors could be. They wanted a record book," he asserts.

The University of Washington's $10 "Tyee", first published in 1900, also went under last year. Long considered one of the more successful college yearbooks, says Barbara Miller, public information officer, student interest bottomed out along with school spirit.

"This could be the last year for UCLA's 63-year-old "Southern Campus," laments Harry Morris, student publications manager. He also points to the demise of Greek social organizations as the key.

The University of California at Berkeley has turned to an abbreviated format this year in an attempt to stay out of debt. By switching to a much smaller paperbound book, Arthur Choy, manager of the "Blue and Gold", hopes to reverse a trend which has seen sales slipping by 1,000 books a year since 1968.

The business school graduate student says interest may be perking up, evidenced by an increased staff this year, but prospects for the 100-year-old publication remain dim.

"Our yearbook still makes money," beams an office of student publications staffer at the University of Southern California. USC's El Rodeo, published since 1914, even manages to clear several thousand dollars a year, she says.

ALMANAC

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Wednesday, Dec. 27, the 362nd day of 1972 with four to follow.

The moon is in its last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Mars. The evening stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

Louis Pasteur, noted French bacteriologist, was born Dec. 27, 1822.

For draft eligibles the lottery number is 280.

On this day in history:

In 1941, Japanese airplanes bombed Manila in the Philippines, despite the fact it had been declared an open city.

In 1945, the United States, Russia and Britain announced they would govern Korea as joint trustees for five years, then grant independence.

In 1963, the U.S. Commerce Department authorized the sale of surplus wheat to Russia.

In 1968, the Apollo 8 astronauts returned to Earth after a trip around the moon 10 times, preparatory to later moon-landing missions.

A thought for the day: British physicist John Tyndall said: "It is as fatal as it is cowardly to blink facts because they are not to our taste."

San Rafael air quality yesterday:

Oxidants, clean air.

Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.

Carbon monoxide, light air pollution.

Smoke particles, light air pollution.

Other areas:

San Francisco, clean air.

San Jose, significant air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, while the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

$100,000 Award To Pilot Upheld

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The California Supreme Court Tuesday upheld a $100,000 award to a test pilot who accused his employer of failing to discover cancer during a physical examination.

The decision was handed down in the case of Robert D. Coffee, a retired Air Force pilot who sued the McDonnell-Douglas Corp.

Coffee said in his original suit that he took a physical exam and this showed an unusual blood condition which should have resulted in further testing.

But, he said, no further examinations were made until March 1967 when he collapsed. He said a Navy doctor eventually diagnosed his condition as cancer of the bone marrow.

Coffee said he eventually returned to work as a test pilot but sued his employer. After Coffee won a court verdict, the company appealed, resulting in the Supreme Court decision.

Hughes In London

LONDON (UPI) —Millionaire recluse Howard Hughes, who fled the Nicaraguan capital of Managua after last week's devastating earthquake, arrived in Britain late Tuesday, official sources said today.

Welfare Cases Show Decline

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Reagan administration has reported California's welfare case-load declined to 2,037,716 persons in November for the eighth consecutive monthly drop.

State Welfare Director Robert B. Carlseon also said in the report Tuesday that welfare costs last month were $163,734,463, an increase of $80,755 over October and a jump of $547,408 from November, 1971.

The caseload total for last month fell by 6,586, making it the 17th caseload decline in the last 20 months. The last time the welfare caseload increased was in March of this year.

Holiday Traffic Toll Was 592

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The National Safety Council estimated another 430 to 530 persons would die in traffic accidents New Year's weekend. The council said nearly 100 lives could be saved next weekend if safety belts and shoulder harnesses are worn by automobile travelers.

The United Press International Christmas count showed 592 persons died in traffic accidents, 53 in fires, 9 in plane mishaps and 34 in other accidents, for a total of 688 accidental deaths between 6 p.m. local time Friday and midnight Monday.

Fault Said Underlying Plant Site

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The head of a U.S. Geological Survey (USGS) team says aerial photographs show there is a possibility an active earthquake fault lies beneath the proposed site for the nation's largest coastal nuclear power plant.

Frank McKnown, of the USGS team, said data from photographs of the 586-acre site, 100 air miles north of San Francisco on the Mendocino Coast, raises the possibility that it is within reach of the San Andreas Fault zone.

A spokesman for Pacific Gas & Electric Co. said additional surveys of the area for the $830 million facility are planned and will be submitted to the Atomic Energy Commission in March. But current plans for the big nuclear plant near Point Arena remain unchanged.

"Our applications are still active and we're hoping to have them approved," said PG&E's news director Lawrence R. McDonald.

The company hopes to have the first unit in by 1978, said Kip Newton, nuclear information specialist for PG&E.

Hayes Pays Tribute To Truman

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)—Woody Hayes, the Ohio State football coach, wanted to pay his respects to Harry Truman.

"I always ask myself what kind of a football coach a man would have made," Hayes said at a Rose Bowl luncheon Tuesday. "He (Truman) would have been a great one.

"He had to make the greatest decision ever, ever, ever made and he made it. He decided to drop the atomic bomb in order to save lives—both American and Japanese lives.

"A lot of people didn't vote for him but they supported him. He was typical of the type of American this country has turned out."

Hayes' tribute to the former President was greeted by applause at the annual Tournament of Rose football writers luncheon at the Annandale Country Club here.

Both Hayes and John McKay of Southern California underwent a question-and-answer session during which the big question concerned the national championship.

While USC already has won the UPI coaches' national title, the Ohio State coach has said the Rose Bowl should decide it all.

But Hayes refused to go into the matter in front of McKay, saying only, "There will be other people who will decide that."

McKay refused to back down and said:

"We're the national champions because UPI has voted us No. 1. We've already won it."

The Trojans' coach, whose teams have won three UPI national championships in the last 11 years, was questioned about using only 12 of the 16 days allotted to him for practice for the Rose Bowl.

"I don't see any reason to use the full 16 days," he said. "We don't need all that time to get in condition. Bob Devaney of Nebraska used only 11 days to get ready for the Orange Bowl game last season and he did pretty well. Notre Dame is taking only nine days this year.

"I think it's what you do with the time when you practice. We only practice one hour and 15 minutes a day but we accomplish a lot. We intend to play very, very well."

Then McKay grinned impishly and added, "Of course, if we lose I'll have to go back to the dressing room and think about an alibi."

Questioned about USC's outstanding speed, Hayes noted, "They're (the Trojans) faster than Michigan, faster than we are, faster than anyone."

The Ohio State coach called the Trojans "better" than Michigan, the team the Buckeyes beat to earn the Big Ten's trip to the Rose Bowl.

Hayes, an irascible sort who will be 60 next year, was asked if his pleasant demeanor since arriving in Southern California this trip meant he had mellowed.

"Never," he smiled. "I'm too old to change. The biggest mistake a person can make is to change just because other people around you are changing."

In the Rose Bowl for the fifth time in seven years, Southern Cal is a two-touchdown favorite and the writers agreed in a straw vote. Eighty-eight picked the Trojans by an average spread of 14 points while 15 voted for Ohio State by a five-point average spread. One writer said the game was going to end in a tie.

'WHICH WAY TO BOURBON STREET?' University of Oklahoma football coach Chuck Fairbanks held a discussion with halfback Grant Burget — ostensibly about football, but maybe not — as the Sooners worked out in the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans in preparation for their meeting with Penn State Sunday. WEST QB UNDECIDED

Huff To Start For East

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Gary Huff of Florida State opens at quarterback for the East in Saturday's Shrine Classic but the West quarterback remains undecided.

West Coach Dee Andros of Oregon State said he'll wait until the last minute to decide whether Ty Paine of Washington State or Iowa State's George Amundson would get the starting nod.

"I'll make the choice myself but I hate to do it too quickly," said the Great Pumpkin. "I want to be fair to the kids, but they'll just about split time anyway."

East Coach Carmen Cozza of Yale said he chose Huff over Mike Wells of Illinois because Huff "has more experience in the type of offense we will run."

Joining Huff in the East backfield will be Otis Armstrong of Purdue and Duke's Steve Jones. Jim Lash of Northwestern and Tennessee State's James Thaxton will be the receivers.

The West will counter with Nat "Puddin'" Jones and Terry Metcalf at running backs. Steve Sweeney of California and San Diego State's Isaac Curtis are the wide receivers while Washington's John Brady will be the tight end.

Cozza said Dick Jauron, whom he coached at Yale where he gained 1,055 yards, would be used at both fullback and tailback.

The East tackles are Paul Seymour of Michigan and Ed Newman of Duke, with guards Bill Singletary of Temple and Joe DeLamielleure of Michigan State flanking center Larry McCarren of Illinois.

SONICS SCORE — Dick Snyder (10) of the Seattle SuperSonics drove past the Warriors' Rick Barry for a layup in the first period of their National Basketball Association game last night in Oakland. The Warriors' Clyde Lee (43) watched. Seattle won, 97-95. (UPI Telephoto)

Bills' Simpson Is MVP Winner

NEW YORK (UPI)—O.J. Simpson was a happy man when he found out Lou Saban was named the Buffalo Bills' new coach last season and he showed why.

Simpson, running behind a line riddled by injuries, emerged as pro football's leading rusher this season with 1,251 yards, and was rewarrded today when he was named United Press International's American Football Conference Player of the Year.

Simpson received 15 votes in balloting of 39 pro football writers, three from each conference city, to easily outdistance rookie running sensation Franco Harris of Pittsburgh, second with eight. Quarterback Earl Morrall of Miami was third with six votes and Dolphin teammate Larry Csonka took fourth with five. Five other players received one vote each.

Simpson, the Bills' No. 1 draft choice four years ago after winning the Heisman Trophy in a sensational record-breaking career at Southern California, didn't blossom fully as a pro until this season. And the main reason was Saban.

The Bills concentrated on a passing game in recent years but Saban, who helped develop Floyd Little into one of the league's premier runners at Denver, changed all that. He made Simpson the Bills' workhorse and the 6-foot-2, 207-pounder responded with six 100-yard performances.

Harris, the Steelers' No. 1 draft choice out of Penn State, moved into a starting job midway though the season when Frenchy Fuqua and Preston Pearson were hurt and became the most talked about runner in the AFC. He tied a league record set by Jim Brown when he rushed for 100 or more yards in six consecutive games and only a series of injuries to his offensive line may have prevented him from breaking it.

Harris gained 1,056 yards despite his slow start and was a prime reason for the Steelers' first title in 40 years of NFL play.

Morrall, the 38-year-old veteran of 17 NFL campaigns, emerged from the shadows when Bob Griese was hurt in Miami's fifth game and quarterbacked the Dolphins to a league-record 14 victories without a defeat. Morrall, traded from Baltimore to Miami before the season, emerged as the No. 1 passer in the AFC.

Csonka, the bulldozer fullback of the Dolphins, was one of five 1,000-yard rushers in the AFC.

Other Player of the Year votes went to Nick Buoniconti and Paul Warfield of Miami, Joe Namath of New York, Terry Bradshaw of Pittsburgh and Daryle Lamonica of Oakland.

Another Bummer For Seals

VANCOUVER, B.C. (UPI)—It was a gala homecoming for defenseman Ted McAneeley but a bummer for the rest of the California Golden Seals.

McAneeley scored his first two goals of the season Tuesday night to twice give the Seals the lead, but it wasn't enough as the Vancouver Canucks bounced back three times to eke out a 4-3 victory.

Tonight, the Seals are at the Oakland Coliseum-Arena to skate against the Philadelphia Flyers.

McAneeley, who was born in Cranbrook, B.C., and now lives at North Vancouver, opened the scoring for the Seals at 12:30 of the first period with an unassisted goal. After John Wright tied the score 18 seconds later, McAneeley took feeds from center Walt McKechnie and defenseman Darryl Maggs to beat goalie Dunc Wilson at 15:24 and boost California into a 2-1 advantage.

Then Don Tannahill got hot for Vancouver. He tallied a three-goal hat trick to pull it out.

After Tannahill's 10th goal knotted the count at 2-2 at the end of the opening period, rookie Stan Weir put the Seals ahead for the third time with his fourth goal 2:16 into the middle period.

From then on, goalie Wilson shut off the Seals attack while Tannahill tallied in the second period and completed the scoring 31 seconds into the final period. Wilson was forced to come up with numerous saves on breakaways in the third period to preserve the win.

Vancouver rifled 41 shots at Seals goalie Gilles Meloche including 19 in a wide-open final period.

Terra Linda Wins Long Game; San Marin Zapped

Taking advantage of the longer game to experiment and substitute, Terra Linda High School got double-figure point production from five players and defeated College of Marin's freshman basketball team yesterday in Kentfield, 85-62.

In the only other game involving a prep team from the county, San Marin High became the 14th victim of undefeated St. Elizabeth in Oakland, 112-59, although Fred Doar scored 30 points for the Mustangs.

Terra Linda (5-7) played a college-length game of two 20-minute halves. "We got to play a lot of people, and we experimented a bit — we man-pressed them and zone-pressed them and a few other things," said coach Bob Corley.

Rich Mullin scored 15 points, Mark Lowey 13, Scott Logan and Larry Chiaroni 12 each and Mike Austin 10 for the Trojans. The rebounding was similarly balanced, with Scott Logan's 10 the best on a team which outrebounded Marin, 49-38.

The Tars' Rick Love, who played for Terra Linda last year, singed his old mates for 20 points in his first game after recovering from a knee injury.

San Marin (6-3) was blitzed by a team which has exceeded 100 points six times this season. St. Elizabeth shot 65 per cent from the field (47 or 72), piled up a 54-27 rebounding advantage, and did everything else except stop Doar, who had the best scoring night of his career. Doar made 10 straight free throws at one stage of the game.

College Cage Tourneys Scheduled

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

'Tis the season for the big holiday basketball jousts and West Coast teams are right in the thick of things tonight.

At Portland, Oregon, Oregon State and Washington State host the 17th Far West Classic against five invaders, including national powerhouse Minnesota. The Gophers bluntly say they are going for the national title this year and this is a good test for them.

The Oregon teams each have 5-2 records, and 11-time champ Oregon State traditionally plays super basketball at the Far West Classic.

Washington, which has lost just one and appars to be second only to UCLA among Pac-8 teams, also gets a stiff test as it journeys to the Hawaiian Islands to try its luck in the Rainbow Classic.

An Allen Prediction: Staubach Will Start

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Washington Coach George Allen predicted today his rival Dallas strategist Tom Landry will start Roger Staubach instead of Craig Morton when the Redskins and Cowboys clash in their National Conference playoff Sunday.

"I expect Staubach to be their quarterback but whichever it is, we'll be ready," Allen said of the contest which will decide the National Football Conference championship with the winner going to Super Bowl VII against either Pittsburgh or Miami in Los Angeles Jan. 14.

Staubach sat out most of the year after sustaining a shoulder separation in pre-season play but replaced Morton in the final period against San Francisco Saturday and turned a 15-point deficit into a 30-28 Dallas victory.

Morton was at the helm for the Cowboys in the two regular season confrontations between the two divisional rivals. Washington won the first meeting, 24-20, but the Cowboys recouped in their second contest, 34-24.

Allen described the Redskins first full-scale workout as "not as good as our first one last week" when Washington began preparations for the 16-3 playoff victory over the young Green Bay Packers.

Larry Brown, the NFC's leading rusher, was running full tilt, showing little evidence of the injuries that forced him to sit out Washington's successive losses to Dallas and the Buffalo Bills on the final two weeks of the regular season.

Brown, who hobbled off the field with a strained knee but returned against Green Bay to collect 101 yards on 25 carries, told newsmen: "I'm 95 per cent ready. I'll be ready."

Also in uniform was offensive guard John Wilbur who sat out the Packer game because of a kidney injury. Allen thought he would be ready for action against the Cowboys.

The only Redskin not practicing Tuesday was tackle Terry Hermeling who was under the weather with a touch of flu.

Too Much Haywood; Sonics Tip Warriors

OAKLAND (UPI)—Spencer Haywood was a one-man band while most of the Golden State Warriors were hitting sour notes.

As a result, the Seattle SuperSonics were able to snap a seven-game losing streak and win their first game on the road in 14 starts by edging past the Warriors 97-95 Tuesday night.

Haywood, a 6-foot-8 forward, tallied a season-high 42 points on 18 of 30 field goal attempts. He also snagged 14 rebounds and had three assists.

"Spencer did it all for us tonight," said Sonics coach Tom Nissalke who is under fire for the 11-29 record of his squad. "It was the best team game he's had this season. He only took four bad shots but was great in all other phases of the game."

Regarding the team as a whole, Nissalke said, "We did some things tonight we haven't been doing. We moved the ball around well and played good team defense."

Whether it was good defense or an off night for the Warriors, they hit a miserable 32.1 per cent from the floor including a frigid 26.3 in the first half while falling behind 52-39.

In contrast, the Sonics finished with a shooting percentage of .457. Seattle's Dick Snyder helped out Haywood by collecting a career high of 12 rebounds.

For the Warriors, Rick Barry hit on only 5 of 22 from the field while Clyde Lee, the other forward, was 0-for-7 in 34 minutes. However, Lee managed to pull down 16 rebounds.

Center Nate Thurmond topped the Warriors with 25 points and 23 rebounds.

"We just weren't penetrating," said Warrior coach Al Attles. "We can't win consistently from the outside. I can understand why we have an off-shooting night but we just didn't play aggressive basketball."

Golden State next hosts the Cleveland Cavaliers Thursday night at the Coliseum-Arena.

Air Battle Expected In North-South Test

MIAMI (UPI)—The question of whether Mercury Morris or Jim Kiick will start next Sunday is an old one. It's been asked every week since September.

Of course, it was asked again this week, and it got the same old answer from Coach Don Shula: "It could be Kiick or Morris."

It seems likely that Morris will start the AFC championship game at Pittsburgh, but Shula emphasized Tuesday that he will "alternate them as we have all year."

Kiick started last Sunday in the 20-14 playoff win over Cleveland and Morris also saw a lot of action.

"I thought both of them played very well. Both were certainly instrumental in us winning," Shula said. "We started to run inside effectively in the third quarter. When we got that accomplished we were able to get outside some too."

It will be a homecoming in the truest sense of the word for Morris.

"Where Three Rivers Stadium is now, I used to live on the 25-yard line on Shore Avenue," Morris said. "They tore the place down to build the stadium a few years ago.

"I lived there for about three weeks when I was a kid," he said. "I was in the eighth grade and my folks moved back into the city. I was going to have to change schools, but I decided to move back to stay with my grandparents so I wouldn't have to change."

It will be Morris's first performance in the Pittsburgh area since 1964 when he was a senior halfback for Avonworth High School.

Morris, a 1,000-yard rusher this year, admitted he was thinking about playing in his hometown even before the Cleveland game.

"When I saw the Steelers on TV Saturday, I was trying not to, but I was thinking past Cleveland," Morris said.

He was apparently impressed with the Steelers' performance against Oakland.

"I realize it's going to take a maximum effort and I'm trying to get myself psychologically prepared," Morris said. "They're going to be up there with a lot of hooraw and all those armies (Franco's Italian Army and Gerela's Gorillas). All that hooraw doesn't do anything but excite us, especially me."

Rod-Gun Dance

Marin Rod and Gun Club will hold its New Year's Eve dance Sunday night beginning at 10 o'clock at the clubhouse, Point San Quentin. Reservations can be made at the clubhouse or from dance chairman A. M. Dewey.

7 EX-SEALS ALL-STARS IN NEW LEAGUE

SANTA ANA (AP) — The California Golden Seals may be struggling in last place in their division of the National Hockey League, but they are tearing up the new World Hockey Association by proxy.

Seven former Seals were named to the 21-man East all-star team announced Tuesday, which will meet the West Jan. 6 in the first WHA All-Star game in Quebec City.

One, forward Tom Webster of the New England Whalers, was a unanimous choice. Two others, forward Garry Jarrett and defenseman Paul Schmyr, both of Cleveland, also were selected for the first team.

Forward Wayne Carleton of Ottawa was named to the second team. Third-team selections were forwards Bobby Sheehan of New York and Gerry Pinder of Cleveland. On the fourth forward line was Norm Ferguson of New York.

LIVED ON 25-YARD LINE

Mercury's Homecoming

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)—The great battle between the North and South over a century ago was fought on the ground, but the war will be brought out of the trenches here tonight as the Blue meets the Gray in one of the nation's oldest all-star football games.

Several of the nation's top offensive performers of the 1972 college season were to be on the field for the 35th annual Blue-Gray game. A crowd of about 23,000 was expected in Montgomery's Cramton Bowl for the game to be produced for national television by Mislou Productions. (The game will be televised in the Bay Area on channels 2 and 40, beginning at 5 p.m.)

An all-out air war appeared in the making with the nation's two top offensive performers on hand to direct the attacks.

North Coach Vince Gibson of Kansas State was expected to start Tony Adams of Utah State at quarterback. South Coach Charles Coffey of Virginia Tech was to counter with his own Don Strock.

Adams finished second in total offense and third in passing in the final national statistics. He completed 204 of 351 passes for 2,787 yards.

Virginia Tech's Strock, however, finished the regular season No. 1 in both total offense and forward passing. He completed 228 of 427 passes for 3,243 yards.

Adams' favorite target is expected to be Utah State teammate Tom Forzani, who led the nation in receiving with 85 catches for 1,169 yards. John Goerger of Kansas State, who led the Big Eight with 57 receptions, also was in the Blue receiving corps.

Strock had two of his Virginia Tech teammates—Mike Brunop and Craig Valentine—available for catching duties.

If the game reverts to a ground battle, the North will have the weapons to make a go of it in the trenches. Gibson could call on Peter Van Valkenburg of Brigham Young, Mike Deutsch of North Dakota or Martin Januszkiewicz of Syracuse. Van Valkenburg was the nation's rushing leader with 1,386 yards.

Slated for duty in the South backfield were Wade Hughes of Clemson, Bill Sadler of TCU, and Ken Garrett of Wake Forest.

New Winter Olympic Bid By Reno-Tahoe Group

SOUTH LAKE TAHOE, Calif. (UPI)—A bid to attract the 1976 Winter Olympic Games to the Lake Tahoe-Reno area was sent to the U.S. Olympic Committee Tuesday.

Eric Auer, former member of the Denver Olympics Organizing Committee, said the effort will be sponsored by representatives of Reno, Carson City and Lake Tahoe.

A rival bid submitted last week by the Tahoe-Squaw Valley Bicentennial Committee would stage the Games at Squaw Valley, Reno and Truckee, but would eliminate most of the Tahoe basin.

Auer said the new bid proposed holding figure skating, hockey and ski jumping at Squaw Valley, site of the 1964 Games. Alpine events would be at Squaw Valley and Heavenly Valley. Cross country skiing and biathlon could be held between Truckee and North Lake Tahoe. Additional skating events would be at the Reno Coliseum, and speed skating could be either at Reno or Carson City, he said.6

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Leisure Spending On The Upswing

For the first time in history Americans are spending more money on leisure pursuits than on national defense. Leisure spending is more than the outlay for new houses. It surpasses the total of all corporate profits and exceeds the total U.S. exports.

These facts, with figures to back them up, were brought out by Howard Larson, president of the Boating Industry Association, in a speech in Chicago earlier this winter.

Boating is a large part of leisure-time activities and in the past summer more than 20 per cent of the population — about 42 million people — participated and enjoyed boating in some form.

It goes very well with almost any other hobby or pastime you can think of.

Look at the many activities it complements so well: camping, swimming, fishing, hunting, bird watching, nature study, photography, and practically every other do-it-yourself hobby there is.

It's also one of the last areas of freedom and innovation left in our over-regulated, regimented lives. Some of the questions I've been asked spell this out:

Q. We have a beautiful retreat in the north woods — but the shore is pebbly and wears out the bottom of our boat. Any suggestions?

A. Lay an old auto tire at the water's edge — as a landing field. If you like, you can sink it into a depression in the stones so it's firmly anchored. Big truck tires are best — and you can use two or three.

Q. I'm taking an extensive trip south this winter. I want to fish wherever I can. Is it worthwhile taking my small outboard motor?

A. If it's a light fishing motor don't go without it. From Key West to Ensenada you can rent boats for a couple of bucks a day, but a motor can cost up to $25.

Q. I'm a duck hunter. Can I train a dog that's a great retriever to work from a boat?

A. Nail one inch strips to a two-foot length of plywood, about a foot wide, to make a "staircase" that you can hang over the side of the boat for the dog to scramble up. Give him a good fitting harness, too, so that someone on board can grab Rover and help him over the gunwale. You'll never lose a bird.

Q. Every picture I take from our boat shows a blur due to movement. Is there an answer?

A. First and foremost, try to take every picture as you are approaching or going away from your subject, rather than when you are passing it broadside. Use the fastest shutter speed you can with the exposure required, and try this: When you are about to snap the shutter, have someone close the throttle. As the boat slows you will feel no vibration.

Q. Is it possible to make your own water skis?

A. Very easily. Use five-eighths inch marine grade plywood. Copy the dimensions from a pair you like. The difficult part is the bend at the front. This is done by saw cuts through all but the bottom ply. Cover the skis with fiber glass and resin. This will hold the bent shape permanently.

Q. We are taking lessons in water ski jumping. Who started it?

A. The first jump on water skis was 25 feet made in 1928 by Dick Pope, who later ran the ski shows at Cypress Gardens, Fla. His son Dick Pope, Jr., is still an aquatic performer.

Celtics Defeat Knicks

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Boston Celtics and the New York Knicks disagree about Dave Cowens' status among National Basketball Association centers but it seems as if the Celtics have a pretty strong case after Tuesday night.

Cowens, the 6-foot-9 tempermental redhead from Florida State, scored a career-high 38 points and took down 20 rebounds Tuesday night as the Celtics downed the Knicks 115-106 to take a 2½-game lead over New York in the Atlantic Division.

Cowens hit 16 points during a second-quarter burst that saw the Celtics take the lead and then added 10 more during the fourth quarter as Boston blew open the game. John Havlicek added 31 points for the Celtics while Walt Frazier was high man for the Knicks with 29.

"Dave is the most versatile center in the league," said Tommy Heinsohn, the Celtics' coach, "and I've been saying that for three years now. Nobody believed me but I think I'm getting through to people now. He was just fantastic on our recent road trip out west."

In other NBA action, Seattle edged Golden State 97-95, Los Angeles crushed Portland 116-92, Houston stopped Phoenix 113-110, Chicago whipped Kansas City-Omaha 117-103, Cleveland romped past Atlanta 115-96, Detroit upended Milwaukee 112-105 and Baltimore thrashed Buffalo 121-104.

Gail Goodrich scored 25 points as the Lakers continued their mastery over Portland. The victory was Los Angeles' 14th without a loss against Portland since the club came into the league.

Rudy Tomjanovich's 31 points, including the go-ahead basket in the final minutes, led Houston over the Suns and Garfield Heard came off the bench to score 19 of his 25 points in the second half as Chicago beat the Kings.

Austin Carr and Len Wilkens combined for 50 points as Cleveland whipped the Hawks and Stu Lantz hit eight of Detroit's last 10 points as the Pistons upset the Bucks. Mike Riordan hit 17 of his 23 points in the first half to lead the Bullets over Buffalo.

BASKETBALL PROSPECTS

It Might Be Big Year For Novato

By LEW CODDINGTON

(Sixth in a series on Marin County Athletic League varsity basketball prospects.)

Last year, when Novato High School's basketball team had four underclassmen in its starting lineup, fans were saying, "wait 'til next year." Now, next year has arrived, and the Hornets expect to contend for the Marin County Athletic League championship.

The fans' hopes were dampened when the team embarked on a five-game losing streak which was ended only last Friday, and left Novato with a 5-6 record at the conclusion of non-league play.

"The problem has been that we haven't been shooting very well — 20 per cent from the field in some games," said coach Jim Carinica. "It's important for us to shoot effectively and limit our turnovers. We do everything else pretty well."

Last year, the Hornets looked to all-league forward Marty Moroski for scoring and leadership. This year, the burden is spread. In fact, Novato may have better balance than any team in the league, which pleases Carinica. "I'd rather have four people getting 10-11-12 points a game than have one man doing it all, because one man can have an off night," he said.

Much of the scoring and most of the rebounding will come from Willie Barnes, 6-5 junior center who leaps exceptionally well. He gets help underneath from 6-2 junior forward Curtis Saine, who inherited the graduated Moroski's spot in the lineup and has been improving game by game, in Carinica's eyes.

Lurking on the wings will be two 5-11 seniors, Joe Powell and Joe Robinson, the latter the team's best outside shooter. The guard corps is deep with 5-11 Tom Conklin and 5-6 Dave Brazell available.

For substitutes, Carinica usually tabs 5-10 Dan Del Rose, who can play guard or forward, and 5-10 junior Tom Bridges at forward.

Barnes, Powell, Robinson and Conklin started last year, while Del Rose saw quite a bit of action, giving the Hornets a unit unmatched in the league as far as playing time together is concerned.

"We have the material," Carinica said. "It's just a matter of consistent scoring. We've tried to stress the fast break all year, but I don't think we've gotten that together yet. It's going to help us if we do. We have a lot of team speed."

Speed, experience, balance and the advantage of having played together will be the strengths of a Novato team which expects to be in the race all the way.

Browns' Skorich Gets New Contract

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

CLEVELAND — Cleveland Browns' head coach Nick Skorich, whose team made it to the American Football Conference playoffs despite losing all exhibition games and three out of its first five regular season contests, Tuesday was given a new three-year contract by owner Art Modell.

Terms of the new contract, which replaced an existing pact that had one more year to run, were not disclosed.

Skorich, who has been head coach since the retirement of Blanton Collier at the end of the 1970 season, led the Browns into the playoffs in 1971 and 1972.

This year the Browns lost the AFC Central Division championships to the Pittsburgh Steelers but made the playoffs as the "wild card" team with the best second place record.

Going against the undefeated Miami Dolphins, the Browns nearly pulled an upset until a last second interception preserved a 20-14 Miami victory Sunday.

This was Skorich's ninth season with the Cleveland organization. He is a former head coach of the Philadelphia Eagles.

"I am delighted with the job that Nick has done for us in the past two years," said Modell.

"After losing all the exhibition games and three of their first five regular season games, to still make the playoffs is quite an accomplishment and I think Nick should be voted coach of the year."

Baseball

SAN JUAN, P.R. — A committee headed by Pittsburgh Pirates star Roberto Clemente has collected some 22 tons of supplies and $50,000 to help aid the victims of Saturday's earthquake in Managua, Nicaragua, and will transport the supplies with the help of planes from the Puerto Rico National Guard and a commercial airline.

Football

Swimming

Hockey

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — Petr Adamik scored on a screen shot late in the third period Tuesday night to give Czechoslovakia a 3-2 win over a youthful United States team in the first round of the world cup of ice hockey.

Tennis

MELBOURNE, Australia — The casualties of top-seeded players mushroomed Wednesday when two more ranked competitors were bundled out of the Australian Open tennis championships at Kooyong.

Australian professional John Alexander was unexpectedly defeated by tenacious French lefthander Patrice Domingues in five gruelling sets, 6-7, 7-6, 3-6, 6-3, 11-9, and another Frenchman, Wonairo Godrella, defeated South Australian veteran Barry Phillips-Moore, 6-4, 7-6, 7-6.

J.V. Basketball

Terra Linda High School's undefeated junior varsity basketball team won its 10th consecutive game yesterday, defeating Ells of Richmond, 63-41, as Steve Johnson scored 21 points and hauled down 12 rebounds. San Marin High's J.V.s defeated St. Elizabeth of Oakland, 50-46.

Nicklaus To Receive Golf Honor Jan. 8

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Arnold Palmer, pro golf's No. 2 all-time money winner behind Jack Nicklaus, Tuesday entered the 47th annual Glen Campbell Los Angeles Open at the Riviera Country Club Jan. 4-7.

A PGA tour member since 1955, the Latrobe, Pa., veteran has won the Los Angeles Open three times—in 1963, 1966 and 1967. Palmer holds the tournament record of 268.

Entries closed Tuesday at 6 p.m. The field will include 55 of the top 60 tour money winners in 1972.

Canadiens Boost Lead Over Bruins

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Montreal Canadiens increased their Eastern Division lead in the National Hockey League Tuesday night with a big assist going to the player who helped put them in the top spot.

Jacques Lemaire, the NHL's leading goal scorer this season, notched his 28th and 29th in the Canadiens' 4-1 victory over the St. Louis Blues. The triumph moved Montreal three points ahead of second place Boston which had the night off.

In the only other NHL action, Vancouver beat California 4-3 and Detroit tied Pittsburgh 1-1.

Lemaire's goals proved icing on the cake against the Blues since Montreal had already taken a 2-1 lead before he beat goalie Bob Johnson for the first time in the second period.

Guy LaPointe and Murray Wilson countered for Montreal in the opening session. Canadiens goalie Ken Dryden was foiled in his bid for his fourth shutout of the campaign when Phil Roberto tallied for St. Louis at 6:36 of the final period.

Detroit needed Nick Libett's goal with 6:22 left to play to gain its tie with Pittsburgh. Until Libett's tally, the Penguins were protecting a 1-0 lead fashioned on Al McDonough's 16th goal of the season which came only 22 seconds after the start of the game.

Archibald Keeps Scoring Lead

NEW YORK (UPI) — Despite his own predictions to the contrary a few weeks ago, Nate (Tiny) Archibald of Kansas City Omaha retained his National Basketball Association scoring lead according to statistics released Tuesday.

Market Not Really A Game

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I have been playing the market for six years now and losing every year. About a month ago I purchased 800 shares of Levitz Furniture (NYSE) at 25½ and 700 on margin at 26½. I would appreciate your advice on whether to hold or sell. — A.S.

A. Perhaps if you had "invested" six years ago rather than "playing the market" you would be in a better position today. In the last six years even the conservative Dow Industrial Average has moved up about 50 per cent, despite the sustained 1969-1970 bear market.

While you have committed a considerable amount of capital to Levitz, the shares merit retention. Earnings growth, which had been in the superior range of 57 per cent annually over the last five years, attracted substantial institutional interest in shares of this furniture warehouse retailer.

At last count, some 52 institutions still held more than 4 million shares, about one quarter of the outstanding stock. Adverse news has resulted in wholesale selling by the professionals and some fairly spectacular price gyrations for the shares.

Most recent in the bad news department were the poor operating results for the fiscal third quarter ended October and the subsequent slowdown in sales gains from November. The reduction in incremental sales gains, plus an increase in advertising expenses were factors in the third quarter profit margin squeeze.

Also important was the inordinate number of new stores. Levitz amortizes opening expenses for new units over the first year of the stores' operations, which reduces pre-tax margins per unit by about 2.5 per cent. Despite this handicap, nine months' earnings were up 42 per cent, a respectable rate of growth in anyone's book. Hold for gradual appreciation.

Loss Sales Send Stock Prices Down

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stock prices eased in moderately active trading on the New York Stock Exchange today, with year-end tax loss selling a factor.

Analysts noted only two sessions remain for tax loss selling purposes since the exchange will be closed Thursday in observance of the national day of mourning for former President Harry S Truman.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange declined in fairly active trading. Permaneer Corp. was the most active Amex issue, off ⅜ to 9 ¼ on 107,100 shares, including a block trade of 99,900 shares at 9.

New Line Of Wines Will Be Marketed

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — Fine Wines of America, a newly-formed company planning to produce and market a line of fine wines at medium prices, has established corporate offices here.

Herbert F. Tomasek, president, said yesterday John G. Tobias has been named vice president of marketing.

Tobias said marketing headquarters will be maintained at the San Francisco office. The firm maintains other offices in Fresno and Santa Barbara.

Tobias said the firm, early next year, will begin test marketing a totally new line of red, white and rose wines in selected West Coast urban areas. In 1974 the company's wines will be marketed nationally.

"Our fine wines will be prices compatible with the average family's food budget," Tobias said.

MARKET TO SHUT FOR TRUMAN RITE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Both the New York and American Stock exchanges will be closed all day tomorrow for the funeral of former President Harry S. Truman.

It is expected that most other domestic financial and commodity markets also will observe the national day of mourning.

Stans For Sports New Office, Warehouse Scheduled For Novato

Stan's For Sports new office and warehouse building will start going up next February in Novato at the corner of Ford Way and Hill Road, behind the Novato Ford agency.

The concrete structure with extensive landscaping will have two-story offices and a one-story warehouse totalling 50,000 square feet, more than an acre of floor space.

"We hope to be in the new building by July," said vice president George Tsegeletos. "It will be our main office and regional warehouse. Contractor is Al Villa of San Rafael, and the architect is Keith Olsen of Sausalito.

Stan's for Sports, headed by Stanley K. Goldsmith, is a rapidly expanding firm with stores in San Rafael, Mill Valley, Novato, Santa Rosa, Pleasant Hill, and San Jose, with two additional stores just acquired in Bakersfield and in Fresno. The Bakersfield and Fresno stores are the former Mid-Valley Sports stores.

Goldsmith Selmi

WILLIAM P. SELMI of Tiburon has been promoted to assistant vice president of systems and planning in Crocker Bank's San Francisco data processing center.

A native San Franciscan, Selmi joined Crocker Bank in 1969 and has since served in various capacities with the San Francisco data processing center.

ALBERT'S TRANSMISSIONS at 933-B Francisco Boulevard in San Rafael plans to move next spring into a new building that will just about double its present space.

Owner Albert Tanner, who has operated the transmission service for seven years, plans to build a 7,000-square-foot tilt-up concrete building at 1249 Francisco Boulevard, near Sonny Zappetini's Sun Iron Works on the road to San Quentin Point.

Tanner said the new building will provide more space and far better access.

ABRAHAM B. SELBY of San Rafael has been appointed assistant vice president at the San Francisco home office of Fireman's Fund American Insurance Companies. He is special assistant to the senior vice president in charge of nationwide administration.

Selby joined Fireman's Fund as a senior auto-casualty underwriter in 1956, and in 1960 was named premium audit manager for the traffic department in San Francisco. He became administrative manager for the San Francisco branch office in 1964 and in 1971 was appointed to the present position in the nationwide administration department.

EDGAR T. LINDNER Jr. of Mill Valley has been promoted to assistant vice president, commercial loan department of the Bank of California.

Lindner joined the bank in 1967 and was promoted to commercial loan officer in 1971. A native of San Francisco, he graduated from the University of Oregon in 1966 with a degree in finance.

JIM CORBET'S Home Craftsman's Store at 1155 Magnolia Avenue in Larkspur has been appointed an authorized dealer of the re-introduced Shopsmith home workshop as well as Shopsmith and Sawsmith accessories.

The announcement came from Shopsmith Inc. of Tipp City, Ohio, organized early this year to revive the Shopsmith line which was discontinued several years ago.

Jim Corbet said that the new Mark V Shopsmith offers the home craftsman the versatility of a table saw, vertical and horizontal drill press, disk sander, and lathe in a single unit.

Bus-Truck Crash Kills 19 Persons

FORT SUMNER, N.M. (UPI) — A loaded cattle truck jackknifed on a narrow bridge in a desolate area Tuesday night and collided with a chartered bus carrying 35 Texas teenagers and their chaperons to a Baptist church retreat. Nineteen persons were killed.

The collision was so violent the bus and truck looked like they "just melted together," said Capt. A. C. Jones of the New Mexico State Police. There was no fire.

Nearly all the seats in the bus were ripped loose and thrown forward, and the body of the bus was separated from the frame.

"There were four or five people up on the road," said Harvey Stidham of the Gold Star Ambulance Co. of nearby Clovis, who arrived after police pulled the dead and injured from the bus. "We went down in the ditch and found some more. There were 14 to 20 people lying down there."

The bus was the second of two heading from Austin to a three-day retreat in the mountainous ski country. The first bus crossed the bridge seconds before the crash involving a cattle truck driven by Ervy Wilmeth of Wilmeth Cattle Co. in Clovis. About half of the 40 cattle on the truck were killed in the collision or injured so badly they were shot.

"There are 16 bodies in the mortuary here," said de Baca County Coroner Dr. Roland Crane.

Three more unidentified bodies were taken to Clovis, N.M.

Treatment of the injured was hampered by the remoteness of the crash scene, almost an hour's drive to major hospital facilities in Clovis. An Air Force surgeon was flown by helicopter to the wreckage from Kirtland Air Force Base.

John Roberts, who drove the first bus safely across the bridge, said he looked in his mirror in time to see the following lights of the second bus disappear and the truck jackknife.

"Everything was normal and then the lights went out," he said.

The parents and relatives of the youth group gathered at the Woodlawn Baptisthurch in Austin and learned of the deaths of 16 of the teen-agers just after midnight.

"These, as far as we can determine, are not alive," said Rev. James Abington as he read the list of confirmed dead.

U.S. Trade Balance Worsens

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. trade balance took a sharp turn for the worse in November, the Commerce Department said Wednesday, but the composite index of economic indicators carried more optimistic news.

Pushed by record imports, the trade deficit increased by a seasonally adjusted $559.2 million last month, the most since a $590.3 million deficit in June. The trade deficit is the amount that imports exceed exports.

The department also said that the composite index, considered a good measure of what lies ahead for the economy, moved ahead by 1.9 per cent in November, the biggest jump since the 2.2 per cent August rise.

Six of the eight indicators available moved favorably and only two declined.

Despite occasional fluctuations, the index has been trending up for two years. Assistant Commerce Secretary Harold C. Passer noted that in the past, the index has leveled out after about 18 months.

Passer said the continued rise "reinforces the generally accepted view will continue to expand rapidly in 1973."

The trade report showed a seasonally adjusted import level of $5.02 billion, up from last month's previous record high $4.78 billion. Exports, at $4.47 billion, were the second highest on record, bettered only by the $4.51 billion of September 1971.

A trade deficit means that the value of imported goods is greater than the value of products a country exports. The United States enjoyed trade surpluses, where exports exceed imports, from 1893 to 1970. In 1971, the U.S. trade balance moved into deficit by $2 billion, and for the first 11 months of this year the trade ledger is in the red by $5.8 billion.

The two biggest increases among the components of the leading indicators were common stock prices and industrial materials prices.

Others moving up in November were new orders for durable goods, length of the average work week and the price-labor cost ratio. Initial claims for unemployment insurance declined, considered a good sign. Contracts and orders for plant and equipment and building permits were off for the month.

In November, the index was at 150.4 compared with 147.6 in October and 113.6 in October, 1970, the beginning of the current expansion.

U.S. Auto Fleets

DETROIT (UPI) —The Automobile Manufacturers Association estimated that 75,000 fleets of 10 or more motor vehicles are now operated in the United States with 45,000 containing 25 or more vehicles.

Very Little Found From Sunken Ship

JUNEAU, Alaska (UPI) —An oil slick, four capsized lifeboats and debris are all searchers have found of the 13,000-ton Pacrover, which vanished in the stormy north Pacific earlier this week.

Ships and planes searched 800 miles south of Kodiak for the 570-foot "stretched" cargo ship that left Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 17 with a cargo of 20,000 tons of coal for Yokohama.

Drug Theft From Police Headquarters Is Probed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Police Commissioner Patrick Murphy and two inspectors have been ordered to show cause why a grand jury probing narcotics thefts from police headquarters should not have access to their evidence.

The jury began hearing testimony Tuesday into the disappearance from the police property clerk's office of at least 300 pounds of heroin and cocaine, including more than 80 pounds of heroin seized in the famous 1962 "French Connection" case.

Gene L. Grupposo, one of three police department personel subpoenaed by the grand jury, testified.

Two others—Assistant Chief Inspector John Guido and Inspector Howard A. Metzdorff — did not answer their subpoenas.

Manhattan Supreme Court Judge Sidney Fine ordered Murphy, Guido and Medzdorff to appear in court Thursday to answer the order.

Fine's decision was seen as a victory for the city's five district attorneys in a jurisdictional dispute with special state prosecutor Maurice Nadjari.

Thursday Mail Holiday Slated

WASHINGTON (UPI) —In observance of a national day of mourning for former President Harry S Truman, all post offices will be closed and general mail delivery will be suspended Thursday.

Postmaster General E.T. Klassen said Tuesday there would be special delivery in some areas and mail pickups from collection boxes on curtailed schedules.

President Nixon announced earlier Tuesday that all government offices will be closed Thursday.
